

FOUR PACKERS AND THE RAILROAD FINE $15,000 EACH FOR ACCEPTING AND GIVING REBATES ON FREIGHT

Broker and Clerk Given Prison Sentence,
With Fine.

Swift, Armour, Cudahy and Morris, the Guilty Packers.

The Burlington, the Railroad Which Granted the Reduction.

Kansas City, June 22.—In the United States district court here, this morning, Judge Smith McPherson of Red Oak, Iowa, passed sentence upon the seven defendants recently convicted in this court of making concessions and accepting and conspiring to accept rebates on shipments. Judgments in the nature of fines were assessed as follows:

Swift & Co., $15,000; Cudahy Packing company, $15,000; the Armour Packing company, $15,000; Nelson Morris & Co., $15,000; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, $15,000.

George L. Thomas of New York was fined $5,000, and sentenced to four months in the penitentiary.

L. B. Taggart of New York was fined $5,000, and sentenced to three months in the penitentiary.

The appearance in the federal court here today for sentence of the representatives of four meat packing companies, one railroad and two individuals, defendants recently convicted of violating the Elkins law, marked the end of the rebate cases to be tried at this term of the court. One other case, that of the Chicago & Alton, and two of its officials, has been reset for trial in September.

The indictments upon which the various defendants were tried were returned in Kansas City by the grand jury on Dec. 13, 1905.

The indictments upon which the various defendants were tried were returned in Kansas City by the grand jury on Dec. 13, 1905.

George L. Thomas of New York city, a freight broker, and his chief clerk, L. E. Taggart, whose case was the first to be tried, were convicted of securing rebates from railways on shipments from New York to St. Louis and Kansas City dry goods concerns.

At their trials several prominent merchants, who admitted receiving rebates from the railways, testified to receiving at various times sums of money from mysterious sources. Many thousands of dollars were thus received, and some of the witnesses admitted the likelihood of it having come from Thomas.

Thomas, the centrally located defendant, is a fine of not less than $1,000, or more than $10,000, or imprisonment in the penitentiary for not less than two years, or both fine and imprisonment.

George H. Crosby, former assistant freight traffic manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, who was charged with conspiring with Thomas and Taggart to pay concessions, was discharged by Judge McPherson. The court sustained a demurrer, presented by Judge O. M. Spencer of St. Joseph, general solicitor of the railway, who contended that no evidence had been presented to connect Crosby with the alleged conspiracy.

The Armour Packing company, Swift & Co., Cudahy & Co., and the Nelson Morris Packing company were tried jointly and convicted on the charge of accepting concessions from the Burlington railroad in connection with contracting lines, or packing house products for export via New York.

The Burlington railroad company was convicted on four counts of granting concessions to the packing companies of Armour, Swift, Cudahy and Nelson Morris. The court sentenced the Burlington to a fine of $15,000, and the packing companies to a fine of $15,000 on each count, but not imprisonment.

The cases of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Chicago & Alton railroad companies, charged with offering concessions, and D. H. Kresky, a freight broker of Kansas City, charged with conspiring to secure concessions from these railways, were dismissed upon the suggestion of District Attorney Vanvalkenburg, who stated that he believed the railways had in this case been imposed upon. As the case against Kresky was predicated upon that against the railways it was useless to try him.

In the case of the Chicago & Alton railroad company and J. N. Faltborn, its former vice president, and F. A. Wann, its former assistant traffic manager, charged with having given concessions to the Schwarzhild & Sulzberger Packing company, a federal grand jury at Chicago concerning the same transactions for which they later were indicted at Kansas City. Judge McPherson sustained the government's demurrer to this plea, but continued the cases over till next fall, when the similar cases at Chicago probably will have been disposed of. This Alton case is distinct from that in which Kresky was concerned.

IVENS UNABLE TO SPEAK ON MOUNTING GALLOWS

Vicious Murderer Was on Verge of Complete Collapse.

Executed With Haste to Avoid Such a Contingency.

All Efforts to Stay the
Vain.

Chicago, June 22.—Richard Ivens was hanged here today for the murder of Mrs. Bessie Hollister. The condemned man, until he stood upon the drop, faced death in the same stolid manner in which he has conducted himself since his arrest. When he stepped on the scaffold, however, much of his courage failed him. Just before the cap was drawn over his face, he attempted to utter a prayer, but although his lips moved convulsively, his voice would not respond, and he was not able to utter a sound. It was evident that he was on the verge of a complete collapse, and the sheriff hastened the details as much as possible, in order to avoid such a contingency. Just prior to the execution the aged father of Ivens called at the jail and asked to see his son for the last time. His request was refused and the father of Ivens insisted that the condemned man was about to hang unjustly, as her own son had confessed to her that he, and not Ivens, was the actual criminal. She was detained, pending an inquiry into her story.

Mrs. Hollister, who was the wife of Frank C. Hollister, the head of the large furniture establishment of Hollister Brothers. The crime, which was committed on the evening of Jan. 12 of this year, was one of the most revolting in the police history of Chicago.

Mrs. Hollister, who was a handsome woman and prominent in both church and society, left her home on the morning of Jan. 12 with the intention of visiting a friend. She purchased the flowers, called on the friend, and returned home several small errands in the vicinity of her home, but did not appear at the funeral, nor was she again seen alive by any of her friends. On the morning of Jan. 13 Richard Ivens, who lived at 100 North Halsted street, reported to his father that the body of a woman was lying on a pile of refuse in the rear of their barn. Mr. Ivens at once informed the police, and the body which was at once identified as that of Mrs. Hollister, was taken to her home. The clothing of the victim was torn and disarranged, and she had evidently made a desperate fight before being overcome.

Around her neck was twisted a slender copper wire, and marks of it were visible on other parts of the throat. She had evidently struggled to death after being maltreated in the most vicious manner. The county of Ivens aroused the suspicions of the police officers and he was taken into custody and charged with the murder. He at first denied his guilt, but within three hours of his arrest made a complete confession to the officers. This confession he later repeated at the inquest, and was convicted on the charge of murder on another occasion to the state's attorney. He went into the shocking details of the crime in a colloquial fashion that aroused intense popular interest. When arraigned for trial Ivens denied his guilt, and claimed that he had been forced to confess by police. His defense was an alibi, and the claim that he had made the confession under hypnotic suggestion.

Application to the supreme court for a stay of proceedings was denied, and the board of pardons was in vain and his sentence was carried out today.

ALMIRANTE BAY IS A FINE SHEET OF WATER.

Washington, June 22.—Lieut. Commander George W. Logan has reported to the navy department the results of many months' work by a naval party which has been making a survey of the great bay at Bocas del Torro, Nicaragua. The survey has not yet been completed, and will require several months' work next season, but sufficient has been accomplished to make it evident that in Almirante bay, lying 140 miles west of the entrance of the proposed Panama canal, commerce will find one of the finest sheets of water in Central America. The survey party lived in a house-boat and enjoyed the best of health.

LENROOT WILL STICK.

Madison, Wis., June 22.—It has leaked out here that there was more behind the reports of the possibility of Speaker Irvine Lenroot withdrawing from the gubernatorial race, which were circulated a few weeks ago, than most people imagined.

At no time did Speaker Lenroot intend to withdraw, notwithstanding that great pressure was brought upon him by leading half-breeds in the state. The conference at La Crosse, which was reported at the time, was held, and every man, save one who attended it, urged Mr. Lenroot to retire.

Mr. Lenroot answered that he could not, and that he would fight it out now, no matter what occurred.

INSURANCE COMPANIES

Of Germany May be Forced to Settle Frisco Losses Squarely.

San Francisco, June 22.—Franz Bopp, the German consul in this city, is about to file an official report upon conditions in San Francisco and upon the actions of all commercial companies incorporated under the laws of Germany; and where it can be demonstrated that any insurance company is not acting honestly by its patrons the government undoubtedly is empowered to bring it to reason.

"I am forwarding to the German government my official report upon conditions in San Francisco and upon the actions of all commercial companies incorporated under the laws of Germany; and where it can be demonstrated that any insurance company is not acting honestly by its patrons the government undoubtedly is empowered to bring it to reason."

There is no doubt that the German government has the right to control the actions of all commercial companies incorporated under the laws of Germany; and where it can be demonstrated that any insurance company is not acting honestly by its patrons the government undoubtedly is empowered to bring it to reason.

Eleven of the fire insurance companies whose licenses to do business in California are open to cancellation because of the refusal to either furnish the state insurance commissioner with a complete list of policies or sign the stipulation of the state insurance commissioner that they will not issue policies for the purpose of loss, yesterday declared that their companies would stay in California and settle losses until they are driven out. These companies are the American of Boston, American of Philadelphia, Concordia, Delaware, Dutchess, Globe and Rutgers, Germania, Girard, New York, Spring Garden and Westchester fire. The American of Boston and the American of Philadelphia will, it is said, settle as best they can and retire from the insurance business.

FOR CROW LANDS.

Billings, Mont., June 22.—Easterners are flocking to this place by the hundreds to register for the Crow lands. Yesterday, on the Butte register, 200 came, most of them from Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska.

The Northern Pacific brought numbers from Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. Many of the prospective settlers have secured tents and have gone to the reservation, where they will establish camps and make a thorough inspection of the lands. At the present time the registration will not exceed 10,000.

KELLOGG MAY ENTER CABINET

Minnesota Lawyer Talked of for Attorney General.

Washington, June 22.—It is possible that Minnesota may be represented in the cabinet of President Roosevelt before 1906 closes.

Attorney General Moody expects to retire just as soon as he can adjudicate several pending cases, which have been under his personal management. With a right meat inspection law, that will bring the packers to time, and new rate legislation on the books, Mr. Moody will retire from the cabinet and practice law in Boston.

Frank B. Kellogg of St. Paul is talked of as successor of Moody, and it is believed here that if he will accept the place he can have it.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT CITY OF TRONDHJEM

Day is Bright But the Cold Weather Makes Winter Clothing Necessary.

Thousands of People Witness the Processions and Crowd the Church.

Trondhjem, June 22.—Coronation day opened with a glowing but cold sun shining. In the early morning splatters of rain fell and a chill wind came off the fjord making it necessary to wear overcoats and winter clothing. The normal temperature in the cathedral previous to the ceremony was under 50 degrees and it was feared that many of those present would carry away a painful and lasting reminder of the coronation of King Haakon and Queen Maud, although the Norwegian court wisely relaxed the rules governing dress.

The city was alive at an early hour and by 8 o'clock the avenues reaching the cathedral were filled with struggling lines of people making for the choicest points of vantage from which to see the members of the royal family and the distinguished guests enter the cathedral. The doors of the latter were opened at 10 o'clock and soon afterwards three bishops, robed in white, drove up in a basket, like phantoms. The crowd moved back when the bishops entered the cathedral.

The cathedral filled rapidly. By 10:25 a. m. the majority of the spectators had arrived and were seated. The women in evening costumes and many of the men in bright uniforms and wearing Orders. The effect was imposing in spite of the half light in the interior of the old cathedral. Long rows of seats extended along the entire both sides of the building, rising tier upon tier. The centre of the nave was unoccupied by the throne, throne seats and a few chairs back of the columns. A red carpet was stretched along the aisles and the center of both transepts.

The arrival of the bishops was followed by the appearance of a number of priests, all robed in white. They entered the north sanctuary at 10:30 and formed a semi-circle about the altar and with bent heads offered up prayers for the king and queen. Their entrance silenced the crowds.

In the meantime lines of soldiers in full dress uniforms, with bayoneted rifles, stood at attention on the north side of the cathedral, and a few chairs back of the columns. A red carpet was stretched along the aisles and the center of both transepts.

END POWER OF MURPHY

Mayor McClellan Intends to Take Control of Tammany Hall.

Will Force the Issue by Naming Five District Leaders.

New York, June 22.—Unless Charles F. Murphy decides to dodge the issue by failing to call a meeting for the election of leaders for the five new assembly districts, there will be a decisive line-up within the next ten days which will end his power in Tammany Hall.

Convinced that Murphy, if left in even nominal control of Tammany Hall, will throw the support of the organization to William R. Hearst for governor, and that he will do everything in his power to damage and discredit the present municipal administration, Mayor McClellan will name the five new leaders who are to be chosen by the Tammany executive committee for the new districts. He has determined to elect the delegates to the state convention and assume control of Tammany Hall.

That the mayor has this power through his control of the members of the executive committee there can no longer be any doubt. That the mayor is actually in control is a fact of which Murphy is not yet aware. Still convinced that he will be able to dominate the election of the district leaders, Murphy is preparing his slate.

Events of the last few months have convinced the mayor that, to make his administration a success, he must control the Democratic organization, or at least take it out of the hands of Murphy.

The line-up on the election of the district leaders is merely preliminary to the real fight for which the mayor is preparing. This is the fight in the primaries for the election of a delegation to the Democratic state convention.

Every evidence that Murphy has made a deal with William R. Hearst by which Murphy is to turn the Tammany delegation over to Hearst is apparent, and this fact is one of the chief incentives to the mayor to take control of the organization. Close friends of Murphy have announced that he has agreed with Hearst to support him, and that Hearst's first move will be to remove Mayor McClellan. One of Murphy's most intimate friends has openly boasted this, and stated that Mayor McClellan would find soon enough that it was not easy to defy the wishes of a man like Murphy.

Mayor McClellan is determined to send to the state convention a delegation which will vote for a candidate of his own, probably District Attorney Jerome, as the Democratic nominee. Many of the Tammany leaders are quaking over the certainty that they are to be called upon to show their colors. Some of these leaders hold positions, others hope to have them. They are exceedingly eager to prevent a line-up. But under orders from the mayor most of them will be forced to fall into line or abandon all idea of securing patronage for the next three and a half years. In the plans which have been made the Sullivan have not been eager to force a fight on Murphy. Their reason is that they are not anxious to assume control of Tammany hall themselves, and as things are coming their way rapidly, they prefer to let conditions remain as they are. They see no harm in permitting Murphy to stay as leader so long as he is a harmless figurehead.

When Murphy will call the meeting of the executive committee no one seems to know. He was expected to call it any day last week. Mayor McClellan will sail for Europe next Saturday. It is believed that Murphy will not call the meeting until the mayor is out of the country. This, however, will have no effect upon the result, as the mayor's slate is expected to go through by at least a majority of four.

Tammany leaders do not expect that Mayor McClellan will become leader in name, but that he will be the actual power in control.

Who Mayor McClellan will put in as leader to succeed Murphy has not yet been settled. It is probable that Murphy will not be deposed until after the primaries. Murphy is expected to be a cipher at the state convention. Mayor McClellan will head the Tammany delegation, according to present plans.

COMMISSIONER O'BRIEN Gives a Hearing on the Modern Samaritan Dispute.

St. Paul, June 21.—There is trouble brewing in the order of the Modern Samaritans, especially the Minnesota corporation of the order which has its headquarters in Duluth. Some of the members declare that its government is not representative because the by-laws of the order provide that the members of the Imperial council, which is the governing body of the order, are elected for life, as are their successors.

The order has a large membership in Minnesota, and is in a flourishing condition. A few of those who think that the government is too much on the side of an oligarchy for an American bred organization want the government changed. A hearing was given by sides by Insurance Commissioner O'Brien yesterday.

The life tenure of the members of the Imperial council strikes, it is claimed, at the theory of representative government, and is in direct violation of the statutes of Minnesota.

Local members of the order declare that it is nothing but a movement started by a Northern member who gives a place on the Imperial council which went to Minneapolis instead of Duluth. The members declare that the Imperial council is representative, and that if they desire they can vote a member off the board. Commissioner O'Brien has taken the matter under consideration.

COREY PROBABLY IS WORTH $10,000,000.

Bradford, Pa., June 22.—"Ellis and Laura are both old enough to know their own mind. I had nothing to do with their arrangements, whatever they may be."

This was the answer of A. A. Corey, father of President Corey, to a question as to what he or his family thought of the arrangements for divorce and rumored remarriage said to have been made between the steel king and his wife.

The story given out in New York that Corey is not worth $10,000,000 and hence anything like that amount in order to be free to remarry, is laughed at here. Unless he has lost heavily in the last year he is worth $10,000,000. In fact, to those here who are in position to know something of his finances, there are in Pittsburgh at least persons who know much about Corey's finances as they handled some of his big deals. Corey made at least $3,000,000 in one mining deal, and he had already accumulated millions from United States Steel stock, where he was on the inside.

THE KING AND QUEEN OF NORWAY CROWNED

commenced immediately afterwards. Her majesty, who is of a naturally timid and retiring disposition, bravely faced the ceremony. She looked daintily and attractive.

THE CORONATION

Was Most Impressive Ceremony and Witnessed by Thousands.

Trondhjem, June 22.—The coronation ceremonies were most impressive. After the procession had entered the cathedral to the sound of music, all were seated, the music ceased and the service began.

The bishop of Trondhjem recited the first line of a hymn, after which the congregation and choir, accompanied by organ and orchestra, sang the first verse of this hymn.

The bishop of Christiania having read the confession, the bishop of Bergen recited the first two verses of which were sung by the congregation and choir, accompanied by organ and orchestra. At the conclusion of the hymn the bishop of Christiania mounted the pulpit and delivered a sermon from Joel, chap. 2, verse 21.

The king then proceeded to the throne standing on a platform before the altar. The chief of the royal household preceded the king and placed himself at the left of the throne. After the king, the general in command carried the banner of the kingdom and held it at the right behind the throne. The supreme adjutants of his majesty accompanied him to the throne.

The supreme adjutants then removed the princely mantle from the king and placed it on the altar. The chief justice of the supreme court took the royal mantle from the altar and jointly with the bishop of Trondhjem placed it over the shoulders of the king, who then knelt on the devotional stool before the throne. The bishop of Trondhjem then took the anointment horn and anointed the king on the forehead and wrists.

The king arose and placed himself on the throne, the prime minister, Michelsen, preceding to the altar and taking the royal crown, which he, conjointly with the bishop of Trondhjem, placed on the head of the king.

The minister of foreign affairs, Lovland, then proceeded to the altar and, taking the scepter, conjointly with the bishop of Trondhjem, handed it to the king. The orb and sword were then presented to the king.

After the king was crowned, the queen proceeded to the throne to the music of the organ. The chief justice of the supreme court took the cloak of the queen from the altar and placed it, jointly with the bishop of Trondhjem, over the shoulders of her majesty, the cloak being fastened by the first lady of honor, assisted by the ladies of the queen's household.

The queen arose, and placing herself on the throne, the prime minister took the crown from the altar and placed it on the head of the queen, jointly with the bishop of Trondhjem.

The minister of foreign affairs took the scepter from the altar and handed it to the queen, jointly with the bishop of Trondhjem.

The orb and scepter were then given to the queen.

TRONDHJEM

Ancient Capital of Norway, the Cradle of the Norse Nation.

Trondhjem, the ancient capital of the kings of Norway, may be called the cradle of the Norse nation. It is first mentioned in history, before there was a united Norway, in connection with Harald the Fair Haired, who conquered all the petty kings of the Norse counties and led them into a single state under his own crown in the latter part of the ninth century. But it did not attain first importance in the kingdom until Haakon the Good was crowned in 935 and then the joyful acclamations of the people who had successfully rebelled against the cruel tyranny of Erik Blood-axe and his descendants, Queen Gunhild, were given to the king of a united and independent Norway, and the little crown prince becomes the nameake of his first legitimate successor, the great Olaf Trygvesson, who was crowned in 965. Up to that time, Trondhjem was less a national capital than the mere stronghold of an important province, but in 965 Olaf Trygvesson laid the foundation of the present city which he called Niadras. It is the northernmost town of any importance in Europe, being situated in the same latitude as the south coast of Iceland, but it has a strangely temperate climate. While the southern part of Norway becomes solidly frozen during the winter, the River Nil rarely freezes over and the beautiful Trondhjem fjord never. The climate is like that of middle Germany in winter and much like that of the coast of Oregon in summer. Hence the luxuriant vegetation and the resultant prosperity of the people.

King Haakon the Good is distinguished as being the first Christian sovereign of Norway. He was sent by his father to England in his childhood and there he became a convert to the faith and was baptized. Upon his return to Norway and his accession to his father's throne he did not dare to immediately attack the ancient Aas faith which had so many faithful adherents among his closest friends, so he temporized for some sixteen years or more until he had won such unbounded popularity as seemed to warrant his taking steps toward the realization of the wish nearest his heart—the Christianization of his people. He began well, but he did not possess the cruelty of zeal that was necessary for the accomplishment of such a task in that age, so he only succeeded in opening the way for his more vigorous successor, Olaf Trygvesson, who introduced the fire and sword into the fight with a great measure of success. But even he failed to completely eradicate paganism from the national heart, and it was only after his death, by his wife, and more particularly by his death had appealed to the ready imagination of the Norsemen, that Christianity truly became the established religion of the country. This great missionary was King Olaf Trygvesson, who was afterward canonized as St. Olaf and over whose sacred remains the great cathedral of Trondhjem arose. This cathedral is the proudest historical monument in Norway, and the finest church in all Scandinavia. St. Olaf was killed at the battle of Stiklestad in 1030 and his son and successor, Magnus the Good, buried him in a magnificent sarcophagus on the high altar of St. Clement's church, where it became an object of devout pilgrimages from all over the country. Eventually the cathedral and some fifteen or twenty other churches were built upon the strength of the faith he had created and even his Protestant Norway today his name is revered above all others. In 1551 Trondhjem was erected into an archbishopric and a new impulse was given to the ecclesiastical building enterprise. At this time the great Archbishop Eystein, the third of Trondhjem, quarreled with the king and fled to England, where he remained for three years. He returned full of religious zeal and ambitious plans for his own national capital and during the next few years he built the present transept of the cathedral, a graceful central tower, the Chapter House, all in the style of the late Romanesque.

These churches, however, were not completed until 1601 and it is a matter of great regret to the Norwegians that the other restorations have not been completed in time for today's ceremonies. Indeed, it will be completed before the restoration is completed, but the work goes steadily on, a fund of 100,000 kroner being provided by the state. There is no royal palace in Trondhjem, and during the coronation festivities the royal family will use the residence of the adjutant-general, the governor of the province. This stands in the center of the city near the great market place where the royal family usually in a particular throng to buy and sell the produce of the country and the fjord. The town in ordinary times is really little more than a fishing village although it does contain 2,000 inhabitants. The chief industry of the place is salmon fishing and salmon is the principal article of food in the province. Although the salmon is probably the finest in the world the least of the particular traveler is liable to lose his appetite for it since he gets it for breakfast, lunch, dinner and supper and he is almost sure to find it most palatable. The town where it hugs the fjord is a most picturesque one, the prevailing colors are red and green, but this diminishes the danger of fire which periodically breaks out among the pine wood dwellings. The wide streets open to view wonderful vistas of the fjord and the beautiful hills that lie behind the city. When the great fjord is full of gaily decked ships and pleasure yachts, when the city is shaded by flying flags and brilliant decorations, and when the people are all abroad in their quiet and brightly colored costumes moving happily about among uniformed princes, soldiers and officials and visitors the scene will be indeed be worth the long voyage that must be made up through the north sea to Trondhjem.

COMMISSIONERS SAW BIG FISH

County Commissioners E. M. Patterson, Neil McInnis and John Sundeen returned yesterday from the north end of Lake Vermilion where they legalized a county road. Ever since their return the friends of Mr. Patterson have been comparing notes relative to the big fish story the commissioner has regaled them with, following the trip on Lake

Vermilion. It has been decided that Mr. Patterson has not varied any in his story of the big fish, and there is talk of sending a special committee to investigate with a view of removing all doubt from the minds of any unbelievers. According to Commissioner Patterson, while he and his two fellow commissioners were coming south on Vermilion lake they saw at a little distance from their boat a gigantic fish swimming along with its head and a portion of its body out of water. One of the party shot at the fish with a revolver, and it disappeared. Commissioner Patterson says the fish was either a big pickerel or muskellunge, and was fully five feet long. It is alleged that the commissioners saw no sea-serpents.

NEW STREET CAR BRANCH

Rails and Ties Delivered for Line Up Fifty-Seventh.

Route Not Fully Determined On—Work Starts Soon.

In a very few days the street railway company will begin to build a branch of its line up Fifty-seventh avenue west from Grand avenue. The ties and rails are being delivered over the first part of the route now, and work on the tracks will soon start.

General Manager Warren of the Duluth-Superior Traction company said this morning that just at this time it has not been fully determined exactly what route will be followed in the extension, or how long it will be. This will be all determined later, he said, and there is plenty of time for it. The line, however, will be about eight blocks long, so that it will serve a large number of people who are now without service.

The line will be started from Grand and Central, will run up Central one block, and then go over Cody to Fifty-seventh. The service will be directly into the city, and will not be a "half-tail" line, as some have supposed. Every other car on the West Third street line will run up Fifty-seventh, and the others will go out to Seventy-first. The schedule will be announced later.

It is expected that the line will be completed before very long.

MAY START DAIRY.

James D. Keough of St. Paul Figures on New Industry Here.

James D. Keough, the well known dairyman of St. Paul, was a visitor in West Duluth yesterday. Mr. Keough has visited here before, and inspected the country heretofore. As a result of his investigations, he is impressed with the idea that this is a splendid country for a dairy, and if his present plans mature, he will take advantage of the opportunity offered. Said he yesterday: "It is rather surprising that somebody has not taken advantage of this field before. I do not know of a place in the United States where the prospects are as good, and the present field any better. Duluth needs a good dairy, and the country here is certainly first class for the feeding of stock. I expect before long to take advantage of this, and as soon as my present business permits, will endeavor to start a dairy here such as is deserving of the place."

Here they were known as Olsons, and were staying with a brother of the husband, and father, the brother going under the name of Samuel Olson here, and who lives away at the end of Cody street.

The man is afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis and as such, and was unable to support himself and family, the brother having been keeping them since

ENTERTAINMENT A SUCCESS.

Twentieth Century Club Has Delighted Crowd at Concert.

The entertainment of the Twentieth Century Progress club, which took place last evening in St. James hall, was a most complete success in point of attendance, and also of entertainment. Neither of the speakers billed, Alderman L. A. Barnes of the Seventh ward and Representative P. E. Dewling of Eveleth appeared. Mr. Barnes being confined to his house with sickness, and Mr. Dewling having missed his train at Eveleth. While they were much missed, the program took place in full with this exception.

There were some very fine numbers on it, and each participant acquitted himself or herself with credit. The on-act comedy, which ended the evening, was well acted, and received much approval. Rev. Father Feehely gave an address on "Progress," which was well worded and was full of good ideas.

BAPTISTS TO MEET.

Annual Gathering of Lake Superior District on Next Thursday.

Next Thursday and Friday the eleventh annual meeting of the Lake Superior Baptist association will be held at the West Duluth Baptist church, at Sixtieth avenue west and Bristol street. Four sessions will be held, beginning Thursday evening, and the remaining three will take place on Friday. The district includes all of the English Baptist churches in Duluth, Superior, and Ashland, and it is expected that some fine speakers will be heard.

Two of the sessions on Friday will be devoted to women's work and to the Baptist Young People's union. Rev. J. W. Loughridge of the Central Baptist church, West end, who is moderator of the district, will preside.

MILES NEVER EATS MEAT

He Won Amateur Tennis Championship From Jay Gould.

Attributes Success in Sports to His System of Dietetics.

London, June 22.—Food-faddists are, as a rule, somewhat inactive folk, distinguished principally for giving advice to others. The list of their private accomplishments generally runs up to nil. It is certainly an exception when we find one who has been able—just on the strength of his diet—to win championships, produce books, teach difficult subjects, engage in strenuous journalism, and generally win success in many varied undertakings. Such a diet crank is Eustace Miles.

who recently won the amateur tennis championship from the strenuous young Jay Gould, or rather hold the championship against the American player, Miles won by sheer force of bodily tissues, built up and nourished as he claims, by his remarkable system of dietetics. The chief item of this system, it may be added, is a bland-looking substance called proteid, which resembles the pap of early childhood, and upon a careful study of which Miles says he can do more work, and with less fatigue, than most people could on the most substantial beefsteaks, fortified by the ordinary vegetables and alcohols.

When you first hear of Eustace Miles' dietary notions, you are naturally inclined to include them among the thousands of others said to work wonders for the human anatomy. When, however, you learn what Miles has accomplished in his 38 years, and when, in addition, it is stated that he owes all this to his choice of foods, you begin to perceive to give his statements an attentive ear.

Besides being a tennis champion of the world, and holding all sorts of athletic medals for various sports—such as football, cricket and hockey—the food revolutionist has to his credit some large accomplishments in the world of letters. No less than twenty-four publishers are engaged in bringing out his various books, which range anywhere from philology and Roman history to food receipts and court tennis. He seems, in fact, to be a very fair sample of a healthy body; for the brain seems to be as nimble as his muscles, and the amount of work he can do in a given time is astonishing.

Strangely enough, Eustace Miles first had his attention directed to food while in Boston, Mass., a few years ago. He was then under treatment by a well-known Boston physician, who, however, seemed to do him little good. Miles began studying up on the question of foods, and came to the conclusion that he would diet himself in accordance with certain information he obtained from books by Atwater and other experts. He made a special study of substances which contained nothing but proteid, and, in the course of his investigations, found that he could keep himself pretty well fed—not sumptuously, mind you, on about ten cents a day. To sustain on about ten cents a day, a man should have won national recognition for the tennis champion; but it seems, little as was taken at the time of the Miles experiments, it is meat and proper, however, that the home of the baked bean should have been one of the factors in bringing about the revolution which has substituted the bean for the beefsteak as the main article in the Miles diet. Perhaps, incidentally, this will account for the mysterious prominence of Boston hitherto in matters intellectual.

On returning to England, Miles after curing himself of indigestion, began giving advice to others on how they should eat and what they should do in cases of diseases arising from digestive disorders.

"It may sound more or less incredible," said Miles, speaking of some of his cures, "but I have positively traced Drigal's disease—in its early stages—quite successfully, without any other remedy but diet. Several persons who came to me with this disease were cured, while the lives of others have been undoubtedly prolonged. Before very long I found that I had nearly 1,000 Drigal's disease patients, who put themselves under my care. I had thoroughly worked out by this time my theories of food, and was able to accomplish some remarkable results on persons who had been practically abandoned by regular medical men.

"The proteid substances which I have discovered—or rather to be more accurate—extracted from substances containing large amounts of proteid—enable me to do an immense amount of work without feeling the least fatigue. For instance, I take a cup of this substance on awaking in the morning. I then lie in bed and write sometimes three newspaper or magazine articles. Facility of composition seems to be so much stimulated that I can often turn out two newspaper articles in an hour's time, and I never feel a brain fag after these efforts. I can write easily 3,000 words an hour, and the writing will be legible, and accurately worded. I attribute nearly all my success to the systematic use of the food substances I have discovered.

"Of course I never eat meat, but I have found certain substances, such as I have mentioned, to contain more nourishment than meat. It would be illogical, therefore, to stick to the old diet, after finding something better."

Mr. Miles was asked to give some idea of the amount of work he had been able to accomplish through his food products.

"Well, last year I coached no less than 200 students for Cambridge University, and I was also a classical scholar in mathematics, and some of the most difficult branches. In addition to this work, I kept up regular instruction to 1,500 food pupils who came to me for advice to say nothing of writing one or two books and quite a large number of magazine and newspaper articles. This was the brain work part. Besides this, I kept up my tennis practice and took other forms of regular exercise. My food enabled me to remain fit for all these various tasks; and never once did I feel worn out or exhausted.

"That is saying a good deal for a food, in my judgment," he added.

"The record of Eustace Miles, up to this time, has been one of brilliant success in various fields of endeavor. He was early honored as a classical scholar at Cambridge; then became a master at the famous Rugby school; and followed this up with being lecturer and coach at Cambridge, undertaking some of the most difficult branches. Owing to his accomplishments as a scholar and athlete, in an interview he was appointed a member of the executive council of the National League of Physical Education. In 1898 he won the English amateur tennis championship, and also the championship in racquets in 1902. Miles is the holder of the gold prize amateur championship for tennis in America, which he won in 1900. His recent victories make him the amateur tennis champion of the world.

Recently, Miles started in London, a large restaurant for the express purpose of supplying the Eustace Miles food regime to all who wish it. One of the unique departures of this concern is the sending out of the tabled proteid lunches to neighboring business offices. These lunches are warranted to do away with fatigue and to enable businessmen to double their capacity for toil.

The expert, moreover, has meals for sedentary folks, meals for businessmen, meals for the strenuous and meals for the hurried. He can put up a substantial meal that can be gulped down in three seconds, and is warranted to be free from injurious effect. To businessmen in a hurry, this should be a veritable godsend. You can obtain, for instance, all the essential qualities of a full course dinner, ranging from fish to nuts, and yet dispose of it while running to catch a train.

Mrs. Miles married the amateur tennis champion, and they have only three short years ago. The circumstances were romantic, for their first meeting was brought about by a newspaper article by Miles, which his future wife, then Miss Hallie Killick, happened to read. This article sang the praises of work, and it inspired Miss Killick, who also possessed literary gifts, to write a little book which she called "Life's Orchestra." Published, it made an uncommon hit, especially when it became known that the queen herself had praised it, and so it is not surprising that its author promptly wrote another book regarding which she wrote to Eustace Miles. She told him how her first volume came to be written and asked his advice about publishing the second, with the result that the athlete came to see her—and that their engagement followed. Needless to say, Mrs. Miles is a believer in her husband's dietetic doctrines, as in the face of his accomplishments, she has every reason to be.

NEW YORK GIRL WILL WED FRENCH NOBLEMAN.
Paris, June 22.—Franco-American aristocratic society is greatly interested in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Katherine Garrison, daughter of Mrs. W. M. Garrison of New York, to Count Francis de Castoja, second son of the Marquis and Marquise de Castoja.

Miss Garrison is the youngest sister of the Countess Gaston Chandon de Brailles, and of the Hon. Mrs. Charles Maule Hamann. The future countess will by her marriage have the entrée to the most exclusive society of the French capital.

ENOCH ARDEN SHOWS UP IN KENTUCKY.
Owensboro, Ky., June 22.—Simon Castlen, an Owensboro man, who was supposed to have been killed in 1894, when a Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis train crashed through the Green River bridge at Spottsville, Ky., is still alive and well. He says so himself.

"I have been absent from Owensboro two years on account of family troubles," said Mr. Castlen.

He was asked if he returned to be "killed," he said: "It is of no use. She has married a man in Evansville. Castlen left Owensboro in August, 1904. He wrote his wife, telling her from Texas, saying that he was preparing to return home. However, he changed his mind, but his wife, not apprised of that, received the notion, when reading the story of the Green River wreck, that one of the two men killed was her husband. The bodies of the dead were taken to Henderson in the face of his accomplishments, she has every reason to be."

Castlen had a policy for $2,000 with the order of the Knights and, and gets well. The order refused to pay the death claim, and Mrs. Castlen brought suit for the amount. It is understood that Mrs. Castlen was married to Edward Kelly in Evansville, a few weeks ago. Castlen's father, Lee Castlen, died in this county, and left a large estate. Castlen is here for the purpose of obtaining a share of the estate, no provision having been made for him, his father thinking he was dead. Castlen says that he will not cause his wife any trouble.

WILLS THREE MONTHS' RENT TO HIS TENANTS.
Paris, June 22.—The inhabitants of two tenement houses, containing 200 families, have just received as a present from their landlord the amount of their midsummer term's rent. M. Thibout, the landlord, had just died, and upon opening his will, his heirs notified the tenants of his bequest.

In addition to paying rents for three months, M. Thibout left large sums of money to be distributed among the employees of his buildings, his servants and employees generally.

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF SCROFULA

The laws of nature and heredity are fixed and invariable. Parents who are related by the ties of blood, or who have a consumptive tendency, or family blood taint, are sure to transmit it to their children in the form of Scrofula. Swollen glands, brittle bones, weak eyes, hip disease, pale, waxy complexions, emaciated bodies, running sores and ulcers, and general weak constitutions are the principal ways in which the disease is manifested. Those who have inherited this blighting trouble may succeed in holding it in check during young, vigorous life; but after a spell of sickness, or when the system has begun to weaken and lose its natural vitality, the ravages of the disease will become manifest and sometimes run into Consumption. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and forces out the scrofulous deposits, kills the germs and completely cures the disease. It changes the quality of the blood by removing all impurities and poisons and supplying it with fluid with rich, health-sustaining qualities. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable medicine and is especially adapted to systems which have been weakened and poorly nourished by scrofulous blood. Literature on Scrofula and medical advice free.

WEST END

WIPING OUT
THE DANGER

Work of Removing Point of Rocks is Progressing Slowly.

Much Danger in Job—
Paving of Street
Almost Finished.

Matters in business are becoming more settled at the West end now that the paving of Superior street is practically finished. Heretofore heavy delivery wagons from the jobbing and wholesale houses of the city had to take round-about ways to get to the stores at the West end, and it was a betting proposition as to when they would arrive. But now they can come straight up Superior street on a first class pavement, and there is little or no delay.

The work of paving will soon be complete. Less than half a block remains between Ninth and Tenth avenues west to be finished, and as soon as the wet weather lets up long enough for the work to resume this will be finished in a little more than a day. By that time the space left at Twelfth avenue west and Superior street on the north side of the tracks will be ready for work.

The street railway company is putting a "Y" in there, and that is why the work was left undone. The work on the Y is about done, and then the paving will be put in around it.

The work of tearing down the Point of Rocks to a slope from which there will be no danger, is proceeding slowly. The smaller and looser rocks are being removed first in order that the danger from explosions of dynamite will be lessened, and in the meantime, holes are being driven in the top of the cliff to be ready for the blasts. Considerable speculation is going on of how best to take down the big rocks without causing damage to the buildings in front of it. There are some very large boulders which would tear to pieces everything in front of them should they once get started. There is one big boulder, which is larger than a good many houses, and is a dangerous one. Should that ever get started, it is believed would never stop until it reached the bay, and would smash everything in front of it. It is with such danger as this that the workmen have to contend.

With the new paving in and the clearing of the Point of Rocks drawn, the West end will then be in pretty good shape for business. The telford macadam around the Point of Rocks is not yet in, and probably will not be put in until the work on the rocks is over.

ISAAC LINAN DEAD.

Well Known Stone Mason is Victim of Tuberculosis.

Much sorrow was caused this morning at the West end when the news of the death of Isaac Linan of 2103 Piedmont avenue spread. Death came this morning after a sickness of two years. Tuberculosis was the cause and has had Mr. Linan on the invalid list for most of the period during which he was afflicted. He was about 40 years of age and leaves a wife, two sons and four daughters.

He was prominent in religious circles and for about six years has been a deacon in the First Swedish Baptist church. He was a member of the Modern Samaritans and was also a prominent member of the Stone Masons' union.

The funeral will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the First Swedish Baptist church, Nineteenth avenue west and First street. Complete arrangements will be made later.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION.

First Swedish Methodist Church Having Program Each Evening.

The twentieth anniversary of the establishment of Swedish Methodism in Duluth is being celebrated these days at the First Swedish Methodist church at Twentieth avenue west and Third street. Last night the women of the church had charge of the program and acquitted themselves with honor to spare. This was the second program of the affair and another will be given this evening and one tomorrow night, the latter closing the celebration.

Last evening a most delightful surprise was sprung on the audience in the appearance and playing of Miss Sundquist, a young woman from Chicago. She is a violinist and so masterful was her handling of the violin and so delightful the melodies she drew from its strings that the audience went mad over her. She had to respond to several recalls before the rest of the program could go on.

Others who took part were Mrs. R. D. Haven, who gave a delightful piano solo; Mrs. Sunder who recited pleasingly; Mrs. J. A. Anderson who gave a hearty address of welcome; Mrs. John Sundeen who talked of the work done by the women of the church; Mrs. Sundquist who recited; Miss Esther Skagerberg who gave a reading; Mrs. Sogelman who recited; and the ladies choir which gave several selections in fine style. Miss Esther Anderson was accompanist.

This evening the program will be in charge of the children of the Sunday school, who will sing a tuneful cantata entitled "Summer Time."

On Wednesday evening the piano recital by the pupils of Mrs. A. N. Hopkins took place at her residence, 2821 West Second street. The recital was considered an excellent one, and was well attended by the parents and friends of the pupils. Those who took part in the program acquitted themselves well, and pleased all present. Interspersed between the recital numbers on the program were vocal solos by Miss Riley, Mrs. Carl B. Gilbert and Miss Mayme Kennedy. The house was prettily decorated with ferns and lilacs in the dining room, and American beauties in the hall. Mrs. R. D. Haven and Miss Minnie Allen received, and Misses Mayme Kennedy, Hazel Hopkins, Ada Gorman and Genevieve Ives served refreshments.

The pupils who took part in the recital were Lucille Gilbert, Eva Adams, Edna Lindahl, Edna Brigham, Helen Armstrong, Gladys Elliott, Minnie Kraemer, Goldie Hanson, Winifred Leonard, Nora Smith, Olga Carlson, William Smith, Fern Rappold, Ruby Gorman and Harriet Riley.

BITTEN BY VICIOUS DOG.

Son of Martin Smith Has Wound Cauterized After Attack.

Norman Smith, the eldest son of Martin Smith of Twenty-eighth avenue west and Third street, was severely bitten on the leg by a vicious bulldog last Wednesday. The boy was hurried off to a doctor, and the wound was cauterized.

Many complaints before and since this attack have been made about this particular bulldog. It is claimed that he is a dangerous brute, and is in the habit of pouncing on every dog, big or little, that comes his way. He has such a lack of wholesome large-hearted appearance that passers-by feel constrained to walk out in the street at a safe distance.

West End Shortfalls.

The North Star Building association will hold a patriotic social and entertainment at Sloan's hall on next Thursday evening. Dr. O. A. Oredson will speak.

The sewing circle of the Epworth League of the Norwegian Lutheran church will hold its semi-annual bazaar at the church next Friday evening. Dr. A. Olson has gone to Niagara, N. D., to visit a brother who lives there. He will be absent for two weeks.

Your prescriptions are compounded, true to your doctor's formula at the Lion Drug store.

A son was born a few days ago to Mr. and Mrs. A. Asher of Proctor at the residence of Mrs. Whitney, 313 Twenty-fourth avenue west, where Mrs. Asher was visiting for some time.

Ed Thursday of the Moir & Walker force, is suffering from an attack of lunago.

Mrs. John Campbell of 2719 West First street, has gone to spend the summer with friends in Eastern Ontario.

Master Willie Thompson has gone to Brainerd to visit a few days with his aunt.

If you are in need of medicine you need the best, go to the Lion Drug store.

THREE BOYS ARE HELD ON CHARGE OF MURDER.

Wooster, O., June 22.—Harry White, aged 17 years, Allen Miller, 17 years old, and William Eberhart, all sons of respectable parents, of Alliance, O., were held yesterday afternoon without bail on a charge of having murdered Thomas Dye, aged 17 years, at Ormsville, in this county. April 2. White and Eberhart are said to have confessed that the trio had planned to rob a party of Italian workmen who were nearby and that Dye interfered with their plans. Discarding their call to halt, he was shot by Miller, so White and Eberhart allege.

WOMAN BATTLES WITH A BURGLAR

Routs a Marauder Who Threatens to Cut Her Throat.

Independence, Mo., June 22.—Mrs. W. T. Campbell, wife of the pastor of the Baptist church here, had a desperate encounter with a burglar. She was awakened across the hall with a razor, but she succeeded in wounding the intruder and chased him out of the house.

About 3 o'clock in the morning Mrs. Campbell, who occupied a room with her daughter, was awakened by a noise, and raising herself on the pillow, she beheld a man bending over her with a razor in his hand.

"Don't make a noise or I will cut your throat," he hissed at her. Instead of obeying him, Mrs. Campbell sprang from the bed and grappled with the intruder. The fight lasted for some time. Mrs. Campbell screaming and endeavoring to hold the blade and it twisted in her hand, making an ugly gash, from which blood flowed profusely. But instead of being disconcerted at the sight of the blood, she fought the weapon and succeeded in securing the blade. The man fled through an open window. He was clearly wounded for he was traced by a trail of blood for two blocks.

BEAT TARIFF ON JEWELS.

By Taking Mounted Stones Apart, Far Less Duty Is Paid.

New York, June 22.—The Times says: "The United States government, through the treasury department, has decided to discover, by means of a federal court decision, the exact basis upon which the duties imposed on gems and jewels imported into this country may be levied."

"For instance, the duty on unmounted, unmounted, or uncut gems is but 10 per cent, while that on matched or mounted jewels is 60 per cent."

The customs authorities, through their agents abroad as well as from their own observation at this port, have been aware for a long time that great quantities of gems and pearls have found their way into this country under payment of the 10 per cent duty, when, in their estimation, the higher rate should have been levied. The matter of discrimination must often be based on personal observation and judgment alone, where there is no outside proof to indicate that the valuable declared had been taken apart after purchase abroad and brought here unmounted or unmounted for the sole purpose of evading payment of the higher rate.

It is said that the test case to be brought by the government concerns sixty pearls of great value, purchased in Paris by William B. Leeds as a gift for his wife.

WOMAN CONFESSES MURDER.

St. Louis, June 22.—In the office of Chief of Detectives Desmond yesterday afternoon, Mrs. W. C. Arnold broke down and confessed that she killed Frank L. Phelps at her house Wednesday, because she thought he was going to make her carry a compact between them to commit suicide. Until the confession it was believed Phelps

LEBAUDY FINED FOR FELLING FIRE TREES.

Paris, June 22.—The French authorities are again after the "Emperor of the Sahara." M. Jacques Lebaudy has to pay a heavy fine for cutting down ten acres of forest, though it was on his case. The forest laws of France are very severe, and M. Lebaudy was given three warnings against devastating his timber land in such a reckless fashion.

He has now been fined, and if he keeps on cutting down his trees his forest will be confiscated.

MAN'S HEART TAKEN OUT AND WASHED.

Los Angeles, June 22.—To have his heart taken out and particles of sand washed from it as it beat, and still survive, has been the experience of C. A. McCartney, a Pasadena contractor. While riding a motor cycle, he came into collision with a hay wagon, and a wooden rake prong pierced his breast. The surgeons found that particles of sand from the road had been driven into the wound as far as the heart. They took that organ out, washed it thoroughly and then replaced it. Other internal injuries were attended to, the cavity in the body sewed up and the incisions are that McCartney will recover.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The last number of the second volume of the Journal, the little magazine issued each month by the Young Women's Christian association, has been sent out. The issue of the Journal is discontinued during the months of July and August, when the educational and physical culture classes of the association are discontinued, and the activities are greatly lessened.

The June Journal announces that Miss Ruth Roberts, for two years director of the physical department, will not return next year, much to the regret of the members. Miss Roberts was unanimously elected by the board to succeed herself, but did not sign the contract. The physical committee is now in correspondence with several applicants, and the director will be chosen within the next few weeks. The gymnasium classes will open the first of October, the physical director being here one month before that time to make arrangements for the different classes.

It is planned to continue the Saturday recreations of the Outing club, which was conducted with so much success by Miss Roberts during the winter, and several outings will be planned for the summer for all the members of the association who desire to employ their Saturday afternoons in this manner.

To those interested in Y. W. C. A. work, the following extract from the Journal regarding the work planned for South America will be of interest:

"Miss Batty will sail, Sept. 1, for Buenos Ayres to become general secretary of the Young Women's Christian association. For many months the cry has come to the world's committee a secretary, but there was none to send. Miss Batty goes as the first secretary to South America to work among the young women."

"It will interest many of our readers to know that Mrs. B. A. Shuman of our city, wife of the Young Men's Christian association secretary in that city, has been one of the most active workers in organizing the work there, and has written many letters to her classmates in Minnesota, telling of the need of an association."

"Miss Batty has been state secretary of Pennsylvania, and the young women of that state will raise $500 and Minnesota $500. Duluth was glad to be asked to help in this great work. Those of our membership who have helped raise the $100 assigned to Duluth will feel proud to have a part in it."

Pleasing Recital.

The piano pupils of Theodore Fossum and the young people studying the violin under the direction of Charles Dexter Ostergren appeared in a recital last evening at the old Masonic Temple hall, and a large number of friends were present, and enjoyed each number on the program. The vocal soloist of the evening was Mrs. W. O. Kinsman, contralto, who was heard here for the first time. She gave much pleasure. The children taking part were Misses Margaret Glavin, Agnes Polski, Grace Harwood, Ella Hamlin, Gertrude Peterson, Norma Edith Weston, Ester Bjorn, Hilda Lindahl, Margaret Nordahl, and Masters Phil Peterson, Viljo Peterson, Norman Talmadge, Seegar Longren, Clarence Gronseth and Fred Douer.

W. C. T. U. Meets.

The annual meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance unions of the district of St. Louis county and of West Duluth were held yesterday at Plymouth Congregational church, at West Duluth. There is but one society in the district, that of the West Duluth organization, and at the meeting in the morning the officers were re-elected. They are: President, Mrs. G.

Hood Thompson; secretary, Mrs. J. T. Culbertson; and treasurer, Mrs. B. H. Smith.

After a basket luncheon at noon, the election of officers for the West Duluth union took place, and resulted as follows: President, Mrs. H. H. Phelps; vice president, Mrs. C. R. Keyes; secretary, Mrs. W. S. Bailey; and treasurer, Mrs. H. B. Smith. The reports of the officers and superintendents of the departments of missions, flowers, charity and distribution of literature among the lumber camps were heard. The meetings of the union are discontinued during the summer.

Newport Wedding.

A beautiful home wedding took place yesterday at Newport, Minn., when Miss Anna Jane Scott of Duluth was married to David Allen Young of Field, Wis., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Scott. The maid of honor was Miss Minnie Dennison of St. Anthony Park, St. Paul, and the best man was Thomas Young of Park Falls, Wis. The service was read by Rev. C. A. Cressey. The bride wore a pretty gown of white silk and carried a large bouquet of white roses and maidenhair fern. Her bridesmaid was also gowned in white, and carried white sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Young left on the evening train for a visit with Mrs. T. H. Gregg of Port Arthur, a sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Young will be at home at Field, Wis., after July 24.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. J. W. Sheridan and daughters have gone to Solon Springs for the summer.

Miss Pearl Chalk of 415 West First street has gone to Providence, R. I., for a visit with her aunt. Miss Chalk is planning a visit to England before her return in the autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Brooke and children of Lester Park have gone to Toledo, Ohio, for a three weeks' visit.

Miss Marian Perry has returned from a short visit at Minneapolis, where she attended the wedding of Miss Eva Worden.

Mrs. Arnold S. Wakeman of Winnipeg is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. D. D. Murray for a few days. Miss Clara Murray has returned from a visit at Deerwood, where she was the guest of Mrs. Thomas P. Brown.

Howard Simonds returned today from Cornell, where he has completed his second year of his college course.

Mrs. W. L. Windom and mother, Mrs. G. E. Gardner, left today for a visit at Detroit and Mackinac, and they will also visit at Battle Creek, Mich., before their return, about July 20.

What Retail Markets Offer

Watermelons, 50 cents each. Cantaloupes, 15 cents each. Sugar corn, 3 ears for 25 cents. Tomatoes, 35 cents a basket. Sweetbreads, 60 cents a lb. Roast beef, spring chickens and lamb and such.

The first of the sugar corn over which the average person throws fits and then says "But that one gets in the market is nothing like the corn fresh out of the field you know," will be in the market tomorrow and the price will be exclusive enough to please the most difficult tastes. There are very few sweetbreads to be had, due to one of nature's own trusts. The cow or the sheep or whoever it is that has sweetbreads have so few and they digest so easily, in fact they are so keen on digesting that they will digest themselves if they are left long enough, that the consequences is that one must pay 60 cents for a pound of them.

The watermelons are fine and ripe and luscious and desirable. And in fact everything that the market offers seems to be of the finest kind and from pineapple to radishes, the freshest and best obtainable are awaiting the early morning order of the housewife.

Little Things Women Can Do to Make Traveling Comfortable

By MARGARET MIXTER.

Comfort in traveling means something infinitely more than merely an Pullman chair or good company, as any woman who has been about a bit will readily understand. It is the little things that count in traveling, as in anything else, and if one is not prepared for emergencies, which so often arise both at home and abroad, then a train of discomforts ensue.

Equipping one's self for a journey of no matter how short duration, there are scores of suggestions that a woman may need to advantage. First of all, there is the possibility of car sickness to be anticipated. Often women not usually subject to such a distressing condition will, through some disturbance of the stomach, be overcome with it. While occasionally an attack will stubbornly resist treatment, on the other hand it often succumbs to a few simple remedies.

It is not generally known that smoked beef, sliced thin and crisped over the fire, will often relieve the worst fits of car sickness. Again, holding a clove in one's mouth will not only prevent, but cure the trouble. The simple inhalation of vinegar is another effective remedy, but practical, remedy, and black licorice and cinnamon bark have been known to cure the worst attacks. Black licorice, too, is good.

Very frequently car sickness comes as a result of fasting for too long a time, and if it happens that there is no buffet on the train and it is impossible to get a lunch at the regular time, eating raisins prevents the possibility of being overcome, and a little milk chocolate or sugar carried in the traveling bag will do one over until food is obtainable. It isn't always desirable to drink the water used on the train, and to allay one's thirst a little sugar and lemon juice is wonderful in its results.

Transatlantic travelers, who cover so much ground sightseeing, very frequently have trouble with blistered feet, which cause no end of discomfort and takes quite a time to thoroughly cure. Blistering of the feet can be prevented by shaving a little common soap and shaking it into the shoes before starting out on a long tramp. Old travelers, who have tried it for years, say that there is nothing to equal this simple remedy, and it may be tried by any who are forced to stand for a long time or do much walking.

Very few women would think of taking ing a candle and a box of safety matches with them on a journey, but if they once did, the articles would never again be left at home. How many women have been in hotels where they turn off the electricity after midnight and tried to find some of their belongings in the dark? Then there is the country hotel with its smoky oil lamps, which are usually hung so high up on the wall that they are quite out of reach, and where they fall utterly to fill the purpose for which they were intended. On such occasions the woman who was thoughtful enough to bring a candle will feel amply rewarded.

If one doesn't care to be bothered with the laundering of a lot of clothes, one way to economize is by utilizing old knit underwear for wash clothes and throwing them away. One of the most valuable assets of the feminine traveler—and for the masculine, too, for that matter—is a bottle of alcohol, a piece of blotting paper and a silk sponge for cleaning clothes. Spots appear on one's clothes sometimes in a most mysterious manner, and by placing the blotting paper underneath the spot, sponging the latter with the alcohol, the foreign matter is cleaned from the right side of the goods and absorbed

ed onto the blotting paper on the wrong

A hot water bag is an invaluable adjunct to the traveling equipment, and if one can get a hot water bag, it could find use wherever necessary without its being noticeable. Particularly if a woman is traveling alone, she would supply herself with at least two in this country, so that in the event of one's bursting she will have another of home manufacture to fall back upon, for those bought on the other side, particularly in England, are of such thick rubber and so peculiar in shape that they aren't pleasant to use.

GOULD'S IMPORTED COWS.

Howard Gould has imported half a dozen of the finest cows he could find in England. The animals arrived a few days ago and are now at Mr. Gould's Long Island estate, Sands Point. On the way over they furnished the passengers with delicious milk and cream, which was served with every meal. The cows are from the famous herd of the duke of Richmond.

Hand Made Lace Now in Demand

Handmade Lace Handkerchiefs.

Handmade lace has come to the fore this season and is the aim of every woman to own at least one real lace handkerchief. For those who have handsome specimens stored away in cabinets or among their laces no further investment is necessary, but to meet the demand of women who are unsupplied there are some exceedingly pretty, yet inexpensive specimens on the market. Outside of the intrinsic value of these covetous bits of lace there is also a certain amount of sentiment, owing to the fact that the conditions are disastrous to the health and eyesight of the worker. The delicacy of the threads, the extreme fineness of the patterns and the moist atmosphere in which the lace making is carried on renders the occupation a hazardous one. However, in spite of these unfavorable conditions it is quite possible to secure fine specimens at ridiculously low prices just at this time, and for the June bride this is fortunate. One recent bride presented each of her bridesmaids with real lace handkerchiefs, which is a rather pleasing innovation.

FRUITS ON THE MARKET

Wide Choice is Offered and Prices Are Getting Lower.

Green Apples and Raspberries Arrive—Fresh Fish Very Scarce.

California fruit is now beginning to be the feature of the produce market. The receipts of fruit from California have been increasing during the week, and there has been a decline in the price of peaches and plums.

California cherries are firm in price, with little change in the market conditions. Pie cherries are very plentiful at the present time. It is not often that the market is well supplied with cherries in Duluth, and advantage should be taken of the present conditions by those who desire to purchase the sour cherries for preserves, as the dealers predict that the supply is not likely to last long. They are coming in car lots from Iowa, and the prices are very reasonable for this part of the country.

There is a very fair supply of watermelons at the present time, and the market is a little easier. The melons are coming from Florida and Georgia. The first California canteloupes were received this week, and the prices are likely to decline from this time forward. Up to the present time they have been coming from Mexico. The shipments which were received this week consisted of the fancy, high grade brands, and are worth from $7 to $9 per crate. The Mexicans were selling at from $5 to $7 per crate.

Red and black raspberries are one of the new features of the market. They are coming from the South in twenty-four pint cases, and are selling at from $2.25 to $2.50 per case. During the next week or two the raspberries will take the place of the strawberries on the market to a great extent. The strawberry season is nearing an end, the Wisconsin crop now being on the market. The supply is very limited, and the price is running higher than it was for the Southern berries.

Gooseberries are also on the market, but the supply is unreliable, and only occasional shipments are received. The supply of Florida, Indian river pineapples is exceptionally good at the present time, and the quality was never better. The pineapples seem to be of a very high grade this season, and the crop was a large one. The price is reasonable, and probably as low as it ever was on the Duluth market.

This is another fruit that the dealers are advising the housekeepers to buy at once, if they wish a supply for preserving, as the price is not likely to be lower or the quality better.

The orange market continues firm, and the supply seems to be very limited. Some Mediterranean sweet oranges are now on the market, and the shipments from California consist almost entirely of late Valencia. The price is higher than it has been for several months. The lemon market is also very firm, and it is believed that a spell of hot weather would send the price soaring again as it did last summer, when lemons touched the high water mark for years.

New harvest apples are on the market at the present time. They are early, green varieties from Southern Illinois, and are good for cooking purposes only. The old crop of apples is practically cleaned out, but the new crop will be plentiful for several weeks to come.

The old potatoes are practically out of the market, and the trade has gone over to the new crop, almost entirely. The prices took a break this week, and new potatoes are now selling at from $1.15 to $1.25 per bushel. It is hard to tell what the market conditions will be next week, as it depends largely on what the shipments from the South are.

The price of what old potatoes are left on the market has declined, and they are being cleaned out at from 60 to 65 cents a bushel.

There is little change in the market on other kind of vegetables. All new green stuff is plentiful, and the price has declined slightly on lettuce, wax beans and green peas.

It is estimated that there is hardly 100 pounds of fresh fish in Duluth stores at the present time. It has been very difficult to secure and fresh fish during the last week or two, in account of the storms on Lake Superior, which have kept the fishermen from going out. The supply is very limited, and it is practically out of the market temporarily. What there is selling at 8 cents a pound, and prices are unchanged from last week.

BRITAINS CLOTHED BY CONTRACT NOW.

London, June 22.—Clothing by contract is the latest worry-making item. British may now be supplied with suits, hats, gloves and hosiery for fixed amount payment in installments if desired. A West end clothiers' company offers to keep a man well dressed for $10 a year. This may sound absurdly high, but it is very cheap in London on the other side. The supply includes one evening suit, one frock coat suit, one cut-away coat suit, one sack suit, one flannel suit and two pairs of trousers.

GIRL SLID DOWN PORCH POLE AND ELOPED.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 22.—Miss Agnes Walsh, one of Cheyenne's most beautiful girls, and Guy Connel, chief clerk in the signal service department of the Union Pacific here, eloped and went to North Platte, where they were married.

HAS TWO HUSBANDS, AND SHE IS ONLY SEVENTEEN.

New York, June 22.—Not yet 18 years old, pretty little Laura Schofield-Licht has two husbands. She is not as beautiful as a painting, but she is a good girl, and would seem to prove, for she swore a heart-felt oath in the court at White Plains that she would be happy until she had no husband at all. She is in a fair way to attain single blessedness, for while she is suing to be rid of husband No. 1, a suit has been brought by husband No. 2.

She was Edna See of White Plains, a blonde and kittenishly irresponsible child of 13 when first she became able to write "Mrs." before her name. That's not saying that she did assume the matrimony title. She says that on Dec. 13, 1905, on an unlucky day of the month she was married to a certain Schofield at Port Chester. The wedding was regarded by her more as a "black" than as a binding and solemn matter. After the ceremony, she testified, she "got scared" and went straight home to her family. The memory almost faded from her mind, and she concluded that it "didn't count."

She was married really—truly, last fall to a man named Licht, and she heard about No. 1 he was disturbed, and taking a good deal of advice in the matrimonial line of that state to have his marriage annulled as illegal from the beginning. Then Mrs. Schofield-Licht got Lawyer Benjamin Taylor of White Plains to sue for annulment of Schofield, right, title and interest in her.

Nobody appeared before Judge Goetz to oppose her suit, and the court said that after he had read over the testimony he would give a decision.

SWINDLER WORKS GAME

Fleeces a Local Retail Feed Dealer Out of $96.

Buys Oats Under False Pretenses and Sells Them.

One of the cleverest and boldest swindlers that has been perpetrated on a Duluth business man in some time was worked on a local retail dealer in grain and feed, whose name is withheld for the reason that he will not take any active steps toward bringing the swindler to justice, but will credit his loss to experience.

Early during the present month the dealer was approached by a well-dressed man with a business-like air who represented himself to be the buyer for a local concern that has a large number of teams and buys its barn and stable supplies in large quantities.

The stranger said he desired to buy 200 bushels of oats and offered to go along with the dealer to see that they were delivered all right. Together they followed the loads of oats to the barn of the concern the stranger claimed to represent. To the barn boss the stranger remarked he had bought two loads of oats for the company, and desired to know where they were to be unloaded. The barn boss was somewhat at a loss to understand the transaction, but, thinking it was all right, he told the teamster to dump the grain on the sidewalk in front of the barn. The dealer then returned to his place of business satisfied that he had made a good sale.

About an hour later the stranger appeared at the barn and telling the barn boss that he had made a mistake, that the oats should have been delivered at West Duluth, he removed the grain by means of some teams hired at one of the street corners and took it to a local livery stable. To the proprietor the stranger represented that he had sold out a carload of oats, except 300 bushels, and offered to dispose of that remaining at about four cents under the market price. The story was plausible, and the opportunity of making a good deal in oats was not to be passed by lightly. The liveryman bought the grain.

The stranger disappeared and has not since been seen or heard from. A few days ago the dealer in feed sent a bill of $96 to the concern which the oats were first delivered, and the subsequent repudiation of the company of any deal in oats led to an investigation with the disclosure of the swindle worked on the dealer.

The dealer sustains a loss of $96 on the oats, the swindler is absent, and the oats were first delivered, and the subsequent repudiation of the company of any deal in oats led to an investigation with the disclosure of the swindle worked on the dealer.

He beat them over the head until they were unconscious and came to the city to get police assistance. While he was gone the men disappeared.

GEN. CHAFFEE TO SAW LUMBER FOR PANAMA.

Mexico City, Mexico, June 22.—Maj. Gen. Chaffee (retired), who bought 120,000 acres of forest land in the state of Guerrero on his recent visit to Mexico, is arranging through his representative here to build large saw mills on the property and to supply lumber for the Panama canal.

JILTED IN YOUTH, HID HER FACE FOR 27 YEARS.

Winfield, Kan., June 22.—Friends of Miss Della Gero have reported to the oldtimers here that she has just died at her home at Atxell. Her death has served to bring forth the mystery in her life. Although nearly fifty years old, no one knew her face for the last twenty-seven years. She was jilted in her youth by a young man, and since then she has refused to see any of her old friends and acquaintances.

ATTACHES OF FRENCH MINISTER HAVE IT EASY.

Paris, June 22.—Interesting facts have come to light with regard to the duties of the attaches of the French minister, which go to show that they are altogether in the nature of a shrewdness. Taking one ministry for example, it is found that one attaché does nothing but open the minister's letters, a second receives visitors, a third attends the debates in the chamber, and another performs the same duty in the senate, another does the minister's shopping, another is in attendance upon the minister's wife and daughters, another represents the minister at banquets, and the first day and promptly ordered it stopped. There is no rule against it in the department, and the men have protested.

SILENCE CURE FOR NERVOUS WOMEN.

London, June 22.—The silence cure is now prescribed for nervous women. It consists in setting apart one hour of the day in which the patient must not utter a word.

A well known nerve specialist says: "The woman with nerves talks twice as quickly as her more phlegmatic sister. If nervous women can be induced to hold their tongues, and allow not only the body but the brain to rest for an hour a day, we shall hear less about neuralgia and nervous breakdown." The silence cure is advocated as a preservative of beauty as well as of nerves, as it is calculated to delay the advent of wrinkles.

BARS CIGARETTES FROM ENGINE HOUSE.

Boston, June 22.—There is to be no more cigarette smoking in the Mason street fire station. Capt. Madison, who has just taken command of engines 26 and 35, has issued orders that it must stop. Capt. Madison wants to make his reasons public. But there is a rule of the department prohibiting all three men from talking to the newspapers without permission. Capt. Madison asked for this permission, but it has been refused. Capt. Madison assumed command of the Mason street station three days ago. He noticed men smoking cigarettes the first day and promptly ordered it stopped. There is no rule against it in the department, and the men have protested.

"INVENTORS"

A good cigar is worth knowing about. "Inventors" are good—always good—because they're the product of intelligence and experience and carefulness. The finest quality of selected Havana leaves are carefully blended together to secure the right aroma. Then careful hand rolling to make them smoke evenly and smoothly. That's the "Inventors" process of making. One trial and you'll feel you've found a new friend. Next time—try it.

AWFUL PSORIASIS 35 YEARS

Terrible Scaly Humor in Patches
All Over the Body—Skin Cracked and Bleeding—Itching Unbearable—Cured by Cuticura in Thirty Days at Cost of $4.75.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA

"I was afflicted with psoriasis for thirty-five years. It was in patches over my body. I used three cakes of Soap, six boxes of Cuticura Ointment and two bottles of Cuticure Resolvent. I bathed with the Soap, applied the Ointment once a day, and took the Resolvent as directed. In thirty days I was completely cured, and I think permanently, as it was about five years ago.

"The psoriasis first made its appearance in red spots, generally forming a circle, leaving in the center a spot about the size of a silver dollar of sound flesh.
In a short time the affected circle would form a heavy dry scale of a white silvery appearance and would gradually drop off. To remove the entire scales by bathing or using oil to soften them the flesh would be perfectly raw, and a light discharge of bloody substance would come out. That scaly crust would form again in twenty-four hours. It was worse on my arms and limbs, although it was in spots all over my body, also on my scalp. If I let the scales remain too long without removing by bath or otherwise, the skin would crack and bleed. I suffered intense itching, worse at night after getting warm in bed, or blood warm by exercise, when it would be almost unbearable.

"To sum it all up, I would not go through such another ordeal of affliction for thirty-five years for the State of Kansas. (signed) W. M. Chidester, Hutchinson, Kan., April 20, 1905."

MORTALITY STATISTICS

Issued for the Five Calendar Years 1900

The Average Annual Death Rate Was 16.6
Per 1,000.

Washington, June 22.—The bureau of the census has just published a report presenting mortality statistics for the United States for the five calendar years 1900 to 1904. This report was prepared under the supervision of the late William A. King, chief statistician for vital statistics.

The annual compilation of statistics of mortality was authorized by the act of congress establishing the permanent census office. The statistics, however, do not cover the entire country, but, in accordance with the provisions of law, are restricted to what is termed the "registration area." This area comprises those states and cities which have laws requiring the registration of deaths and possess records affording satisfactory and comparable data. In 1904 it included 11 states and 23 cities, which had at least 8,000 population in 1900. The 11 registration states are Connecticut, District of Columbia, Indiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan,
New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York,
Rhode Island, and Vermont; the 23 registration cities include, in addition to the cities in the 11 registration states, a considerable number which are in non-registration states.

These states and cities, composing the registration area, included in 1904 a population of 2,360,000, or only a fraction more than two-fifths of the estimated population of the United States. For the remainder of the United States we have at present no mortality statistics which are sufficiently reliable and complete to be included in this report. The registration area, however, is gradually increasing in extent, as the various states and cities come to realize the importance of having adequate registration laws and of effectively enforcing them.

The number of deaths reported in the registration area in 1904 was 839,200, and the death rate per 1,000 of population was 17.6. In 1901 the rate declined to 16.6, and in 1902 to 16.1. The rate increased in 1903 to 16.2 and in 1904 to 16.7.
The average annual rate for the five years was 16.6 per 1,000.

The average annual death rate in the registration area of the United States was less than the rate in any of the foreign countries specified except Norway and Sweden.

The average annual death rate in the registration states was 17.6 per 1,000 in the cities of 8,000 or more population in 1900 and 14.5 per 1,000 in rural districts, while as the term is here used, includes everything outside these cities, Rhode Island and the District of Columbia. The death rate was as high in the rural districts as in the cities.

New Jersey, New York, and Maine, is largely due to the fact that residents of rural districts when critically ill resort to the hospitals and institutions in the cities for treatment, and that the deaths occurring in such cases are registered in the cities, thus increasing the urban mortality.

The average annual rates were lowest in New Hampshire, N. H. (10.4); New York, N. Y. (10.4); and St. Paul, Minn. (10.4). The highest rates were in Maine, Me. (23.2); and St. Paul, Minn. (23.2).

The average annual death rate for the five years was twenty or more per 1,000 in the Southern states and contain a large percentage of colored population. The death rate for which, in general, largely exceeds that for the whites.

Tuberculosis of the lungs and pneumonia were by far the leading causes of death.

The average annual mortality from tuberculosis of the lungs, or consumption, in 1904, was 17.6 per 1,000 of population. It is gratifying to note that since 1880, when it was 25.4, this decline has been shown a marked decline since 1880, when it was 25.4. This decline is due to the fact that the mortality from this disease in the registration area is in Ireland, Germany, Norway, Spain and Switzerland, but higher than in England and Wales, Scotland, the Netherlands, Belgium and Italy.

Of the whole number of deaths from tuberculosis of the lungs 53.6 per cent, or more than half, occurred between the ages of 20 and 40. The majority of the deaths were among males, the proportion being 58 males to 41 females. The number of deaths was greatest in March and April and least in September.

In the registration states the mortality in the registration area was much greater in the cities than in the rural districts. Taking each registration state as a unit, the mortality from this disease was highest in Rhode Island, New York and New Jersey, and lowest in Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire.

The average annual mortality from consumption was higher in Denver than in any other city in the registration area.
This fact is easily explained by the fact that the majority of the deaths in the later stages of the disease having been suffered by residents who resorted to that locality in the winter months.

Excluding Denver, the rates were highest in New Orleans, Louisiana,
St. Paul, Buffalo and Minneapolis.
Pneumonia was second in the average annual causes of death, the average annual rate being 14.9 per 1,000 of population. The death rate from this disease in the registration area of the United States is considerably greater than in England and Wales, and Scotland.

Of the deaths from pneumonia nearly 27 per cent more were males than females. A greater number of deaths occurred at ages under 5 than at any other age period. The majority of these deaths occurred under 1 year of age.
After the age of 5 years the greatest number of deaths occurred at ages between 60 and 80. The number of deaths from pneumonia was greatest in March, February and January, and least in August.

In the registration states the mortality from pneumonia was about 50 per cent higher in the cities than in the rural districts. Taking each registration state as a unit, the average annual rates were highest in New York, Rhode Island and Vermont, and lowest in Michigan, Indiana and Connecticut.

For the principal cities the average annual rates were highest in Allegheny,
Pittsburgh, New York and Kansas City,
Mo., and lowest in St. Paul, Minneapolis,
St. Joseph, Mo., and Toledo.

Among the leading causes of death, diarrhea and enteritis was third, the average annual mortality from this disease being 12.1 per 1,000 of population.
Over 80 per cent of the deaths from these diseases were deaths of children under 5 years of age, and over 85 per cent of children under 1 year of age.
The deaths of males and females were about equal, the proportion being 125 males to 121 females in every 1,000 deaths. Over 60 per cent of the deaths occurred during the months of July, August and September.

In the registration states the average annual death rate was 16.6 per 1,000 of population, or only a fraction more than two-fifths of the estimated population of the registration states as a unit, the average mortality from these diseases was highest in New York and Maine, and lowest in Vermont and Indiana.

For the principal cities the rate was highest

In Fall River. It was high also in Pittsburgh, Providence, New York and Allegheny.

Heart disease was fourth among the leading causes of death, the average annual rate in the registration area for the five years being 12.0 per 1,000 of population. Over 75 per cent of the deaths from this disease occurred at 65 years and over. It is noticeable that the mortality from heart disease is steadily increasing, the death rate advancing from 11.2 per 1,000 in 1900 to 13.4 in 1904.

Another cause of death with an increasing rate was cancer, the rate for which increased from 6.2 per 1,000 in 1900 to 7.9 in 1904. A comparatively small proportion of the deaths from cancer occurred at ages under 25 years. The deaths of females far exceeded those of males, the proportion being 62 females to 38
males in 1,000 deaths.

The death rate from cancer in the registration area of the United States was less than in England and Wales, Scotland, Germany, Norway, the Netherlands and Switzerland, but was greater than in Ireland, Hungary, Spain and Italy. It was higher in the cities than in the rural districts, but this is due partly to the fact that residents of rural districts in the last stages of the disease seek the hospitals in the cities for treatment.

In the registration states the average annual death rates from cancer were highest in Maine and Vermont, and lowest in Indiana and New Jersey.

The average annual death rate from cancer in the registration area was 6.2 per 1,000 of population. Of the ten leading causes of death, cancer alone shows a higher. The total number of deaths in the registration area was 1,000,000. Excluding the District of Columbia, the highest average rates in the registration states were those for Indiana and Maine; and the lowest for New Jersey.

The mortality from typhoid fever was greater in the registration area than in the rural districts. The rate being more than 120 in each year, in which it was very slightly greater than in the cities.
Among the large cities the greatest mortality from this disease occurred in Pittsburgh, Pa., the rate being more than 120 in each year. The next highest rate was in the city of St. Paul, Minn., the rate being 110 in each year. The mortality from typhoid fever was also excessively high in the registration states of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Washington. The average annual rate was more than 100 in each of these cities.
The mortality was greater in many of the smaller cities and in the rural districts of certain counties in the registration states than in the larger cities.

CAPTAIN IS DISPUTED

Witnesses Say Holland Was Not Near Bridge Car.

The complaint that Capt. J. T. Lennon of the steamer Robert Holland has made concerning the bridge car crossing his bows has stirred up quite a little contention and up to date the car operator, Robert Burns, seems to have the best of the argument so far as the testimony of witnesses is concerned. Burns claims that it is his policy and that of all of the car operators, in fact, to never start the car after a boat has passed the ends of the canal piers entering the canal. This rule, he asserts, was followed on Wednesday as usual and he further says that he had landed his car and had the gates open for the passengers before the Holland passed under the bridge. He names several witnesses who were on the car at the time to substantiate his statement.

Another important witness is G. A. stationed in the government engineer's station on the government engineer's building beside the bridge. Mr. Taylor says that the Holland was not nearer than 150 or 175 feet from the car while it was crossing the canal. He is of the opinion that the vessel was more than the required 50 feet from the bridge when the car started over. Five hundred feet is the regulation distance. The vessel was going unusually fast, so that her bows would be under sufficient headway to keep from colliding with an out-bound boat.

Two Board of Trade men who were crossing at the time say that the car was made the first payment on the property and go ahead with some heavy mining work. The officers of the company will be chosen tonight or tomorrow. On the # ANNIVERSARY SALE!

Yesterday was The Columbia's first anniversary in Duluth. The advertising man asked the general manager if he were willing to sacrifice some profits earlier in the season than usual, in order to have an Anniversary Sale in honor of our first birthday.

He took kindly to the suggestion in spite of the fact that he is obliged to purchase new goods every day to keep our stocks in trim and although the trend of wholesale prices is still upward.

SUIT SALE $10

We've selected from our suit stock about 150 suits of all kinds and descriptions, including fancy worsteds and chevrons—also some blacks. These suits were $12.50, $15, $18 and $20—and we offer them tomorrow for $10.

Some of them are this spring's productions and some are not. The latter are the best values in the way of material, but are a trifle shorter than this spring's cut. However, a saving of $5 to $10 on a suit may reconcile you with an inch abbreviation in the cloth.

$5.00 Summer is just beginning—here are about fifty outing suits from last season. Mostly $15 ones. Now all marked $5.00. The trousers alone are worth that price. To this lot of outing suits we have added and will slaughter at $5.00, every odd suit in the house, which is not of this season's vintage. Mostly small sizes and suits which without exaggeration were originally priced as high as $20 per.

Cravenette Coats.

$10 for nearly fifty of this season's Coats—reduced in price for this anniversary sale. Four different shades of gray.

Pants at $2.98 Peg top Trousers for good dressers and summery days. A special purchase enables us to save you money on these.

$2.50 Hats at $1.90.

A hat we had especially made for us, and which we guarantee to be the equal of any $2.50 hat in Duluth. We have them in soft and stiff hats.

Shirts at 50c Special values—and not to be compared with the usual cheap 50-cent shirts sold in Duluth. None of them are made like ours. Precious, madras and chevrons, with soft bosoms and most of them with cuffs attached.

Fine Underwear Reduced in Price—On the bargain table are a few lots of fine Underwear—incomplete lots as far as sizes are concerned and to be closed out at one-third and one-half off regular prices

CASS LAKE DECORATED

In Honor of Tournament of Northern Minnesota Firemen.

Ely Won Prize for Best Appearing Company in Parade.

Cass Lake, Minn., June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The twelfth annual tournament of the Northern Minnesota Firemen's Association opened Wednesday. The weather in the early part of the morning threatened to spoil the good time, but later in the day the heavy clouds passed over and the sun made its appearance, making the day an ideal one. The Sparta and Eveleth firemen arrived on Tuesday, bringing with them a large crowd of spectators. The Ely team made its appearance early Wednesday morning, and later in the day Virginia, Park Rapids, Deer River, Grand Rapids and Bemidji teams arrived. The firemen were met at the station by the reception committee and local firemen and headed by the Cass Lake band they were escorted to their headquarters. The town is most beautifully decorated with native trees, flags, bunting, arches and colors of all the different teams. Every business place in the village presents a beautiful appearance. Over $5,000 has been spent on decoration of streets and business houses. The usual force of fire-fighters, firemen and beggars are in evidence.

Wednesday was taken up by the reception of members of the association and visiting firemen. In the evening the annual meeting of the association took place in the firemen's bower. The meeting was called to order by President Leamon. Mayor Gilbert of Cass Lake was called upon to deliver an address of welcome to the visitors, and in an eloquent and pleasing manner he gave the visitors a cordial welcome. He concluded his address by saying: "The bars are let down, the gates are thrown open and the town is yours. Dr. Winship of Park Rapids made the response stating that the welcome was received with as much cordiality as it had been given. Following this, the executive committee held their annual meeting, and then the bower was turned over to the dancers and until early in the morning the lovers of the popular pastime tripped the light fantastic.

The second day of the tournament was ushered in yesterday with the weather was not so pleasant. All day long the weather was drizzly and the heavy clouds continued to send forth rain. Notwithstanding this, the firemen turned out with determination to make the day a gala one, but the rain intervened and spoiled much of the anticipated pleasure. At 10 a. m. the train arrived from Bemidji, carrying the Bemidji fire department, Bemidji band and several hundred enthusiastic citizens. The committee, Cass Lake band and visiting firemen were at the station to greet them. With the weather too disagreeable to remain outside, the firemen met at the bower and surely a more jovial bunch of good fellows never gathered together. One by one the chiefs of the different departments were hoisted high in the air and amid loud applause they were carried about and in behalf of Mrs. O'Neil appeared and in behalf of Cass Lake he apologized for the presentation of such gloomy weather, but assured the visitors that it was not entirely the fault of the Cass Lake citizens and promised that Providence had caused the water to fall in order to prevent the firemen from being burnt to death from their arduous duty. At 1:30 p. m. the annual firemen's parade would take place at 1:30 p. m. and the parade began. Judge Lange acted as leader, followed by Mayor Gilbert of Cass Lake and Mayor Carter of Bemidji, the officers of the association, Bemidji band, Park Rapids firemen, Bemidji firemen, Eveleth firemen, Cass Lake band, Ely, Virginia, Sparta and Grand Rapids firemen, Swiss Entertainers band and Cass Lake firemen. Ely was awarded the prize of $5 for being the best appearing company, and Bemidji the prize of $9 for having the largest number of men in line. Following the parade, Mayor Gilbert of Cass Lake delivered an oration, in which he cordially welcomed the visitors from our neighboring cities. The response was given by Mayor Carter of Bemidji, who most gratefully thanked the people of Cass Lake for the hospitality shown. The championship hose race, which was to take place yesterday was postponed until Friday owing to the inclemency of the weather and the wet condition of the track. The ball game between Bemidji and Walker was also postponed. The selection of a place for holding the tournament of 1907 will be decided upon before the meet is over. Ely and Park Rapids are the only candidates thus far mentioned.

DINING CAR CHEF RAVES AND FIGHTS WHOLE CREW.

Red Wing, Minn., June 22.—There was a row on board the Milwaukee passenger train arriving here at 10 a. m. yesterday, which required the entire train crew to quell. William Doage, the colored chef of the dining car, became a raving maniac, presumably from drinking a bottle of whisky, and the conductor, brakemen and volunteers fought with him for dear life in the aisle of the cars. The Red Wing police were telegraphed to meet the train, and Doage was lodged in jail here. He is now entirely rational, and says his conductor insulted him, and he therefore drowned his sorrow in whiskey.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

A Young Girl Living Near Carney Probably Fatally Burned.

Menominee—Adelia Peterson, a young girl, residing near Carney, was terribly burned by the explosion of a can of kerosene. She was starting a fire and carried the can to the stove, thinking the fire had gone out. Her clothing was burned off and she suffered severely. When she was up several hundred feet in the air, she fell and landed on the ground. She was left clinging to a small quarter-inch rope that is used to cut and liberate the parachute. A sudden gust of wind would have broken this and dashed the woman to her death. She could not lose the parachute, but simply clung to the slender cord until the balloon cooled and dropped, a mile away.

Fish wardens are active in this vicinity and numerous arrests are being made for catching or selling fish under legal weight and size. Thomas J. Pritchard, a well-known fisherman, and Frank Seldi, manager of a large fish company, were taken into court and paid $25 fine and costs for handling small fish. State Warden Chapman appeared with the prosecution.

Ironwood—Sam McCrossen, a well-known resident of Ironwood, was found to be suffering from an attack of smallpox recently and was removed to the pest house. The case is a very light one, and as prompt measures were taken for the isolation, there is little apprehension of a spread of the disease.

Moran—The 14th mill owned and operated by Herman Simpfendorfer at Moran, Mackinac county, burned to the ground at an early hour in the morning, together with about 100,000 feet of lumber, saws, etc. The loss of the mill is seriously felt by farmers, who have had the opportunity afforded by it to market balsam and other non-merchandise lumber. The actual loss is estimated at about $10,000.

Paris, June 22.—Ability to scream saved the lives of several babies at Billancourt, a suburb of Paris. Penon, passing by the creche here yesterday heard a chorus of terrified infants. The screaming was kept up for hours until finally someone entered the place and found fifteen children under 2 years old, the sole occupants. All were screaming distressfully. It was learned they had been alone for twenty-four hours and were hungry and helpless.

The creche was established by Abbe Biagiani, who lately upon entering the house found that the nuns had died suddenly. He was shocked and that he fell dead. The care of the creche then devolved upon a philanthropic, but infirm woman 80 years of age, a relative of the abbe. She was so overcome by distress and overwhelming responsibility that on the day of the train crew she died, leaving the infants to their fate. The babies are in a foundling hospital.

MAN'S BODY IS BLOWN THROUGH SHOP ROOF.

Butte, Mont., June 22.—A dispatch from Virginia City brings word of the killing of Dan Carroll, formerly a Butte miner, in the mountains as the result of a valuable contract in Mrs. J. S. Eardley's midst and stirred up no end of trouble between her and Thomas Pritchard of Flushing.

Mrs. Eardley, who lives in Brooklyn, sold six lots in Flushing. Mr. Pritchard, Mr. Pritchard paid a deposit and Mrs. Eardley signed a contract agreeing to surrender the lots to him for a certain price.

Within the last four days prices of Flushing property have jumped up as much as 25 or 30 per cent in one day. "I want to keep my lots," said Mrs. Eardley to Pritchard yesterday.

Mr. Pritchard handed her the precious paper, and in the twinkling of an eye she had bitten a big piece out of it. Mr. Pritchard grabbed her throat. Then came a fierce struggle between hand muscles and throat muscles, and throat muscles won, for Mrs. Eardley swallowed a large chunk of the contract.

"I'll have the law on you," he cried. "Poo!" answered she. "I've got the evidence in my midst, and I'd like to see the court that can find out anything about it." And there the matter rests.

COWBOY ROPES CULPRIT FOR PUZZLED MARSHAL.

Buffalo, Wyo., June 22.—Marshal Klipp had an interesting experience with a prisoner. He arrested John Cowie, a scissor grinder, and the fellow got away and returned a small stream. The marshal followed and commanded Cowie to come out.

"Come in and get me if you want me so bad," was the rejoinder. Klipp called his cowboy to his assistance, and with the first whirl of his lariat, the rope caught Cowie and dragged him in triumph to the bank, where Klipp nabbed him.

The many imitations of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve that are now before the public prove it the best. Ask for DeWitt's. Good for burns, scalds, chafed skin, eczema, tetter, cuts, bruises, boils and piles. Sold by all druggists.

GREAT CAUTION TAKEN IN SELECTION OF THE REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

Speculation Rife as to Chairmanship of the Committee.

Democrats Get Encouraging Reports of Governor Johnson's Strength.

Senator Somerville Decides to Quit Politics in the Future.

St. Paul, June 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Great caution is being taken by the Republican state candidates to choose members for the state central committee, who will be persona grata to all portions of the state. Dunn's sudden and impetuous choice of his managers has taught the candidates a lesson, and they think that half the battle will be won if the right men are chosen to manage the next campaign. Speculation as to the probable choice is still going on, and no one seems to have been able to pick anyone for a certainty. It is thought that C. H. Warner will be selected as secretary to the committee, and not chairman, despite the fact that he was closely associated with Cole's campaign. Hennepin county is not after the chairmanship, and its leaders think that it should be given to that county in part payment for starting the stampede for Cole.

Heatwoole suggests Jacobson for chairman and Haiden for secretary, in the interests of harmony, and a strong ## OFFERS TO PAY 50 PER CENT Best German Insurance Company of Peoria, Ill., Can Do.

San Francisco, June 23.—The Examiner today says: The German Insurance company, after sounding a number of creditors on the subject of a 50 per cent compromise, has closed its Pacific coast agency, resigned from the underwriters' adjusting bureau and retired to Peoria, Ill.

The German of Peoria was organized under the laws of Illinois in 1878, with a capital of $200,000. Now that the San Francisco conflagration has come and gone, the company has a loss of over $1,000,000 to face, with a capital and surplus aggregating only $300,000.

Charles Cremer, the secretary, came here and announced that he and his brother, B. Cremer, the company's president, had arranged to pay sufficient money to make a settlement on a basis of fifty cents on the dollar.

The compromise proposition was not a success, so Secretary Cremer left for the East and announced withdrawal of his company from the Coast.

Peoria, Ill., June 23.—President B. Cremer of the German Insurance company of this city, says that Charles Cremer is on his way home, but the adjusters are to remain in San Francisco to adjust every loss and to pay for it in cash. They are settling every claim in full for the fire loss, but not the earthquake damage, for which "we cannot recover from the reinsurance companies. The German has unlimited means to pay all its obligations and carry on its business as heretofore, whether we continue to do business in California or not."

PEOPLE AGAIN PANIC STRICKEN

By Rumors of the Revival of Excesses at Bialystok.

St. Petersburg, June 23.—Dispatches from Bialystok report that the citizens there are panic stricken owing to unconfirmable rumors that the excesses will be revived today. There is a general display of icons and crosses before the houses, to protect the inhabitants from attack, patrols are to be seen everywhere, and strict martial law is enforced. Three men, two of whom were Christians, were charged with failing to obey orders to halt.

In St. Petersburg a sergeant of police was killed last night in the center of an armed revolutionary organization.

MRS. MCKINNEY FOUND GUILTY.
Peoria, Ill., June 23.—Mrs. Mary L. McKinney of Alton, charged with cruelty to her ward, Stella Grady, after two weeks' trial, was found guilty, and was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. She was found to be insane, and must be committed to the asylum at Chester, Ill.

HOLD THEIR FIRST LEVEE

King Haakon and Queen Maud Receive at the Palace.

Col. Graves Presents a Number of Americans to Rulers.

Trondhjem, June 23.—King Haakon and Queen Maud held their first levee and the palace again was the town's center of interest. All the special embassies, statesmen, officials and other prominent persons attended. The American special ambassador, Charles H. Graves, with his staff and the ladies of the American party, were present. Mr. Graves presented Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bryan, Mrs. Marshall Field, Mrs. Ed- dy, Mrs. Meade, Miss Eddy of Chicago, Mrs. Slater and Miss Gwynn of Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Meyer of New York.

The sun shone warmly and Trondhjem was made brilliant by the uniformed and brightly costumed assemblage, presenting an exceedingly attractive scene. Arrangements have been made for the king's coronation on Monday. Dr. Daa of Christiania will on that occasion present to the king a congratulatory address, and the Norwegian consul at Chicago, F. G. Gadell will give the king a portfolio containing music, poems and drawings in behalf of the Norwegians of that city. King Haakon probably will make one response to the Norwegian-American delegations which number about a dozen. The great bulk of the Norwegians who came to Norway from America, ostensibly about the coronation, but in reality to attend the coronation, did not come to Trondhjem, but, instead, scattered to their former homes in various parts of the country. In any case, the coronation festivities are not confined to Trondhjem but are universal throughout Norway.

The crowd which came to see the king and queen crowned is already breaking up, but the special embassies will remain here until Tuesday or Wednesday. The formal leave-taking of the embassies will take place Tuesday. The first to depart left here last night, and to-day several foreign excursion steamers have loaded their anchors and steamed down the fjord. The formal program ends Wednesday with an excursion to the islands. King Haakon and Queen Maud will remain at Trondhjem until Emperor William comes here, July 8.

VEXED QUESTION COMES UP AGAIN

Are the Philippines a
States or Not?

Albany, N. Y., June 23.—Deputy Attorney General Graham appeared before Justice Fitts in the supreme court today and asked the court to determine whether the Philippines and islands were a part of the United States within the meaning of the insurance law of the state of New York, which makes it compulsory for foreign insurance companies to make a deposit with the state superintendent of insurance of this state for the protection of their policyholders in the United States.

The question has arisen through the effort of the Balaize Insurance company of Basel, Switzerland, to withdraw its deposit of $200,000 from this state on the ground that it has ceased to write insurance in the continental United States, but Supt. Kelsey of the state insurance department has refused to permit such withdrawal as the company is still doing business in the Philippine Islands and he wishes the state courts to determine whether the policyholders in that country are included in the class for whose protection the fund is deposited. The supreme court of the United States held that it is not a foreign country within the meaning of certain of the United States statutes, and that it is not within the United States within certain other provisions of the law, but the state court now is passing on this question as applied to the statutes of this state.

PYTHIAN HOME TO BUILD AT DECATUR.

Decatur, Ill., June 23.—The committee on the location of the $250,000 Pythian home has selected Decatur. The choice was announced today. Three places were considered—this city, Bloomington and Alton.

SEWED UP HIS HEART.
London, June 23.—An extraordinary operation has been performed at the West Kent hospital on a Cambridge undergraduate who had been impaled in a fence. Two pieces of bone were driven into his heart, the fall causing a wound of one inch and a half deep. After the removal of the bone sixteen stitches were put in the heart. The patient is doing well.

ONE LOSES; OTHER WINS

House Makes Decision on Cases of Wood and Brooks.

The Former is Unseated;
the Latter Retains Membership.

Washington, June 23.—The house adopted unanimously the report of the committee on elections, No. 1, that Earnest Wood was not elected to membership in the house of representatives in the Fifty-ninth congress, from the Fifteenth congressional district of Missouri, and that Harry Coudry was elected to such membership. There was applause on the Republican side when Coudry placed himself at the bar of the house to take the oath.

The house also adopted a resolution that A. J. Houston was not elected a member of the Fifty-ninth congress from the Second congressional district of Texas. The sitting member, M. L. Brooks, therefore, regained his seat.

The bill prescribing the dues of deputy collectors was passed without debate.

FEVER QUARANTINE IS ENFORCED AT NEW YORK.

New York, June 23.—Quarantine regulations providing for detention of steamship passengers not immune from yellow fever, pursuant to a notice issued on Saturday last by Dr. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, were enforced to day on the arrival of the Ward line steamer Esperanza, from Vera Cruz, Progresso and Havana, having on board 200 passengers, 128 of whom embarked at Havana. Of the passengers from the Cuban port, 126 were sent to Hoffman's island. If the doctors are satisfied they are free of fever germs, they will probably be released Sunday. Among those sent to the island were eighteen Chinese. Passengers embarking at Mexican ports were not detained, as they were not allowed to land at Havana.

THE CHINESE ARE TO PROTECT INTERESTS.

San Francisco, June 23.—The Oakland and San Francisco branch of the Chinese society, Chew Hung Tong, held a meeting in Oakland last Thursday and decided to take steps to protect their members who were insured and suffered loss by fire in this city from unfair treatment at the hands of the insurance companies. The Chew Hung Tong is the largest Chinese secret society in the world, and 100,000 Chinese in this country constitute part of its membership. It is credited with far-reaching influence in all parts of the world.

In proportion to the amount of business they represented before the fire, it is said the Chinese carried in the aggregate more insurance than any other nationality in San Francisco. Their losses amount to several millions of dollars.

MUCK TO BE CONDUCTOR.

TRIED TO GET BAND

To Welcome the Longworths But None Was Available.

Daughter of President and Husband Arrive
at Kiel.

Kiel, Germany, June 23.—Several hundred people assembled at the railroad station today to cheer Congressman Longworth and Mrs. Longworth on their arrival here from London. Lieutenant Commander William L. Howard, the American naval attaché, representing the embassy at Berlin, Frederick W. Whitridge, who was the special ambassador of the United States at the wedding of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain, an old acquaintance, met them at the station, where Mr. and Mrs. Longworth were escorted to the Imperial waiting room so as to escape the attentions of the crowd. Later they entered a carriage, stationed at the private entrance, but the spectators soon perceived this, streamed around the building and cheered the Americans. As they drove off a loud voice called out in English "Welcome to Kiel!" and a woman threw a bouquet which Mrs. Longworth smilingly caught, while Mr. Longworth lifted his hat in acknowledgment of the gift. The travelers were driven to a small hotel standing in the yacht club grounds and overlooking the bay. The stars and stripes flew from a mast in front of the hotel and the manager tried to get a band to play "The Star Spangled Banner," but no musicians were available. Some of the guests of the hotel assembled on the veranda and a number of photographers were busy from the moment Mr. and Mrs. Longworth came in sight until they vanished within the hotel, where they have the best rooms in the house, with a private veranda and a sea view.

MERCHANTS WHO TOOK REBATES

From Freight Brokers
May be Indicted in the Fall.

Kansas City, June 23.—Proceedings may be brought against the shoe and drygoods merchants of St. Louis, Omaha and Kansas City on a charge of accepting rebates from railroads, secured for them by George L. Thomas, the New York freight broker, who, with his chief clerk, J. R. Taggart, were mentioned by Judge Smith McPherson in sentencing Thomas and Taggart. He declared that the rebate-taker was as guilty as the rebate-giver and added:

"I assume that these concerns will be prosecuted against for receiving these unlawful rebates, which can be done either by indictment or information." While not admitting that the merchants, A. S. Van Valkenburgh, the district attorney who prosecuted the cases, intimated that the matter probably would be brought to the attention of the grand jury next fall.

RECAPTURE MONEY AFTER BEING ROBBED.

Kiev, Russia, June 23.—Messengers on the Southwestern railroad, who were carrying $125,000, were attacked yesterday by four robbers, who killed one messenger, wounded a second, seized the money and drove away at a gallop in a cab. Two of the messengers pursued the robbers and wounded the robber who was carrying the money, with the result that he fell from the cab, and the money was recovered.

RUSSIAN PRINCE KILLED.

Ufa, Russia, June 23.—Prince Manveloff, an extensively landed proprietor and a former officer of the guards, was killed on the streets here yesterday. The crime, it is supposed, was committed for political reasons.

MUCK TO BE CONDUCTOR.

VERDICT OF NOT GUILTY

Returned in the Cases of Green and Doremus.

Tried for Irregularities in Buying Postoffice Supplies.

Washington, June 23.—The jury found Green and Doremus not guilty on both charges of conspiracy and bribery. The jury came in at 1:15 p. m. From the start it stood 11 to 1 for acquittal, the one man holding out for the purpose of obtaining certain explanations regarding the evidence. Before the verdict was rendered Justice Gould admonished the people in the courtroom that there should be no demonstrations under penalty of contempt, and in consequence there was none. The court adjourned immediately after which Messrs. Green and Doremus were formally congratulated. Neither Mr. Green nor District Attorney Baker would make any statement. There is one more case against them, but the intention of the government regarding it is not known.

the Fall.

Kansas City, June 23.—Proceedings may be brought against the shoe and drygoods merchants of St. Louis, Omaha and Kansas City on a charge of accepting rebates from railroads, secured for them by George L. Thomas, the New York freight broker, who, with his chief clerk, J. R. Taggart, were mentioned by Judge Smith McPherson in sentencing Thomas and Taggart. He declared that the rebate-taker was as guilty as the rebate-giver and added:

"I assume that these concerns will be prosecuted against for receiving these unlawful rebates, which can be done either by indictment or information." While not admitting that the merchants, A. S. Van Valkenburgh, the district attorney who prosecuted the cases, intimated that the matter probably would be brought to the attention of the grand jury next fall.

TWENTY-FIVE FAMILIES MADE HOMELESS BY THE BURNING OF ELEVATORS

in Chicago Are Destroyed.

Intense Heat Causes Destruction of Adjacent Buildings.

Several Explosions During Fire Shook Surrounding Structures.

Chicago, June 23.—The Mabbatt elevators, "A" and "B," located at Archer avenue and Wood street, owned by George A. Seaver, and occupied by J. S. Templeton, grain broker, were destroyed by fire early today. Both of the buildings were four-story structures, and contained 100,000 bushels of grain. So great was the heat that three adjacent buildings were destroyed and twenty-five families were driven from their homes. Several explosions, which shook the surrounding buildings, followed soon after the fire was discovered. The intense heat warped the rails on the Chicago & Alton railroad, which runs along the side of the burned buildings, and traffic had to be suspended for some time. Later, trains on the Alton road were switched at Cocolith, Ill., to the Santa Fe tracks, and entered and left Chicago over that road. Spontaneous combustion in the "East" room, which was situated in the center of the buildings, is supposed to have been the cause of the fire. The loss to the elevators and their contents is estimated at $350,000.

FAVORABLE
For the Great Intercollegiate Races at Poughkeepsie.

Six Colleges Have Crews
Entered in the Contests.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 23.—The day of the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing association, in which six of the foremost colleges of the East and West will meet in open contest for a test as to aquatic supremacy opened dark and showery this morning, with a promise that intermittent rain might fall throughout the day. The championship race, for varsity eight oared crews is not scheduled for decision until 6 o'clock this evening, so the early weather conditions were not discouraging to the regatta officials. The water over the four miles straight-away course, leading from a point three miles above the railroad bridge which spans the river between Poughkeepsie and Highland to the finish line one mile below that structure was almost as smooth as a mill pond during the morning and the promise of favorable rowing conditions more than offset the gloom cast from frowning clouds.

The first race of the afternoon will be rowed at 4 o'clock at which time the varsity four oared shells will be sent away on a two mile course. Cornell, Columbia, Syracuse and the University of Pennsylvania have entered crews for this race and the boats will have positions from the west bank of the river in the order named. All the rowing lines have been changed this year being pushed further out toward mid-stream in order that each crew may be equally affected by tide and wind conditions. Heretofore the slack water close to the shore has been held a disadvantage when the tide was running out in mid-stream and decided advantage when the tide was at flood. The courses being nearer mid-stream means rougher water than in former years however, if the wind should freshen. Yesterday during the rowing of the afternoon, the lanes were practically untenable. The four oared race was won last year by Yale.

The second race is scheduled for 4:45 o'clock and will be for eight oared crews of freshmen from Columbia, Syracuse, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, the crews having drawn positions in the order named. This race will also be at two miles. It was won last year by Cornell, with Syracuse second.

The varsity race over the four mile course, will be started at near 6 o'clock as possible. The crews which will compete and their positions from the west bank are as follows:

Syracuse 1; Columbia 2; Wisconsin 3; Cornell 4; Georgetown 5; Pennsylvania 6. The varsity was won last year by Cornell, the margin of the victory being something like twenty lengths. Syracuse was second, Georgetown, third, Columbia fourth, Pennsylvania fifth and Wisconsin last. The best time ever made in a varsity race was hung up by Cornell in 1901, 18 minutes 53.5 seconds.

The Cornell crews are decided favorites in all three of today's events with expert opinion almost equally divided among the other crews for second and third positions.

Shortly after noon a brisk breeze from the southeast sprang up and the clouds were swept away. The sun shone out brilliantly and with no increase of wind anticipated by the rowers for the regatta became all that could be desired.

None of the crews had hard practice this morning, the rowing exercise being confined to paddling the shells up stream to the regatta headquarters, one mile above the bridges. Here all the craft were stored under a huge canvas where they will remain until just before it is time to start the races.

Weather continued favorable this afternoon.

DOPED, BEATEN AND ROBBED, SHE SAYS.

South Norwalk, Conn., June 23.—Mrs. James Edward Axtell, known on the stage as "Nestor Nelson," who was leading woman with Edwin Barrett, and who is the divorced wife of Ernest Watson, the millionaire head of the Springfield Car Works, has been rescued for $5,000 by her mother, Mrs. Anne D. Presby, who alleges that Mrs. Axtell visited her, got her drunk, kidnapped her and kept her drugged and in confinement for six months, during which time she stabbed her with a fork, locked her up with vicious bulldogs and generally beat and abused her, besides refusing her medical attention.

Mrs. Presby alleges that while incarcerated at her New York home, her daughter has taken from her property in Stamford, New York, Greenwich and Jamaica, Pa., besides her diamonds and jewels worth $2,000 and her household property. She says these deeds while doped and forced by dire threats. She says that her daughter is a drug fiend, that she carouses all night, and never rises before mid-day.

Mrs. Axtell is only 30 years old and a very beautiful and accomplished woman. She denies that she uses drugs or that she ever stabbed her mother with a fork. She says her mother gave her all her property to keep her in her old age, and that the suit and charges are the work of an old and unscrupulous sister named Alice Stetson Gomers, who resides in New York.

THANKS BILL DEFECTIVE

Bailey Sees Fatal Clause in Meat Inspection Measure.

The Inspection of Stock Usurps the Rights of State.

Washington, June 23.—That there is a fatal defect in the meat inspection provision of the agricultural appropriation bill as it came from the house of representatives, is the opinion of Senator Bailey, as expressed in the senate today, when consideration of the measure was resumed.

He based his criticism on the clause relating to the inspection of stock entering the packing houses, saying that it gives a police supervision that the federal government cannot exercise. He suggested that the provision should be made to read so as to make it unlawful to transport from one state to another beef or pork products that have not been inspected as provided for by law.

Senator Long introduced in the senate a resolution calling upon the attorney general for a statement of all suits brought under the Sherman antitrust law and the interstate commerce law, together with the facts as to their disposition.

When the resolution was presented Senator Foraker moved to amend by calling for the extension of the statement so as to make it cover suits brought under the Elkins law. In support of his amendment Mr. Foraker said he was submitting the statement would show that the Elkins law covers "every evil of which any human being has been complained since the railroad came into existence." He cited a number of decisions under the law, including that handed down in the federal court at Kansas City.

Senator Bailey said that so far as he had been able to determine, some of the parties to the combination alleged had not been convicted while others had not been. He could not understand how one party to a conspiracy could be considered guilty and others not, he said.

"If the verdict will follow this verdict by putting in prison every man who has violated the law they will have done much to vindicate the law."

"Yes, indeed," responded Mr. Foraker. "And that is what I have been contending for the past five or six months." He declared that if forced, the Elkins act would prove a remedy for all rebates and discrimination.

"Yes, indeed," responded Mr. Foraker. "And that is what I have been contending for the past five or six months." He declared that if forced, the Elkins act would prove a remedy for all rebates and discrimination.

After Senator Bacon had presented an amendment asking for details as to the expenditure of $200,000, especially appropriated for the prosecution of cases against the laws mentioned, the resolution was taken up for consideration.

The following bills were passed by the senate today:

Amending section 2871, revised statutes relative to special licenses for vessels from foreign ports; authorizing a poston bridge across the Mississippi river at Prairie du Chien, Wis.; permitting the building of a dam across the Mississippi river in Sherburne county, Minn.

The senate today agreed to send to conference the agricultural appropriation bill containing the meat inspection provision.

IN THE HOUSE.—Washington, June 23.—The sundry civil bill was sent to conference today in the house, the conferees being Mr. Tawney (Minn.), Mr. Smith (Iowa) and Mr. Taylor (Ariz.).

The house adopted the conference report on the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which passed the measure.

The conference report on the post-office appropriation bill was adopted. "The passage of the bill."

The conference report on the bill for the division of the land in the state of Oklahoma was adopted, also the conference on the bill authorizing the sale of lumber from the land reserved for the use of the Menominee Indians in Wisconsin.

Calumet Baking Powder

Under this class the machinery may be of the turbine type and many of the bids specified turbine engines. The lowest bid in this class was that of the Fore River Shipbuilding company, for $3,589,000. This bid is on a ship equipped with turbines.

As it is generally believed that the department will award the contract in Class 1 for both of the ships, interest centered chiefly in the bids of that class. The bid of the Newport News Shipbuilding company, for $3,589,000, was the lowest bid in this class.

The complete list of bids in Class 2 follows:

New York Shipbuilding company with turbine engines, $3,589,000; Fore River Shipbuilding company, $3,589,000; and Drydock company, $3,589,000.

William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine company, $3,589,000; The great vessel, $3,589,000; and Drydock company, $3,589,000.

IN POLITICS.

Those who are interested in politics, locally, are wondering who will be appointed on the Republican state central committee from Duluth. The appointments will be announced next week, it is expected. Thomas H. Marshall, president of the Garfield Republican club, is talked of more in this connection than anyone else, and it is generally believed that he will be made a member of the committee. The chances are there will be fewer members at large this year than has been the case in the past, and this may mean that one instead of two will serve from this district. Each judicial district is entitled to one member, and then there are some chosen at large. The probabilities are that Duluth and this part of Northern Minnesota will be given two members this year. The chances are that Senator Hawkins will be the one taken outside the city, provided he will consent to serve another term. Senator Hawkins and Mille Bunnell are the two men who have been best serving as members of the committee from this district.

W. B. Marshall, who recently returned from California, where he has been for his health, is a possible candidate for register of deeds. It is understood that he would like to receive the nomination at the hands of the Republican party, but that he has not fully determined yet whether to file for the place or not. He has been sounding his friends on the subject. Mr. Marshall was for a time state oil inspector, but aside from this never held political office in Minnesota, although he has always been a hard party worker. He has an unusually large acquaintance. The office of register of deeds is generally looked upon as belonging to the range, and a range man nearly always holds it. This is the one objection offered by his friends to Mr. Marshall's entering the race.

Now that the Republican state convention is a thing of the past, and with all quiet for the time being in the shivaree contest, the political prophets are turning their attention again to the state senatorial election in the Forty-ninth district, which was the center of interest a month or two ago.

P. H. Vail, A. J. Barnes and P. E. Dowling, candidates for senator from the Fifty-first, are all working energetically. When Mr. Barnes of West Duluth first entered the fight everybody thought he would win an easy victory. He has an excellent record, and his position as auditor for several years past has made him better fitted for the higher office. These facts, in connection with his personal popularity and campaigning abilities, made it appear that he would be a successful candidate, and predictions were freely made that he would win out.

Matters ran along thus for a time, as when Mr. Vail's stock began to rise. Stories were told of his great strength on the range, which is the biggest end of the district, and it was said this strength was growing, while that of Messrs. Barnes and Dowling was falling to a corresponding degree. Then the prophets changed their minds about the situation, and said Vail would be the victor instead of the West Duluth man. Men well posted on Fifty-ninth district politics confidently predicted a victory for Vail.

But again the situation has changed, and now Mr. Dowling is receiving the grave consideration of the prophets. He does not say he will win, but asserts that he has an equal chance with the other two. Mr. Dowling is an indefatigable worker, and is carrying on his campaign in a manner that seems to be productive of results. Those who first told how Barnes would be elected, and how Vail would be elected, are now frankly admitting that they do not know anything about the situation, and say it is anybody's fight from now on, for there still is plenty of time for the completion of things to make several changes.

H. G. Skinner of Two Harbors is no longer in the race for the position of representative in the house from the Fifty-first district. A. J. McDevie is the only candidate for representative on the Republican ticket from the district outside of Duluth. Mr. Skinner explains his withdrawal by the fact that he has fled under the homestead laws on valuable lands outside of the Fifty-first district, thus changing his residence. Thus it became necessary for him to drop out of the race or else let go his homestead, and he decided upon the former course.

County Commissioner Kugler is going to have opposition for re-election. A. J. Harker, G. H. Schulenberg and one or two others are being talked of for the office, and there will probably be four or five candidates in the field altogether. Mr. Schulenberg is president of the Retail Grocers' association.

No district judges will be elected in this county next fall. The terms of Judges Cant, Dibell and Ensign all hold over. The regular term is for six years.

GREAT CAUTION TAKEN IN SELECTION OF THE REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

rumor was current at the capital during the early part of the week that Blomquist supported Cole, and that he was turning the trick for Cole by placing the genial state treasurer at the head of the committee, so as to place him in line for a nice appointment when the fray is over.

Cole has always preached the doctrine that one should not promise patronage as bait for votes, but it is generally conceded that Hennepin county has some very substantial promises of a lion's share of the patronage in the event of Cole's election.

Ramsey county can hardly expect to shine in the matter of patronage if Cole is elected. The negative part played at the convention hardly, in the estimation of the leaders, entitles it to any great share in the plums. It is believed that Cole could have swung the delegation if he had promised them several fat offices, but that he was tied up elsewhere, and had no patronage with which to attract their votes. Letters are already pouring into the headquarters of the party here, and the support in exchange for a promise of patronage.

Reports from the various counties, and they were all represented, given at the meeting of the Democratic state central committee, showed that Johnson's popularity is not overestimated by the leaders of the party. Very encouraging reports were brought in from all corners of the state, and when the members left for the homes they were prevalent a very optimistic feeling as to the outcome.

Thomas Girling has been made chairman of the Hennepin county Republican organization with A. A. D. Ruhn as secretary. The alone ought to land Girling on the state central committee if it does not secure for him a place at the head of the committee. The agitation for Girling to head the state central committee is gaining every day.

Will James A. Martin be given a place on the state central committee from the Sixth district? Is a question which is being asked frequently. It is the general opinion that "Jim," as he is called, has been holding a losing hand so frequently of late in the political game that he might prove a hoodoo in the coming campaign. He went under in the Collins fight only to bob up in the Dunn fight, which proved a losing cause again. His latest defeat was at Duluth when he cast his lot with Alvah Perkins in 1896. The terms of the fight, which proved a losing cause again, it looks like the "bench" for Jim during the coming campaign.

Gen. Gus Wiche of Mankato has tendered his resignation as a member of Governor Johnson's staff. The reason assigned is that he expects to take an active part in the coming campaign and feels that it would be indicative for him to remain on the staff when he is a member of the other camp, politically speaking.

The fact that Cole was once an out-and-out Democrat is going to be a rather bitter pill for some of the Republicans of the Sixth district to whom party fidelity means so much. It was noted in this column a week ago that Cole swung over to the Silver Democrats in 1896. At that time the campaign was being waged in the county, and he was located at Mottley in Morrison county, and was prominent in the Democratic campaign. Under the principles as to be made a Democratic committeeman for the county, he came within a few votes of being sent to the senate, but was defeated by Buckman. In 1900 Cole returned to the ranks of the Republican party.

The Crookston Times has this interesting comment to make upon the approaching campaign: "To win, he must wage a campaign that will reconcile the warring elements of the party he represents, and that will demonstrate to the people of the state his ability to discharge the duties of the highest office within their gift. Were the election to take place today, Mr. Cole would doubtless be defeated. But before November he can show the state that he has in him the stuff of which a governor should be made. He will be elected. The campaign will be fought out upon its merits—the merits of Mr. Johnson against the merits of Mr. Cole."

George W. Somerville of Sleepy Eye, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, has given it out that he will renounce politics in the future, and devote all of his time to law practice. Frank Clague of Lambertson will succeed him in the senate. There is much regret expressed over Senator Somerville's withdrawal from the senate. He has been a very useful member of the judiciary committee and has been instrumental in securing some very effective legislation in Minnesota. There was perhaps not a more useful member in the entire senate than George W. Somerville.

Ripley Brown of St. Cloud made an excellent impression on the delegates at the Duluth convention and there is already much talk of him as a gubernatorial possibility in the future.

DESPERATE GIRL TRIES SUICIDE WITH HATPIN.

tempted to commit suicide by stabbing herself in the heart with a hatpin. Owing to the watchfulness of the police matron, she was prevented from inflicting a serious injury upon herself. She is but 19 and was picked up late at night wandering through the streets, and was taken to the police station for safe keeping. She told a story of having been deserted by a man with whom she was in love.

CUMMINS GAINS TWO COUNTIES

Landslide is Felt for the Iowa Governor's Cause.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 23.—Governor Cummins yesterday secured enough delegates in Carroll and Winneshiek counties to insure instructions from the county conventions which meet today. In many precincts the vote was given to one for Cummins.

Recent exposures showing that Ed Hunter and the railroad men are actually managing the Perkins campaign have caused a landslide in almost every county this week to Cummins. In Carroll county Cummins carried 59 to 10. In Winneshiek county he carried 59 to 10. In Carroll county Cummins carried 59 to 10. In Winneshiek county he carried 59 to 10. In Carroll county Cummins carried 59 to 10. In Winneshiek county he carried 59 to 10.

Cummins now has thirty-nine instructed delegates in Carroll county to nine for Perkins. In Winneshiek county he has fifty-two instructed delegates to the county convention to twelve for Perkins.

Allamakee county may not be saved for Perkins. Governor Larrabee, whose favor has been claimed by both Perkins and Cummins, unmasked himself Thursday night in a speech at Waukon and came out squarely against the railroad men and taking steps to prevent resolution asking President Roosevelt to have the proper officials investigate the condition in government offices and workshops and taking steps to prevent tuberculosis within them. The president appointed the surgeon general of the army, the surgeon general of the navy, and the surgeon general of public health to take hold of the matter, and the result is the new step of the government.

CAT WAS CAUSE OF BATTLE.

Insane Woman Attacks Three Officers to Save a Pet.

Iowa City, Iowa, June 23.—An insane woman, Mrs. Frances Turek, armed with a sharp knife, made a desperate fight against three officers yesterday, and imperiled Sheriff Rowland, Deputy Marshal Pudd and Ira Schindler. The woman was torn by the woman's clawlike nails, and when he stumbled she leaped upon him and beat him badly. While he was in her power she did not use the knife, although she repeatedly expressed her intention to do so before and after he escaped.

The battle was the outgrowth of Schindler's pursuit of a trained cat which was found in the woman's house, concealed under a bureau drawer. The cat responded with a meow when the man whistled, and the battle followed. The animal, said to be the largest and most valuable Maltese in Iowa, was finally recovered, and the woman may be sent to the asylum.

BIDS FOR WARSHIPS

Authorized by Congress Opened at the Navy Department.

The Michigan and South Carolina to be Constructed.

Washington, June 23.—Bids were opened today at the navy department on the proposed 16,000-ton battleships Michigan and South Carolina, authorized by an act of congress approved March 3, 1905.

The new battleships are to be 450 feet long, and will have an extreme breadth at the water line of 80 feet, 25 inches. The mean draft at trial displacement is not to exceed 24 feet, 6 inches. The coal bunker capacity of the ships will be 2,200 tons each. Each ship will have a main battery of eight 12-inch breech-loading rifles and two subgun turrets on the center line. Each ship will have a secondary battery of each of the battleships consists of twenty-two 3-inch (14 pounder) rapid fire guns, two 3-pounder semi-automatic guns, eight 1-pounder semi-automatic guns, two 3-inch field pieces, four machine guns of caliber .30.

The 12-inch guns will be installed in pairs, in four electrically-controlled, turret, elliptical turrets on the center line, two forward and two aft, each with an arc of fire of about 270 degrees. A secondary battery of 3-inch, 8-pounder guns will be installed in the hulls. The two torpedo tubes and accessories will be installed in a submerged torpedo room forward.

The new battleships are to be protected by a water line armor belt eight feet wide, varying in thickness from 12 to 18 inches. Casemate armor of corresponding thickness and breadth will extend from the top of the side armor belt to a level eight feet above. The barbettes will carry ten inches of armor in front, and the conning tower will be twelve inches thick, which is also the thickness of the turret armor. Complete belts of cellulose will encircle the ship to automatically close up holes made by shot below the water level.

These vessels will be driven by engines of 16,500 horse power, four cylinders, triple expansion in type, supplied with steam by twelve water tube boilers and superheaters. The smoke pipes of these new ships will be one hundred feet high, and steel masts forward and aft will be equipped with wireless telegraph outfits. Every precaution is taken to insure against fire, and all the living places are to be sheathed with purely fireproof material, and one-half of cork and asbestos and felt. The maximum time to be allowed for completion of these battleships will be forty-two months, and a heavy penalty is provided for delay. Not more than one of the vessels can be built under the act providing for them by one contractor.

FIGHTING WHITE PLAGUE.

The Government Sends Out Orders and Rules to Employes.

The government is sending out orders to all of its employes throughout the country to observe certain sanitary rules with a view to preventing the spread of tuberculosis. The matter was first stirred by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which has been working for some time to prevent tuberculosis within them. The president appointed the surgeon general of the army, the surgeon general of the navy, and the surgeon general of public health to take hold of the matter, and the result is the new step of the government.

Pamphlets and lists of rules together with the pamphlets are being distributed to all employes. The pamphlets are printed and sent out, and the executive directs all in the employ of the government to observe the rules and obey them under penalty of losing their jobs. Those afflicted with tuberculosis are directed not to use public buildings but to use a portable and destructive sputum receiver, which is to be burned when used enough. Such persons must not use towels or soap used by others, but must furnish their own, and each government employe is directed to furnish individual drinking glasses. The pamphlet also asserts that consumption can be cured if proper measures are taken, and some good advice to those afflicted is given.

JUDGE SEARLE VERY ILL.

Hope of His Recovery Has Been Practically Abandoned.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 23.—Judge D. B. Searle, who was stricken with apoplexy at Long Prairie several weeks ago, is still in a precarious condition. Judge Baxter, his associate on the bench, has concluded, from reports relative to his condition, that he will not again be able to occupy the bench, and says he will secure another judge to take his place this fall. Judge Searle is conscious only at intervals, and reports have been received from time to time to the effect that he was improving. Hope of his complete recovery has been practically abandoned.

THIRD MAN CHOSEN

To Handle the Funds for the Rehabilitation of San Francisco.

San Francisco, June 23.—Col. George H. Piper was chosen by the finance committee yesterday to act as third man to handle the funds for relief and rehabilitation of the city. Oscar Cushing was the other candidate, and he will take the place of Dr. Devine, who was some months ago convicted of embezzlement. Mr. Moran, at the head of the civil service commission, is the choice of the mayor, and Devine, who takes up the Red Cross end of the committee.

Gen. Greely today will be given the honor of being the first to attempt to induce the refugees in the various camps under the control of the army to sign away all rights to aid from the relief fund. He made the statement that contrary to the report that food was in demand, he had not received a dozen applications for the article in the last four or five days, and that at present there was more than a million pounds in his care.

MASON CITY BOYS IN JAIL.

Serious Charge Made Against Them by Gopher Girl and Companion.

Mason City, Iowa, June 23.—Frank Raywinkle, James Quinn, Frank Giblin and Richard McGuire, young men, are held on the alleged charge of assault on the person of Miss Lizzie Raywinkle, a girl 15 years of age, and a preliminary hearing will be given them today. Miss Hattie Rathbun of Spring Valley, Minn., who was with the Raywinkle girl, broke away from her captors and fled.

The story told by the girls is that they went with two of the boys for a walk and that they were followed by the other two, the four finally meeting and assaulting them. The Rathbun girl, being strong, was able to get away, and immediately swore out a warrant for the arrest of the boys, who were jailed.

Prisoner Sees Visions.

An examination of Frank Roux for insanity was to have been made in the probate court this afternoon. Roux is an inmate of the county jail, having been sentenced to a term of thirty days for drunkenness. He was placed on the chain gang, but his actions were so reckless that he was kept confined in his cell, as they were afraid of an outbreak. Roux is said to be seeing visions and suffering from delusions. Another alleged insane patient from Hibbing was to have been examined this afternoon.

CROW FOUND GUILTY.

Jury Says Former Postmaster of Omaha Tried to Impede Justice.

Omaha, June 23.—The jury in the federal court yesterday found Joseph Crow of Omaha guilty of attempting to impede justice while foreman of the federal grand jury. Crow, who is a former postmaster of Omaha and a former member of the Nebraska legislature, was charged with attempting to influence the grand jury to prevent the indictment of Rev. George G. Ware of Lead, S. D., who was some months ago convicted of spraying to defraud the government through illegal land entries. It was alleged that Crow tried to influence fellow members of the grand jury by gifts of railroad passes.

WEST DULUTH INSURANCE IS TOO HIGH

Recent Increase Makes Hardship on Central Avenue Now.

Some Were Paying Six Per Cent Before Increase Came.

Considerable objection is expressed at West Duluth over the raise in insurance rates there. The raise consists of 15 per cent. on unexpired policies and 20 per cent. on stocks of merchandise located throughout the city except in the configuration district in the center of the city established about two years ago.

It so happens that the latter provision hits some places on Central Avenue pretty hard. There are about three blocks there where the insurance rates on merchandise stocks have been about 6 per cent. and this raise of 20 per cent. hits them hard.

It is felt that with the previous high rates this district should have been on the same basis as the configuration district established in the center of Duluth proper and which has not suffered a raise on the recent schedule established.

TEARING THE POINT.

Large Blasting Takes Down Great Amount of Rock.

At the Point of Rocks at Thirteenth avenue west a huge amount of rock was blasted off during the night and is now being cleared away at the base of the precipice. A large chunk of the dangerous boulder there was taken down and a great deal of the loose rock.

A very perceptible hole was made in the face of the cliff and it is believed that from this time on fast work will be done on the point and within a few days the greater part of the dangerous work will be over. With the rock cut down to a slope the danger will be minimized and people may pass there in safety without feeling that they take their lives in their hands.

Will Quit in Fall.

It has been rumored that the Merrill & Ring mill would leave work in about two weeks. Investigation this morning proved this untrue. The Merrill & Ring people say that they have a few more months of work to do before they quit. They are now working on the mill race and when that is over the work of the mill will cease for keeps. It is likely that the mill machinery will be moved to the coast.

BRYAN TALKS TO NORWEGIANS
Speaks on Invitation of Norwegian-American Delegates.

Tromsø, June 23.—The Norwegian-American delegates to the coronation of King Hakon held a meeting this afternoon in the garden of the old archbishop's palace under the shadow of the cathedral, and invited William J. Bryan to address them. When Mr. Bryan appeared he was presented with American and Norwegian flags, and the crowd cheered him.

Mr. Bryan said that judging Norway by the fact that it had achieved high civilization without losing any of her early rugged strength, a thing nations rarely achieve, he hoped the country's prosperity would be as long as her days were not numbered.

Per Stromman of Wisconsin, the Rev. Madison of Minnesota and Dr. Fjeld of Norway, who acted as chairman, also addressed the meeting. The burden of their remarks consisted of expressions of sympathy, encouragement and congratulation from the Norwegian-Americans in the United States to their brethren in Norway.

SWEDISH CHOIR COMING HERE

Stockholm Y. M. C. A.
Singers to Give Concert in Duluth.

The Swedish National Male choir of the Y. M. C. A. of Sweden will give a concert at the First M. E. church, July 2, as a special attraction of the Star Lecture course. The choir is composed of fifty-five men, who are leaders in their respective professions in Stockholm, and will remain in this country until July 15, giving concerts in all the principal cities.

Immediately after landing in New York the choir gave a concert at Carnegie hall, in that city, and received an ovation. It is expected that it will be very well received in Duluth, too, as the large Scandinavian population of the city will be interested in its coming, as well as other music lovers.

In speaking of the concert, the New York Herald said:

"The choir was particularly pleasing in the Engelbrecht March and in Peterson-Berg's 'On the Sunny Mountain Top.' At the conclusion of the program the director and the individual members of the choir were overwhelmed with greetings and congratulations from the audience, enthusiastic men and women from all parts of the house swarming over the stage."

RAILROADS GRAIN RATE REDUCTION

President Stickney of the Great Western Announces Cut.

To be in Effect Between Missouri River and Chicago.

A reduction of 14 cents a hundred pounds on grain from Missouri river points to Chicago has been announced by President A. B. Stickney of the Great Western road. The reduction comes on the heels of his charges that the Union Pacific, under its contract with the Peavey Elevator company, is paying the grain company rebates under the guise of elevation at Omaha. A Chicago dispatch says that this reduction is the amount the Union Pacific allows the Peavey company for elevation, and makes the Great Western's rate on corn, oats, rye and barley from Omaha, Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City to Chicago 94 cents a hundred pounds, or on wheat 104 cents. The rates charged by the other lines are 11 and 12 cents respectively.

President Stickney has long been opposed to the payment of rebates on grain at the Missouri river, as practiced by the Union Pacific under its contract with the Peavey company. He has not wholly approved the system of making allowances for "unloading" and transferring, as allowed by the other roads at Chicago, or other points, although it was also done by his own line.

According to the claims made by Mr. Stickney in his recent address in Omaha, the payment of 14 cents elevation charges to the Peavey company gives that concern an advantage over its competitors in buying grain at Union Pacific points of 17 cents. At a recent meeting of the Western Times, it was decided to abolish the payment of elevation charges at the seaboard, which should never become greater than it is at present. Freight traffic officials are making an effort to obtain an interview with Mr. Stickney, and pressure will be brought to bear upon him to induce him to withdraw the tariff.

A BIG PAY ROLL.
Northern Pacific Has Large Force of Men at Brainerd Sheds.

Brainerd, Minn., June 23.—The monthly payroll of the Northern Pacific road at this place amounted this month to $58,000, the heaviest in years. The work is that the next payroll will run more than $60,000.

The Northern Pacific has authorized the expenditure of $100,000 in a plant for preserving lumber at Brainerd. The building and machinery plant will be located in Brainerd, and will cost $70,000, it is said, and the balance is for incidentals and running expenses for the current year.

The company is said to have two locations in view, one in West Brainerd, the other east of the shops. The location in Minnesota and Wisconsin will be treated here, and a number of men, estimated at from forty to seventy-five, will be employed.

Northern Railway Club.
The Northern Railway club held another of its very successful meetings at Brainerd last evening. About 100 members were present. Several interesting papers were read, among them one written for the Pittsburg club by H. W. Thornton, superintendent of the Pennsylvania line, and one by G. H. Smith, agent of the Northern Pacific at Brainerd. The papers were read by Mr. Thornton and Mr. Smith.

Many on Excursion.
Seven hundred people came to Duluth on the Great Northern excursion train which arrived in the city from Grand Forks last yesterday afternoon. The weather is of the right variety and the visitors are today seeing the city under favorable circumstances. The ball game this afternoon between Duluth and Grand Forks is proving quite an attraction.

Fourth of July Rates.
The Northern Pacific has announced at Fourth of July rate of one fare for the round trip between all points in Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota, except for the rate between Duluth and the Twin Cities, which will be a fare and one-third, or $5.75.

WATERWAY COMMISSION
To Investigate Use of Waters of the Rainy Lake River.

Washington, June 23.—Gen. Ernst, chairman of the American contingent of the international waterway commission, has called a meeting of the full commission at Buffalo next Tuesday.

The subjects for discussion will include matters pertaining to the use of the waters of Rainy lake river and the Mississippi by the Minnesota Power company. The commission will also discuss the works of the South Metropolitan Gas company, and the greater part of next week will be spent in London and its vicinity, the program including, however, a side trip to London as London is an interesting city.

INVESTIGATING PUBLIC OWNERSHIP IN BRITAIN.
London, June 23.—The public ownership commission of the National Civic Federation, which is investigating municipal ownership in Great Britain, will spend the day in London, June 23, and the next day in the works of the South Metropolitan Gas company, and the greater part of next week will be spent in London and its vicinity, the program including, however, a side trip to London as London is an interesting city.

POLICE GRIST IS SHRINKING

"Steadies" Do Not Care to Spend Summer in Jail.

The fine weather is probably the cause of the extraordinary manner in which the police court grist is shrinking day by day.

Yesterday there were but five plain "drunks" in the list, and today only three inmates looking for bums could be found in the city lockup when it was time to take the prisoners down to court.

The prospect of being locked up in jail, or working on the rock pile during the Duluth summer weather is not at all attractive, and the weather is fine. The number of drunks is kept down by the fact that the warm weather means more beer drinking and less whisky, and for one of police court "steadies" getting drunk on beer is a long, tedious job.

PAVEMENT IS COMPLETED

Tar Macadam Has Been Laid on West Superior Street.

Tonight will see the completion of the big West Superior street paving job, with the exception of the one and a half blocks of Telford macadam, which is to be laid.

The tar macadam will all be laid before night, however, as the city's machine will be turned over to George R. King for the second street job.

The foundation for the Telford macadam is all in, and the work can easily be finished up next week, unless it is decided to hold it up until after the work on the Point of Rocks has been finished. It is feared that the pavement might be injured during the blasting, and the board of public works desire to leave it unfinished until the rocks have been removed.

RIGO'S FOREFINGER IS INSURED FOR $25,000.

New York, June 23.—"You have an old adage, which says that a 'burnt child never goes near a fire,'" says Rigo, the Gypsy fiddler, who is playing at the Harlem Casino.

"Well, that is the way with me. I lost a lot of money and almost lost my reputation as a violinist by injuring my forefinger soon after I arrived in this country. I tried to play with the invalid digit, and the critics said I was not an artist. Now, the finger is all right again, and I am not going to risk losing its use, and the money which goes with it. Today I insured the finger, and have a special policy for $25,000, which protects me against loss of the finger, and also against temporary injury."

POLICEMAN SUSPENDED

On Suspicion of Stealing Meat From a St. Paul Butcher.

St. Paul, June 23.—Tracked by a streak of blood leading to the patrol box from which he reported every half hour to the central police station, Patrolman Louis Galvin is now suspended on a charge of entering a meat market on his beat and carrying off choice cuts of meat to furnish food for the family board. It was not a streak of blood from one of the mingling steaks, or a rib roast, which fixed suspicion on Patrolman Galvin, as the man who made the like street butcher's stock look smaller in the morning than it was the evening before, but blood from the policeman's own foot, as he hurried away from the shop, early yesterday morning, when Galvin had been entrusted with a key of the shop, and yesterday morning, when the butcher returned to work, he saw things in disorder in the shop. Among other things he noticed that the meat cleaver was on the floor, and leading from it was a streak of blood across the floor, covered with sawdust. Thinking that he was on the trail of the thief, he followed the blood, getting hotter on the scent every minute. Great was his surprise when he traced the blood to the police box near the store. Here were a few splashes, which suggested that the thief must have halted in place himself under arrest, but feeling weakened by the loss of blood, rushed for Dr. Norton's office, near by. The butcher followed the blood up the sidewalk and into the doctor's office, where he was informed that the blood was Galvin's, and that he had come there to have his foot dressed. An investigation revealed the fact that the policeman had dropped the cleaver on his foot, and hurried from the shop. An investigation is now under way to demonstrate whether there is any connection between the wounded foot of Galvin, the cleaver on the floor, and the half cut breakfast steak which was on the butcher's block when he returned. Chief O'Connor has suspended Galvin, pending an investigation of the entire affair.

GOOD WEATHER WOULD BRING REALTY BUSINESS

Brokers Think It Would Stimulate Sales of Property as Poor Weather Always Tends to Restrict Dealing—Building Improvements Continue to be Planned—Eastern Owner Here and May Build Fine Block.

"All we need now is a spell of good weather and we will get the business," is the general sentiment among the local real estate men and a common expression when inquiry is made among them as to market conditions. Last week was convention week. It was followed this week by almost continuous wet weather, weather that was unfavorable to get people to look at property. Trades have, consequently, been fewer than they would have been under more favorable conditions. The real estate men are confident that business will show a considerable spurt for the closing week of the month if they can have the weather of a week ago. Prices are firm all along the line and the buyers that are looking for snaps stand an excellent chance of getting weary in their search. Building improvement continues an active feature and a large number of permits are being taken out and plans prepared for houses and flats that are to be erected this summer and fall. Building operations have received quite a check this week on account of the wet weather, especially where foundation work was in progress, but the contractors are hopeful and are counting on several weeks of good building weather in July.

Among the out of town investors in Duluth property who have been visiting the city this week is Samuel E. Stokes, of Philadelphia, who is here for a few days looking up his interests. Mr. Stokes, who is represented locally by N. J. Upham & Co., owns some valuable First street property including the southwest cor. of First street and Fourth avenue west and some frontage near the Yale laundry, where a building improvement is now under way. He contemplates the erection of a large office building on the Fourth avenue west corner as soon as the plans for the new court house are developed and operations under way. He is well pleased with his Duluth investments and optimistic as to the outlook for good values of Duluth holdings in the future.

N. J. Upham & Company report a good week of inquiry considering the weather conditions, and report the sale of a residence property at the corner of Second street and Nineteenth avenue west to A. E. Whiting, for $5,500; a lot at Twenty-fourth avenue west and Michigan street to Emil Erickson, for $800. The firm has a number of other trades near the closing point.

C. P. Craig & Company report the closing up of the sale of the 100 feet at the southwest corner of Second street and Second avenue from Mary M. Todd to Elroy Cole, the consideration being $5,000. The property comprises lots 7 and 8, block 69, Endon. The company has also sold some fifteen or twenty Crosey Park lots, and several properties on Duluth Heights. A good inquiry is noted.

L. A. Larsen & Company report the sale of a double corner at East Second street and Third avenue east, opposite the Presbyterian church, from B. F. Dougherty to John Colbroth, for $9,300. The transaction involves five small dwellings and the lots they occupy.

V. V. Fifer has purchased from Robert Lucke a residence property on the east half of lot 72, East Fourth street, First division, for $3,300.

E. J. Phelps has sold Thorpe Bros. a half interest in part of Herrington's addition for $7,500. The deal involves a number of lots.

The Oliver Mining company has plans out for fifty-five houses, to be built for its employees at Bovey, Minn., and has called for bids to be opened, July 4, at the company's office at Bovey. Thirty of the houses will be erected at the Canistota mine, and the remaining twenty-five at the Holman mine. The contracts will include the heating and plumbing in some of the buildings. The construction work is to be pushed, and the houses made ready for occupancy by Oct. 1. The company has given notice to contractors that by July 10 they will be able to deliver material by rail within a half mile of the locations. The figures on the estimated value of the houses are not available, but it is understood that the contracts will be quite large ones.

The contract for the Wessinger plant at West Duluth has been awarded to Emil Zault, and work will be started on the foundations next Monday. There are three buildings to be erected, including a main building 160 by 48 feet, an engine and boiler house 60 by 40 feet, and an office building. The improvements will cost probably, over $20,000. The plant will be located at the corner of Fifty-third avenue west and Polk street, and is expected to be ready for occupancy and the manufacture of patients about Sept. 1.

Architect J. J. Wengenstein reports the contract for the remodeling of the Peet building on West Michigan street, and the additional story to the same, awarded to A. J. Johnson. The contract for the O'Toole hotel at Proctoroknot has been awarded to J. R. Quigley. Bids have been called for an addition to a school building at Wrenshall.

Bray & Nystrom, the architects, report the contract for a three-story addition to McMartin's wagon factory, on West First street, awarded to J. A. Johnson. The architects will take figures until Monday on a frame residences, to be erected at the Eveleth pumping station.

W. R. Parsons & Son, architects at Des Moines, Iowa, have asked for bids for the electric wiring of the new high school buildings at Hibbing and Virginia. The bids on the former will be opened June 25 and for the latter June 26.

Architect J. R. de Waard has plans out for figures for a row of three brick houses at the southeast corner of First street and Twenty-fourth avenue west for John Jensen, Jr. The bids will be opened next Monday.

Architect E. S. Radcliffe opened bids yesterday for a three-story brick hotel building at Chisholm for R. S. O'Neill.

Architect A. Terryberry is taking bids for a 4-flat building in the East end for Edward Mettner; a 4-flat building near Fourth avenue east and Fifth street for Peter Beschenbessel; and for a large brick and stone church for the Methodists at Bismark, N. D. He has awarded the contract for the heating and plumbing of the Beschenbessel house to McDougall & Pastore.

Among the building permits granted this week were those for a flat building on Twenty-fifth avenue west near Second street, for John H. Ponke, to cost $4,500; a flat building to cost about $5,000 for Mrs. Jennie Brandt, on West Fourth street and for foundation work and repairs to Mrs. Louise Wieland's

MICHIGAN IRON RANGES

Expected to Furnish Additional Ore for Steel Corporation's Proposed Plant at Gary, Ind.--Mesaba Ores Also Required.

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 23.—(Special To The Herald.)—The United States Steel corporation's proposed establishment at Gary, Ind., of what will be the world's greatest steel plant, has become of much more importance to the Menominee and Marquette Iron ranges. Obviously, it is pointed out, they being much the nearest sources of ore supply, the two fields will be called upon to furnish a greater tonnage of raw material than were the case with the smaller plants hitherto to its present manufacturing centers. This increase in allotment is estimated at 100,000 tons annually, and the great bulk of it doubtless will be forwarded from Escanaba, the only ore shipping port on the coast, which the proposed great steel center is to be located.

A comparison of distances from the steel plant to the sources of the Lake Superior region shows that on shipments from Escanaba a haul of approximately 100 miles would be required. This means that, with the Gary works in commission, much of the Steel corporation's output would be diverted to Escanaba, and shipped from that port, the tonnage retained by the other ports being small. The port of Erie, Escanaba is already one of the largest ore shipping ports on the lakes—it ranks only behind Duluth and Two Harbors—but even now it is prepared to handle a considerable tonnage. The Chicago & Northwestern railroad has five ore docks on the Lake Michigan port at the present time, and the company has 1,522 pockets, of an aggregate storage capacity of 188,290 tons. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul has a big ore dock in commission—its 204 storage pockets have a capacity of 50,400 tons—and another one is ready to receive ore in a week or two. This latter dock is one of the very best and the most complete of the region.

It is at Escanaba, that is located the world's largest plant of the Steel corporation, designed to treat hard ores from both the Marquette and Menominee ranges. The plant is of such size, before it is loaded into the boats. This plant is of large capacity, and there is no doubt that it will be in full operation. In connection with the establishment of mills at Gary, there is a project to build a ship canal across the Michigan peninsula, connecting Lakes Superior and Michigan at the head of the latter lake, and that a large proportion of Mesaba range ores will be required, in addition to the hundreds of millions could be saved on the round trip from the head of Lake Superior, and the cost of the undertaking would tend financial support to the suggested canal undertaking. However, little is known of the matter, and it is not proposed that the distance across the peninsula is only about 100 miles, and the elevation of 200 feet above the level of Lake Superior. There is not water enough to supply the boats, and about at least twenty feet below the level of Lake Superior, making the project a very difficult one. The elevated level. The cut for several miles in the vicinity of what are known as the falls of Lake Superior, through the hard rock, and with an excavation of 220 feet at the summit, and 30 feet at each end, the depth of the cut would be 100 feet. The proposed route is the lowest and shortest between the two lakes. The project is a very difficult one, and nothing is impossible to the American engineer—but the cost.

SHAFT No. 1, EAST BUTTE EXTENSION.

Will Go Into Operation July 1 and Output Will be Greatly creased---East Butte Company Trying to Buy or Lease Smelter---The May Output.

Butte, Mont., June 23.—The North Butte company has made splendid progress in the work of setting up its new plant at the mouth of the head frame, easily the best of the year, and marks a record for this city. The estimated production for May was $2,881,450 pounds of copper, which is the best record for the month since the fact that the men employed are accustomed to seeing wide ones, very little is said about their width. In the West, however, the workings of which are engine and putting in the extra 100,000 ft. of cable. The work was completed in 13 days and the engine was given a critical test this week with satisfactory results. It is not the intention of the company to begin using the engine until about July 1, for there are several odds and ends that must be looked after before the machinery is started on its regular run. It will probably be operated about the middle of the month.

Compared with 1934, when the mine produced 1,536,000 pounds in excess of the average monthly production for the first four months of the year, the 1935 production is a new high record mark. The Butte camp, the largest output in any single month previous to May having been in June, 1934, with 1,600,000 pounds of ore were produced. The May production, therefore, is nearly 1,600,000 pounds in excess of the average monthly production for the first four months of the year.

The Butte camp is one of the oldest producing mines in the West. It has been producing since 1890 and has yielded an enormous amount of ore. The main vein accounts for the fact that it is not more than 1,600 feet from the surface. The company has a large reserve of ore and is insured to insure safety to the men.

order to get it to going smoothly. Then the new cable will be attached. This work will require a little time.

The head frame is not so high as that of the new one at the Leonard, but it is strong and substantial, and will stand all of the pressure that the cable will put on it. These loads will be somewhat heavier than those now coming to the surface, for the company intends to use skips that will hold about four tons each.

Most of the property is now between 800 and 900 tons a day, but the company believes that an increase of at least 500 tons will be required when the new machinery is operating at its best.

The mine has been recently opened up its ore bodies in good shape and will be in position to keep the entire output during the winter months of each day. Tonnage is what it is after, and tonnage is what it means to a miner.

Results of the settlement of the litigation that existed so many years between the Leonard and the Anaconda and Amalgamated Copper company, can be shown in the May copper output of Butte. The production, according to the following table, is as follows:

Some of the Butte copper mines contain wide ore bodies, but on account of feet at a time is removed between the area is finished, the space is filled with waste and the adjoining area is perfectly ready for building. There is any further attempt to go into another area. It may be said that the vein is a little more expensive than the cost of mining in smaller veins but of the precautions taken in the ground.

In the Anaconda mine there is 200 feet wide in places, and the average width is 100 feet. This is the lowest point reached in the phides is said to be more than 100 feet. The precautions taken in the operation of the West Coloss are necessary in the Anaconda.

In other large copper mines in Montana the width of the ore bodies is 60 and 80 feet. Some are much in places than at other points. The width of the ore bodies is of expansion and contraction. It may be only five feet wide at one point and 100 feet wide at another. It may be away from the narrow point one level it may show only the width and be 100 feet wide, 100 feet wide, and 100 feet wide. The mining more than one vein. Some have

New Vein of Rich Silver Found in the Nipissing Mines---Strike of Smaltite---Nearly All Work on Surface.

Cobalt, Ont., June 23.—Recently Superintendent Linney of the Nipissing mines has been making a study of the ore between the No. 13 cut and the No. 26. Both of these last mentioned ledges are rich in silver and there is every indication that the new find will develop good results. The new work has been traced on the surface for fully fifty feet and will run from three to seven inches in width.

Hydraulic work is a new proposition at the Nipissing mines, and is being tried as a mining. The result of this cheap and effective method of stripping large sections of the surface has been very satisfactory. The general bearing ledges will be watched with great interest, as they are estimated to contain from one to one and one-half million tons of ore. Fully one hundred and sixty men will be engaged at this Cobalt.

Another interesting report from the Nipissing group is that the new strike of small size has been made in one of the ledges which has been a big producer for some time. The new find is estimated to be fully 2,300 ounces of silver, and runs ten per cent or more in nickel. Twelve men are working on this new find. They have made every one in Coleman town-ship wild with excitement. The new find is such a comparatively rare occurrence, that they create hard work for the men.

Nearly all the work thus far done at Cobalt is along the surface of the ground. The new find is being made in the surface trenches, which run from three to five or thirty to fifty feet deep. There are only one shaft which has been put down to the surface. The new find is in a shaft at the Timmins mine, just adjoining the Nipissing group. This shaft is being run by the Nipissing group, and the men through pay are nearly all the way.

Beautiful Skin Obtained by Washing Face Properly

How to Do It—No Matter How Warm the Day Hot Water Should Be Used—Creams, Lotions and Powders.

BY MARGARET MIXTER.

The girl who would be fair to gaze upon and develop into an attractive middle aged woman must be always working for that end; but it is in summer that she is most likely to do everlasting harm to her complexion, ruin her hair or coarsen her hands so that they will never return to their former state. The hot sun and the strong light are constantly to be combated or freckles or tan will ensue. It is even now on the lists that tan is to be guarded against, for with the delicate muslin and lace gowns anything so contrasting as tan is not to be thought of, and a delicate pink and white complexion is now the thing even in summer.

No matter how fine a woman's skin may be, this peaches and cream coloring can never be attained if she does not wash her face properly, and especially in summer she must do it with due regard for the pores and texture. No matter how warm the day may be wash your face in hot water, and the average "wash" is nothing more than a damp "wipe." To do it properly there must be plenty of water, and it would advise every woman when she is going away for the summer, even if for over Sunday, to take a little burner with her that she can put either on a lamp or gas over which to heat water. This is more economical than an alcohol lamp and less trouble to carry. Have a little covered saucepan that will just fit. Do not try to heat much water at a time, but let a little come to a boil and then bring it to the proper temperature with cold. More can be heating while that is being used. The face can stand a heat that the fingers cannot, so do not be afraid of having the water too hot.

How to Wash Face.
To wash use a large soft cloth and mop the face in it without wringing the cloth. Dip the cloth repeatedly into the water, so that an even temperature is maintained, and souse the skin well for almost or quite five minutes. Then rinse by sousing with cold water. The advantage of water so very hot is that it opens the pores, allowing the dirt and dirt to make their way out, and cold water closes them and stiffens the skin.

If the skin has a normal moisture, as it is likely to have in summer, I do not advocate using a cleansing cream before washing at that season, as I would in cold weather. But if the skin is dry and not given to perspiration, by all means, before washing, rub in a cream.

Cleansing Cream.
Two ounces of almond oil.
One ounce of white wax.
One and a half ounces of spermaceti.
The usual method of making this is to melt the wax and spermaceti in an earthen dish, set in a basin of hot water, and then stir in the oil. This is the easiest, but a more delicate cream is made with little more trouble. Melt the wax and spermaceti in an earthen dish, and when liquid remove the dish from heat. Let it stand until the two begin to coagulate. They should be of the consistency of soft butter. Into the oil put five drops of violet essence and beat the two with a silver fork, putting the wax and spermaceti in a few drops at a time. Beat precisely as you would eggs. When finished this should be like whipped cream. Massage into this the face thoroughly, and also over that part of the throat and neck that is exposed to the sun. Be sure to wash it all off or the skin will have a greasy appearance.

When Skin Is Oily.
If the skin is naturally oily and given to perspiration, the natural oils will bring the dust off of them, but sometimes after a journey a little assistance in cleansing is necessary. Do not use cream, but instead take half a lemon and rub it over the face and neck, being careful that none of the juice gets into the eyes. Lemon is drying and should never be used on a dry skin. Having washed the face, wipe it over with a velvet lotion.

Velvet Lotion.
One-quarter ounce of tincture of benzoin.
One dram of tincture of vanilla and three gills of triple orange flower water.
Mix the tinctures and add the orange flower water drop by drop, beating with a silver fork. Apply to the face with a soft cloth and wipe off any superfluous moisture. This is cooling and whitening. Do not use oftener than once a day.

Washing the face should be done at the beginning of dressing, that there may be time for it to cool naturally and resume its normal color.
In buying face powders great care should be taken that none is chosen which contain minerals, as they will work great harm to the skin. If you make your own you can be sure it is pure.

Violet Face Powder.
Two ounces of rice starch, four ounces of rice flour, one-half ounce of carbonate of magnesia, three-fourths of an ounce of powdered borie acid, three-fourths of a dram of pulverized orris root, eight drops of essence of citron and fifteen drops of bergamot.

To mix, put the essences with the magnesia and then mingle with the other ingredients. It put through a very fine sieve the mixing will be more thorough.

A Good Liquid Powder.
A liquid powder is excellent for the hands and neck, and so is nice to use before putting on an evening gown.

Whitening Liquid Powder.
One-half ounce of pure oxide of zinc, one-half dram of glycerine, two ounces of orange flower water and ten drops of essence of violet.
Sift the zinc and dissolve it in enough rose water to cover. Beat in the glycerine and then add the rest of the rose water. Lastly put in the violet essence. Shake well and always shake before using.

Cucumber Cream.
Two ounces of oil of sweet almonds.
Five ounces of fresh cucumber juice.
One and a half ounces of essence of cucumbers.
One-eighth ounce of powdered white castile soap.
Three-eighths of a dram of tincture of benzoin.

Prepare the cucumber juice by washing the whole vegetable, then cutting with a silver knife into small pieces, using the skin, too. Boil slowly in a porcelain kettle with very little water, until it is mushy. Strain through a fine sieve and then through cheese cloth. The essence is made by adding to the juice an equal quantity of high proof alcohol.
To mix put the essence and the soap into a glass preserving jar. When the soap is dissolved after a few hours add the cucumber juice and shake until thoroughly mixed. Pour into a glass bowl and add the oil and benzoin, then scent with violet essence. Stir the mixture until it is creamy. The cucumber juice should be strong, only enough water being added to the vegetable to form a liquid. Bottle and shake before using.

The girl whose skin is smooth and in a good condition can keep it in the pink of perfection by using these simple things in warm weather. They are cooling and whitening, and when she sees herself surrounded by other girls whose faces are tanned, freckled and red she will feel more than repaid for the time she has spent in making herself look like peaches and cream.

Summer Hats For Little Girls' Wear

Dainty and practical are the hats for children this summer, which range in the matter of material from the finest Panama to the fluffiest of lace, net and mull. So far as size is concerned, however, there is only one style to follow. All hats are large, some of them exceedingly so, and while simplicity marks the trimming, the material is much the same as worn upon the chapeaux of older folk.

As a matter of fact a mother, this season, will find much less difficulty in selecting a hat for her daughter than for herself, for there is little diversity among the former, while among the hats for grown folks there is such an endless variety of styles that one is at a loss to decide.

One of the most girlish hats for the little maid for wear in the afternoon is of dotted net, point d'esprit, made of row after row of tiny ruffles, one overlapping the other, and trimmed with a big flat-topped bow of white satin ribbon, run through a buckle, which is covered with the net full on.

Panamas are particularly serviceable for children, not being affected by the weather and combining well with any or all frocks. A very pretty one is large with a somewhat bell shaped crown, faced to within an inch or so of the edge of the brim on the underside, and the high crown covered with overlapping bias folds of the velvet.

which reaches quite to the top of the crown. A very flat bow of the velvet is fastened along the side that turns up and fastened down securely.
One of the unique features of another style is sun hat made of a pretty used in the shape of quills for trimming which are made of real rubber. This attracts the little folks, and is an argument used sometimes to induce mothers to purchase one for them. A Panama trimmed with tan ribbon with the rubber quill stuck through is a pretty model.

Another large hat also turned up on the left side is composed of a pretty pattern of white lace shirred daintily on to a wire frame and trimmed with a very compact rosette of white satin ribbon where the brim turns. A sun hat of fancy burnt straw is trimmed with red and tan satin ribbon, a full trimming of ribbon loops at the left side. A band about the crown finished with a soft ribbon bow completes the trimming on this very practical little sun hat.

Innumerable variations of these styles are to be seen, but an ingenious mother can easily develop a pretty summer hat for her child out of one of these very attractive models. Given a little artistic taste and agility with the needle and a dainty summer chap-eau could be fashioned with very little difficulty or expense.

Sassafras in Soups Liked by Epicures

By EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

Sassafras for Soups.
Dear Mrs. Telford:—
With this mail I am sending you some sassafras leaves, dried. I have taken this liberty, hoping you can give me some information about their use. The extent of my knowledge was gained some time ago from a cook book, and, to the best of my recollection, is that the dried leaves are nice with rice and with chicken gumbo, and that the South it is called "file" and sells for seventy-five cents to $1.00 per half pint bottle. It was very easy for me to gather the tender leaves of the sassafras and dry them, and I hope you can tell me more about their use.

Yours very truly,
M.
Thank you very much for the file, which I shall enjoy using. As you say, file is the leaves of sassafras, dried, pounded and sifted. It is used to thicken soups, especially the gumbo, and is sometimes substituted for the okra or gumbo. It can only be obtained here at the high class grocers, and not always as fresh and pure as yours. Here are several recipes for its use:—
Gumbo File Without the Okra.
Cut up a chicken as for frying and dredge with flour. Put a tablespoonful of lard in a gallon pot and add the chicken and one onion, cut fine. Brown the chicken, watching closely and turning often to keep it from burning. When browned all over, add three quarts of boiling water and simmer gently for four hours, seasoning with salt, pepper and a little bunch of thyme. When nearly ready to serve, sift in two tablespoonfuls of the file, stirring all the time. Pick out the large bones and serve with plain boiled rice, cooked as far as possible. The file powder makes soup thick and mucilaginous.

Gumbo With Oysters.
After frying a jointed fowl in lard until browned, add boiling water as before, with two sliced onions, a pepper pod without the seeds, and salt and pepper to season. About fifteen minutes before serving time, pour in fifty oysters and their liquor. As soon as the oysters curl, push away from the fire, sprinkle in a tablespoonful of the file, stirring all the time, then serve immediately in bowls or soup plates with a tablespoonful of boiled rice in the bottom of the dish.

Okra File.
Wash one quart of okra pods, the young, tender ones, cut off the hard stalk ends and slice; cut a half pound rather fat ham into dice, put into a deep kettle and fry gently until brown and crisp. Have ready two cupfuls solid rice, tomatoes cut in small pieces, one onion and one tablespoonful chopped red pepper, omitting the seeds. Put the vegetables in with the brown ham, add a pint of veal or chicken stock, cover and simmer gently for an hour. Boil separately one cupful rice, drain and keep hot; add salt and pepper to the okra, take from the fire, stir in a tablespoonful of the file, turn out on a hot platter, and put the rice around as a hors d'oeuvre.

Beet and Rhubarb Jelly.
Dear Mrs. Telford:—
Will you kindly publish recipe for beet marmalade and New England pudding. Thanking you, I am yours truly, Mrs. L. N. G.
To make the beet marmalade, wash young beets carefully, but take care not to bruise the tender skin or trim tops or rootlets, which would make them "bleed"; put in a saucepan, cover with boiling water and cook until tender; young beets will cook in about an hour, old beets forever; when cooked drop in a pan of cold water and rub off the skins; now chop and measure; allow for each pound of the vegetable about three-fourths of a pound of sugar, the juice and thin yellow grated rind of a lemon, a piece of ginger root, a few cloves and an inch stick of cinnamon; cook in a granite kettle, stirring frequently until of jellylike consistency, then put in marmalade jars, first removing the cloves, ginger and cinnamon.
Beet Marmalade.
A delicious jelly to serve with meat is made of equal parts of young beets and rhubarb boiled together; when tender they are mashed through a sieve and then lastly through a jelly bag; heat the juice to the boiling point, allow a pint of sugar that has been heated by boiling in the oven for each pint of juice, turn into the hot juice, stir until dissolved, then instantly remove the spoon; cook twenty minutes and pour into glasses.
New England pudding I do not know under that name. Perhaps, you mean an Indian meal pudding made in this way.
Stir together one cupful yellow corn meal, one cupful molasses and a teaspoonful of salt. Pour over this mixture one quart of boiling milk, then add pints of cold milk, one tablespoonful of butter and two eggs, beaten whites and yolks together. Turn into a deep well buttered pudding dish that holds at least three quarts, and bake very slowly for seven hours. Do not stir, but if the pudding browns too fast, cover. If this is not the one you mean, and you will describe it as near as may be, I will try to find out directions for its making.
A new wrinkle for improving the flavor of the pot of jam or marmalade of commerce, too often flat, stale and unprofitable, is this:—Upon opening the jar take a few spoonfuls, putting in their place a little port wine or brandy. This furnishes the zest or flavor otherwise lacking.
How to Break Up a Cold.
It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thin, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour on the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two. ## Spanish Wedding Revives Vogue of Mantillas.

This Fascinating Style of Head-gear Generally Used Again.

The use of mantillas for evening wear has been revived, for since the wedding of the King of Spain, women who have had these artistic head scarfs have begun to use them for theatres and dinner parties and roof gardens. This sudden demand for them has brought out a variety of pretty ones in the shops, not the vivid green, yellow and red combinations that many of Spain's daughters affect, but subdued mantillas of black, white, cream and tan, that are a blaze of brilliancy, because of the gold and silver threads, with which they are decorated.

The black ones, with gold threads are especially attractive and are stunning when worn by a blonde. The black and silver scarfs are also pretty, but lack the sharp contrast of the others. White and gold mantillas for dark haired women, or cream and gold are becoming, as are the cream and silver ones, particularly when the wearer has color in her cheeks.
Little of the base or groundwork of Brussels net is visible in these scarfs, because of the quaint antique patterns woven in gold or silver thread, which almost entirely cover every part of them. One mantilla will have four or five different designs, one in diamonds, another in leaf effects, a third in geometrical devices, and all wrought into one pattern for a border.

Substitute for Stock.
In many recipes stock is called for and stock does not always happen to be on hand. In this case an excellent substitute may be quickly prepared by dissolving a dessert spoonful of fluid beef extract in a half pint boiling water and seasoning it with salt, pepper, two or three drops onion juice and a few drops extract celery, or a little celery salt.

The Sunny Side of Fashion's Street

Some Novelities That Add Much to Milady's Appearance—Some Neck and Neckwear—Colors and Color Schemes—Tints and the Complexion—Economies That Masquerade Cleverly as Extravagances.

The best shops are offering millinery—that damp-proof material for which we have been waiting so long—in several sorts of rubings, mounted upon satin ribbons. All one has to do is to order the usual five-eighths or three-quarters of a yard, add the shower of velvet or silk ribbons, and, behold! the bon is complete. Some of the make-up bon is but a scant half a yard in length, if one does not count in the ribbon shower. These are usually a trifle trying in wear, serving to cut the head and face off from the rest of the body, and to lack altogether the fluffy charm of the longer style. Just one-eighth of a yard will make all the difference in the world, where the becomingness of the bon is concerned.

Of course, as might be expected, the black, white and mixtures of the two colors are far and away the more favored. Some are in both black and white, the ruche seemingly divided in the center; and the little tufts or rosettes of velvet ribbon make a fascinating impression when tucked into the center of such a ruche.

The nut-brown maid, to whom brown is pretty nearly all its shades is wont to be highly flattered, will hail with joy the number of bon that are shown in her favorite color. These in brown millinery, point d'esprit—and this net has jumped into prominence wonderfully in the last few weeks, and small wonder, since it has all the charm of chiffon and lace alike, with all the best points of both in evidence—liberty silk and chiffon are really chic; and the best of it is that they are at once smart and serviceable with a brown or a white costume.

And, by the way, it were not at all amiss to pause and remark that the touch of brown upon white—note that in these columns some 12 months ago—is one of the leading characteristics of the Parisian summer toilette. White chiffon around the neck, the hair, and the new silk satinettes all show some touch of this russet coloring. Usually, it is in the collar and cuffs of the coat, in the bordering of those little fancy wraps that defy classification and in the folds upon the skirt, upon which the dependence for much of the trimming scheme is placed. And the more irregular those folds are in the mode and method of their application the better the style achieved. It would seem that well-nigh all shades of brown, from a pale café-au-lait to a rich seal brown, are included in this popularity. The one thing is to secure that particular tint that will bring out the best color of the hair and eyes, and so make the most of the passing mode.

However, to return to the bon, question. There are some really ravishing ones shown in white silk nets, with great pastilles of velvet pasted on or else with big and lovely-balls of chenille applied at rather far intervals. Several sizes of pastilles are more in favor than the use of a single one, and several colorings, all perfectly stunning, one made its appearance at the races the other day. The material was a rather deep cream silk net, with an alluring rather than a round mesh. A medium shade of chrome yellow appeared first in rather small discs of velvet, next row in a deeper shade and slightly larger; the next in a mandarin yellow—a close cousin to our acquaintance, les coques des roches of a few seasons ago—and finally the new silk satinettes in brown velvet, the border. Worn with a gown of one of the faint pastel shades of blue broadcloth it made for a stunning appearance, the more so as the chapane combined pale blue wings, an eury horsehair straw and a knot of mauve yellow velvet.

Many of the attendants of the June brides will wear bon of those dainty tints and tulle; and here is where the material by the yard will come into play delightfully. Quite a cute trick it is—and border the bon with knots of flowers, usually to match those of the bouquets carried; and the shower of ribbons that make the tulle are looped and knotted with the little rosebuds, bunches of forget-me-nots, rose blossoms, sweet peas, or whatever the bridal blossoms may be. For the elderly lady, to whom the bon seems to appeal tremendously, but who considers the long ribbon showers far too flighty for her to wear, there are some charming ones that display quite expensive lace scarfs for a finish. Others have cravat ends of plisse chiffon or liberty; and Chantilly lace flouncing makes for a delightfully rich and yet simple effect in this connection.

SOME BROAD AND FLAT STYLES TAKE WELL

There are some exquisite shades in pale blues, in yellows—a tint that has the seal of most modish approval abroad for all purposes—pinks of several tints, and a few greens that it must be confessed cannot prove anything but ugly in close conjunction to the face or complexion. It must be remembered in selecting a bon that any color worn above the face will improve one's looks, when that same color worn below the face will take away much from the complexion. For example, red in a chapane is almost universally becoming, bringing out whatever coloring there is in the complexion, and brightening it delicately. But the same rose tint worn immediately below the face will dull whatever coloring there may be in a nose too clear skin, and spoil whatever claims it may have to distinctness and delicacy of coloring. The same may be said of the pale blue and the pinks; and even the slightest touch of yellow or grayness to the skin is sure to be emphasized most unflatteringly when those tints are worn in too close proximity to the complexion.

Fashions in Headdress.

Plumes of Many Kinds Appear.

The uncured ostrich plume is one of the latest of fashion's freaks, and, like many other fads of the moment, needs to be very cleverly and still more carefully handled, else the results are anything but modish. One of the best examples of this new mode is that of the illustration, wherein the natural ostrich feather, undyed and uncurled, is made white and treated to a fascinating little pastiche near the tip, this in a dark brown that. The effect is not altogether unlike the dyed peacock's feathers that are, how, ever, now altogether passe and out of style. The hat itself is somewhat larger than those we have become accustomed to, strange as we thought them at first. The shape is on the wide sailor order, the crown and the edge of the brim being both in white satin. Thick and careless folds of white millinette encircle the crown, the plumes starting from a loose knot, and a little bunch of ten roses are tucked here to hide the stems. The inevitable cache-peigne is rather more to the side than the back, and a foamy ruche of the white millinette entirely covers this. The shape is a good one for those whose mode of coiffure does not accord well with the vogues of the small chapane.

The "Phelps" Bebe Hat.

The bebe hat solves the problem of headgear for the half-grown girl perhaps better than any other shape that is pressing for fashionable attention just now. The stiff and set shapes seldom, or never, look well upon the miss of 15 or a year or so older. Either they are too mature in appearance or else they are too childish. Something to hit the juste milieu, the happy medium, is sadly wanted, and this little bebe hat seems to fill the bill better than most others. When a plainer and more severe shape is required the plain round sailor, like unto the summer hat of her brother, will be found both suitable and serviceable. The smart one of the picture is eminently easy of construction, even for the amateur milliner. The material is altogether of a narrow Hamburg flouncing, or else a rather wide edging is used. The crown is made after the Tam O'Shanter shape—full and puffy—and the embroidery, which, incidentally, shows some insertions of guipure and by a Irish crochet among the alternate blind and open work, is altered to the crown to make the upper brim. The under part is filled in with two rows of blue silken lawn, each edged with a narrow Valenciennes lace. There is a velvet-covered bandau all the way around the headsize, a trifle steeper at the left side, to give the change of the desired tilt. Soft white satin ribbon is looped along this, a rosette occupying the left in the shape, while the same ribbon is twisted into a broad abating bow that takes up the entire left side of the hat against the crown. A close little cluster of Scotch roses is tucked in at the other side and the shape is deuced in against the hair in the back.

Modes of the Midsummer.

Fashions in Millinery Become Simpler - The Fussified Hat Still With Us However - The Lingerie Chapeau.

The season may now be said to have gained its second wind; and it is interesting to note that many of the fads and features that were ushered in at the start as being the one and only correct thing have disappeared utterly, never to return it is devoutly hoped.

Although one hears more or less of the directorate styles in costume, it must be acknowledged that the milliner is making far more use of the suggestions furnished by this period than is the dressmaker. The high-crowned and generous width of brim that characterized the headgear of those days make up charmingly in straw of several genres. Although intended for midsummer wear, the aforesaid high crown is usually eschewed in a steep velvet band, and bows of velvet ribbon are generously employed in its trimming.

Feathers of all sorts and characters that there is to be some little touch or another added along the pull—it is left unfinished so that this item may be in accord with madame's order—that it takes on any hint or suggestion of smartness whatsoever.

Wings and breasts make a brave showing where the trimming of the cutting or shirtwaist or tailored hat—you can term it what you will—is concerned. Here straws of all kinds are in vogue, from the coarse, rough-and-ready straw to the finest chip and panna.

The real leghorn is receiving an almost unprecedented amount of attention, and from the plain and flower trimmed chapane up to the costly plume-laden and glittering affair that Madame Modiste will, smilingly ask some $75 for, there is a field for each and every example. Parisian milliners are facing the under brim with the new panne satin, either in black,

Morning glories, pansies in the full range of natural tints from white right on down through the blues and yellows into the richest and deepest purple, and with just enough of green tinge to tone in the riot of tints are in high favor. Roses, it goes without saying, are in the very forefront of the trimmings, but the latest fad is to mix them with some of the smaller blossoms, and effecting some little contrast of color as well as variety after this wise.

The thinnest of white heather, forget-me-nots, not a lota larger than the natural blossom, little wild violets that follow the blue tones rather than the purple, and small moss rosebuds are mixed and mingled with hydrangeas that display the full range of soft and somewhat alured colorings that this dainty bloom displays. It is but seldom that the milliner uses one blossom alone—usually it is supplied with another of strongly contrasting size and color.

The lingerie hat presents itself under so many guises—and all of them, incidentally, charming ones—that in its latest appearance there is not much left to suggest the original model. For bridesmaids and for dressy summer time uses with the flilly and fluty frocks of lingerie persuasion, there are countless manifestations of the popularity of this mode. One clever maker has brought out a plain and severe one that can be taken apart for a visit to the laundry, and then put-toned together again in an instant after the required cleansing.

From this one to the exquisite one pictured on this page, which a sheer silk mill—it is almost as fine as a silk hotting cloth—is cut into semicircular ruffles and edged liberally with real Valenciennes, is a far cry, and between the two extremes there are countless models that declare their own charm unmistakably.

And, it is to be noted, that notwithstanding the furor that the small and perilously tipped chapane has made for

are in the highest esteem, right in the very first flight of fashion. Ostrich plumes have acquired such a length and thickness that their cost has increased in proportion. It is not at all an uncommon thing for the milliner to order a 45 or 54 inch plume, the end of which may be either two or three thick tassels of feathers that shall hang well down over the steep cache-peigne at back or side; or else the finish is three tips, each standing well up at a different angle, the extreme ends being as full and bushy as well may be. With such delightful effects it is no wonder that the smart modistes are demanding anywhere from $30 up and on. It is chiefly and up—for a dressy chapane.

The uncured ostrich plume is making a strong bid for favor with the Parisians. This is a style that it takes a great deal of cleverness and still more care to handle to any sort of good effect. At first glance the feather itself is wont to look damp and bedraggled; and it is not until the wily vendor announces a dark brown or one of the dand shades of rose, the facing leaving an inch or two of the leghorn exposed at the edge. And the charm of it is that this facing and its color are in no wise dependent upon the color or kind of trimming that decorates the top. Just whatever will best bring out the color of hair and eyes is correct, the one point, and the only one, it would seem, to be insisted upon being, that it prove becoming.

The color of the Panama and Leghorn brides—when the natural or unbleached product is used—is usually far from becoming to the average complexion and complexion; hence the fad for facings upon these.

But it is the lower laden hat that is really the novelty of the later season. Large shapes are succumbing to the small ones that ushered in the summer days. White chip, crin, horsehair, peroxylon, and even silk and mohair braids—of the trimming variety—are in use. The brims are wired and undated prettily, and the flowers are used with a lavish hand.

THE LITTLE NATTEAU TIP-TILT

Itself, there are many of the low, broad and flat shapes that are quietly being made up for those whose taste does not run to ultra things. The necessary note of the present is added to those in the shape of a bandeau that fits itself somewhere—usually on the left side—and in the little nook so made there is quite a mass of flouncing bunched. Those shapes are undeniably becoming to the large majority of women, and, doubtless, they will more than hold their own when the successes of the season come to be sifted out.

But, perhaps, the most prominent feature of all the hats, regardless of size or classification, is the widespread vogue of tulle—or, to speak more correctly, of the new millinette. The fact that this flimsy fabric has now been made damp-proof, without parting with a single trace of its insubstantial pagentry, has made the milliner use it recklessly for all sorts of trimmings. To fill in the steep, tipped cache-peigne, to ruche and ruffle into a frothy plume effect, to tie in cravat fashion around the hat crown and to make fascinating bows and even muffs of it for dressy use, both the milliner and her customer alike have fallen willing victims to its charms and serviceability.

The Fad for Plants

"There is an extreme popularity for those dwarf Japanese plants," remarked a Fifth avenue florist the other day. And, by the way, he is just the one to tell exactly what is in vogue in modish circles and what has been abandoned, since he attends to the floral wants of the so-called Four Hundred.

"The dwarf fern and plant, which have oftentimes taken as long as 20 years to reach even the small size that is in vogue just now," he went on, "are in the highest favor with the wealthy who have homes in New York. Here, of necessity, conservative at all. However, since most are more often than not a projection thrown out from a bay window, and it were an excess of dignity to call them conservatory at all. However, since most of their owners have real, full-sized conservatories at their country places, perhaps the term is not so misplaced after all.

"Little dwarf cacti, foliage plants and small century plants, to say nothing of dwarf orange and lemon trees, are what are purchased most often. Dwarf trees, ferns, come in for a share of esteem, and there is a little dwarf bayonet tree, with its many suckers pendant from the branches to be drawn into the soil and so make new roots for further bayonet trees, that is at once a curiosity and an ornament.

"There is a little Jap who has a small country place over on Long Island who makes a specialty of raising these dwarf specimens, and he is simply doing a handsome business nowadays. Just what has given this impetus to the dwarf plant and tree business it is hard to tell. Those things come and go like all other fads. But certainly it is that in the necessarily crowded city home these little things take up but little space, and make for the most decorative effect in the smallest space imaginable.

SMALL SAILLOES ARE TREASURED AT THE BACK

Extra cars have also been added by the Interstate Traction company, and it is now in position to accommodate any crowds that may attend the park this summer, even without the aid of the steamer.

One feature of the park which has been given little or no prominence is the fact that the Shubert family had engineered the preliminary details of the plan long before they had secured any one for this coup, that credit goes to William F. Connor, long one of the most silent but energetic managers connected with the firm of L. B. Shubert & Co., who was interested originally in the Berlin hotel tour through advancing the financial stipulation demanded by Sara before she would leave France. "something doing" on the part of Americans in the London theatre is beginning to be taken up. It is not a new thing, but with a lively competition is on between Charles Frohman, J. J. Shubert and one of two other trans-Atlantic managers who are vying for the rights in some of this season's big successes, which, it may be remarked, are comparatively few in number. The first of these is the opportunity to present Lena Ashwell in the adaptation of the play "The Sign of the Cross" emphatically at the Savoy, but as yet nothing is definitely decided. Next is "The Sign of the Cross" and "The Dairymaids," the two London musical comedies over which the American bidding is said still going strong, though its successor is beginning to be talked of. Then there is "The Sign of the Cross," which is not only by virtue of a newly discovered American play, but also by the fact that it "make good" in the United States, but which is being taken up by the London girls' gymnasium wherein Carrie Moore, who has long been a success, is to play. And then there is a score of other comedy daisies, do some attractive situations, and a few more. The "Sign of the Cross" is being taken up by the "Counter" will also be wanted for the "Sign of the Cross" is a play which there will be any violent struggle for the rights in it. # THESE BACHELORS BULK LARGE IN THE EYE OF THE WORLD

Alfred Beit, the Richest in the World; "Silent" Smith, Richest in America; Attorney General Moody, Senators Penrose, Brandegee and Kean and Eleven Representatives in Congress; David B. Hill, Who Remained Single That He Might be President, and Failed.

By DEXTER MARSHALL.

Who's says bachelors never amount to much?

Lord Kitchener, who avenged Gordon in 1890, who won the Boer war a dozen years later, and who, as British commander in India, ousted the once all-prevailing Curzon from his post as viceroy, is a bachelor.

Alfred Beit, greatest diamond merchant alive, is a bachelor.

The late Cecil Rhodes, Beit's one-time partner and British empire builder in South Africa, who took a large hand in starting the Boer war, which only a Kitchener could win for the British, was a bachelor.

The Hon. William H. Moody, attorney general of the United States, who came so promptly to the president's rescue when the big rummage over the rate bill was on between him and Chandler, Tilden et al, is a bachelor.

Herbert Spencer, the philosopher; John C. Whitaker, the poet; Phillips Brooks, silver-tongued preacher, who died a bishop of the Episcopal church, were all bachelors.

Grover Cleveland entered the White House a bachelor, though he left it a benedict; Samuel J. Tilden, who tried for the presidency and came near getting it in 1876, died a bachelor, and David Bennett Hill, who succeeded Cleveland as governor of New York, and shaped his entire life with a view to the presidency, is still a bachelor.

Kimberley took place, Beit's personal devotion to Rhodes became almost startling. From that time on whatever Rhodes wanted of Beit's was his. Undoubtedly, says my informant, Rhodes would have been unable to do many of the things he actually accomplished without Beit's help. It is fairly well known, though not generally, perhaps, that Beit backed him to the limit more than once with his purse, and helped him, as all the world knows, in manifold other ways.

"I went to hear Rhodes speak in London one evening," said their South African acquaintance the other day. "Seated at a table near the speaker's stand was Rhodes' little friend" Beit. He had a pencil in one hand and a paper pad in the other. He was listening most intently to Rhodes' words, and every once in a while would write something on the pad, tear off a leaf and pass it to the speaker. The latter would read the message, which generally contained figures or some significant fact which Beit thought should be mentioned, roll it up in his fingers and drop it. But, as I afterward learned, he invariably used the information thus painstakingly furnished to him by his multi-millionaire follower and worshiper. In a few instances he read Beit's figures straight, to illustrate what he had to say.

"Beit was essentially a man of detail, and capable of doing an immense amount of detail. He had his health broke something like a year ago, when Rhodes took only the broad view in everything, and hated detail. Beit used to show his devotion for Rhodes during the latter's lifetime by following him into the wildest parts of South Africa, of the two partners, and who wonder at Beit's greater prominence. To one who asked Werner why he apparently kept himself so much in the background, he said he didn't, but it just happened that way.

"I know that lots of people think the leading member of this firm is Werner Beit—that I am just Alfred's given name; but that's all right if I'm satisfied, isn't it?"

"Beit went into society a good deal when he first went to London; Werner didn't, but within the past few years he has been rather forced into greater social prominence than formerly. Beit and Werner were clerks together when young men in South Africa."

Werner, Beit & Co. are not only the world's greatest dealers in diamonds in the rough, but also the greatest dealers in those South African diamond and gold mine stocks called "Kaffirs."

Each has acquired a fine town house and a country estate. Beit's is in Surrey, where, in the summer time, he gives much attention to gardening for his health. Their London offices at No. 120 Bishopsgate street, inside, are large and "palatial," and are large and "palatial," and are large and "palatial."

A romance in the shape of an infatuation for "a very great lady, indeed," is said to be the cause of Beit's bachelorhood, and nobody thinks he will ever marry.

"Silent" Smith, Richest American Bachelor.

The life of James Henry Smith, richest bachelor in the United States—who is known as "Silent" Smith—has been much less eventful than Alfred Beit's. In fact, while Beit is the richest bachelor in England, as the result of his own push, energy, industry and initiative—he has all those qualities—Smith is the most opulent unmarried man in this country, just because his father and uncle left their money to him. So far as any one knows he has never earned a dollar by his own efforts; neither has he ever taken any special interest in anything like art, science, literature, philanthropy or even sports, except in so far as necessary in the ways of his wealth in the same ways other rich and idle New Yorkers spend theirs.

The most important thing he ever did was to buy the Fifth avenue residence of the late William C. Whitney, a little more than two years ago. He is said to have paid $2,500,000 for it, and still have got it at a bargain, for if the stories are true, Whitney spent not a cent less than $3,500,000 upon the house, its site and its furnishings.

"Silent" Smith is about 50, has always been sufficiently well off to be able to move in society and to belong to the Union club, to be a member of which sets upon a man the classic seal of social standing in New York. As he is remembered by some who used to know him seven or eight years ago, his greatest achievement down to that time was to sit daily in one of the club house windows and gaze out upon the passers-by, and later daily to take a walk upon the avenue.

In those days he was noted for his imperturbability, wherefore his nickname of "Silent," but lack of loquacity can hardly be termed an achievement. At that time no one of exceptional social standing took much note of his income or his outgoings; he was all right, and he had enough money to obviate the necessity of being a borrower to keep up the modest style he affected, but not enough to make him specially eligible as anybody's son-in-law. Nor had the newspaper reporters heard much of him.

Then his uncle, George Smith, an English banker, like "Silent" Smith a bachelor, who made much of his money in Chicago before the fire, died in London leaving him some £10,000,000 sterling—$50,000,000. The news of this spread slowly and most of those who heard it were incredulous. Smith said nothing about it, but the publication of the payment of $4,500,000 inheritance tax to the British government was confirmation and then his social life in New York awoke and gave him special recognition. Since then he is understood to have been considered extremely eligible as a prospective husband for more than one of the metropolitan heiresses, but like Beit he prefers to be single, apparently, and the announcement that he is to marry would come as a genuine surprise.

He has gone into society, however, on a broad and liberal scale; his entertainments are lavish and accepted by the most exclusive, and, in short, he is as much in the swim as if he had never been merely a fairly well-to-do chap with no socially objectionable features. His prospects include heavy holdings in the iron mines near Birmingham, Ala., and a well known New York realty concern, besides a variety of other interests.

"Silent" Smith is a small man, with brown hair and mustache. He has an office in Wall street, which he visits once in a week or two, remaining from ten minutes to half an hour on each visit. He is in good shape physically, though not specially athletic in his tastes. He knows and likes good pictures.

He hires a big steam yacht nearly every year. Last year he entertained the emperor of Germany while abroad, and cut a special swath in the society columns in consequence. He is especially fond of coaching, and there are many snapshot photographs extant of him sitting on the box of a four-in-hand owned and driven by one or another well known member of New York's coaching set.

might have been much larger than it has ever been had he been willing, even slightly, to modify his political aspirations. His friends believe that had he cared to do so he might easily have become one of the modern, multi-millionaire corporation lawyers, instead of which they say he is worth only a few hundreds of thousands. No man, successful or otherwise, in politics ever strove harder to win than David B. Hill. He began at the bottom in Elmira, where he elected to locate as a lawyer, and did not hesitate to pick up the smallest details of ward politics while serving his apprenticeship for the larger game in which he was long to be a notable player.

His headquarters, one big front room and two smaller back rooms, on the second floor of a "business block" was a typical old-fashioned law office. It was the rendezvous of the Hill division of the Elmira Democracy for many years by day and night, especially the latter, when every member of the local Hill following was welcome.

The story of the gatherings there almost every evening the whole year through, during Hill's entire local career, would make an admirable chapter in a novel describing nineteenth century American political life from the bottom to the top. Though the office door was always open to all his faithful followers, the majority of them never got beyond the front room. The back rooms were reserved for Hill himself, and his most trusted lieutenants.

Those who knew him have often said that the life of a woman married to a spending his cash here and not going to England to cut a London dash with his uncle's money, as he easily could, even though his fortune is only about one-twentieth as large as Alfred Beit's.

David B. Hill at Wolfert's Roost.

David B. Hill, at 63, his highest political ambition unfulfilled, and still single, is living quietly on his interesting estate, Wolfert's Roost, just outside of Albany, the city to which he was called from Elmira as lieutenant governor when Cleveland was made governor. By virtue of the office to which he had been elected, Hill succeeded Cleveland as governor when the latter was elected president; was elected governor in 1888, though Cleveland failed of re-election to the presidency; was chosen United States senator in 1891, and was defeated for governor in 1894.

That defeat virtually closed Hill's public career a dozen years ago, though had not the free silver movement complicated the situation in 1896, bringing Bryan to the front and retiring W. C. Whitney, Grover Cleveland and others—practically the entire contingent of old line Eastern "hard money" Democrats, as well as Hill—he would probably still be a figure to reckon with in national and state politics.

So far as any one knows there never was a romance in Hill's life. The sole cause of his long bachelorhood has been his overmastering political ambition.

As a boy in the village of Havana, N. Y., he was poor and had to earn his own living. For some years he was a newsboy. He read closely the papers he sold, and long before reaching man's estate decided to try for the highest political prizes. Even in his early teens he understood that the ladder from the level of the newsboy to the presidency was a long and steep one, and that he would have a hard job trying to climb it. To complicate the task by taking a wife and raising a family might frustrate the accomplishment of what he determined should be his one great purpose in life.

So completely was he absorbed with the notion of great political success, of what he determined should be his one great purpose in life, that he chose the low as acclimating, mainly because it could be used as a stepping stone to political success than any other way of earning a living.

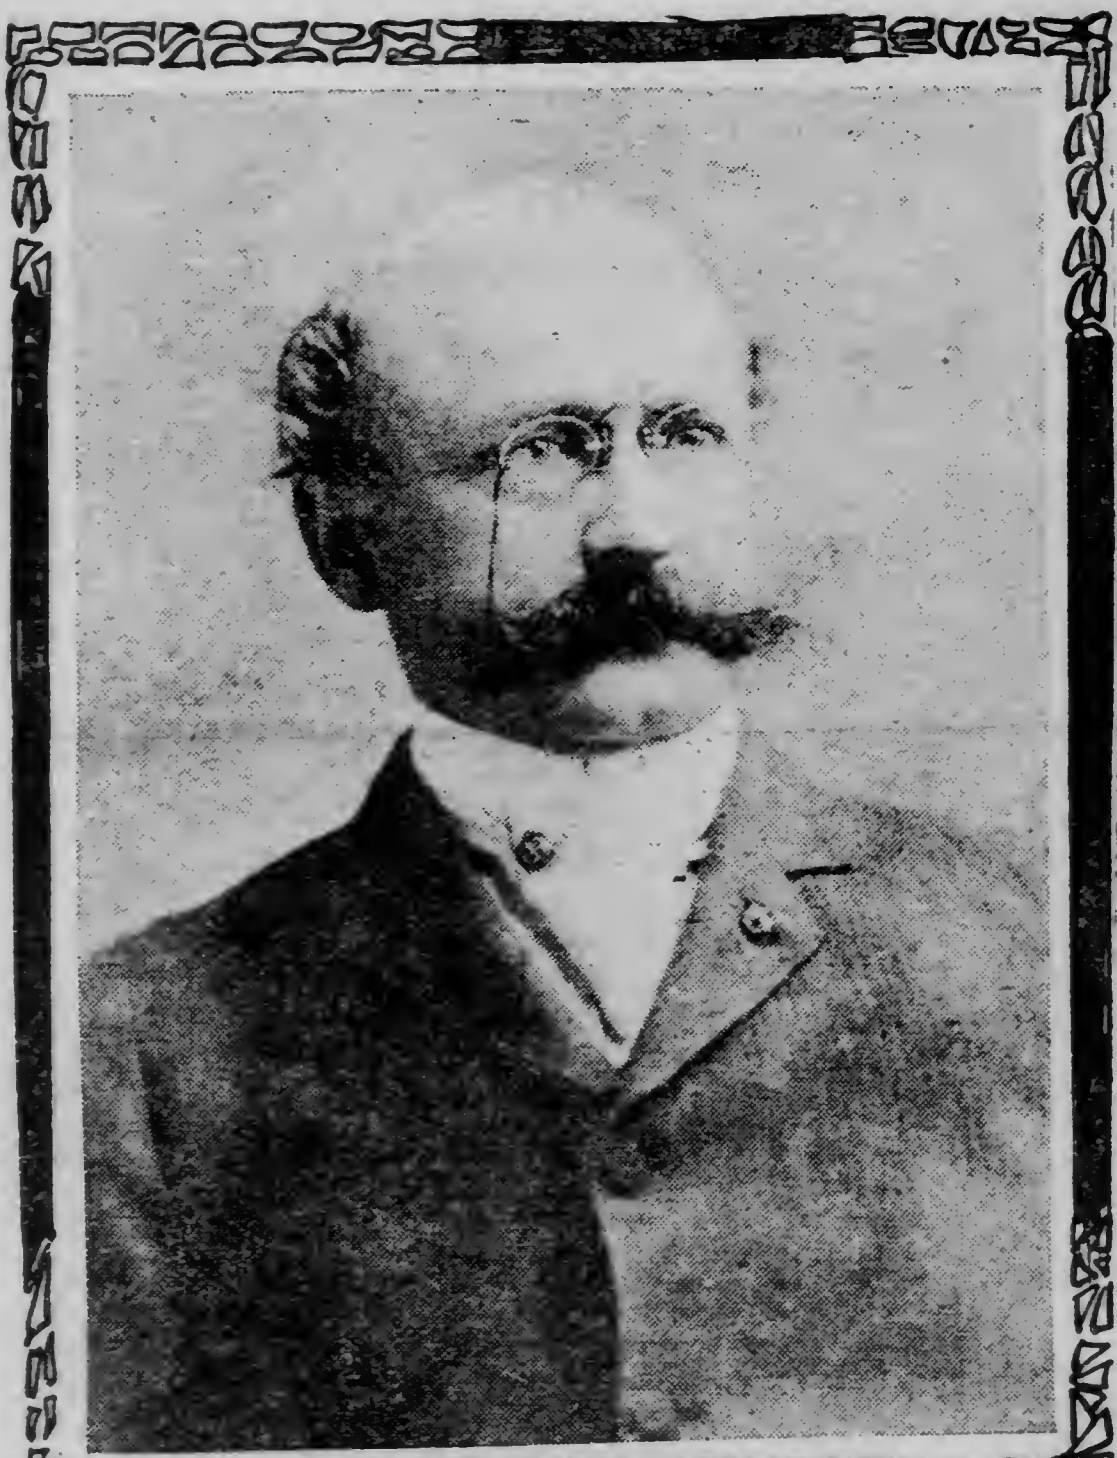

It is easy to see why he has been successful in the law and greatly devoted to it, his profession has always been secondary, and that his income man so devoted to politics as he was to England to cut a London dash with his uncle's money, as he easily could, even though his fortune is only about one-twentieth as large as Alfred Beit's.

The house at Wolfert's Roost, his home, was built by Fritz Emmet, the singing German comedian. It is a quaint, rambling, picturesque and altogether delightful frame structure, embowered in trees, just to the north of Albany and between that city and Troy, overlooking the Hudson. There Mr. Hill now spends his time when not at his Albany law office, giving many hours to his library, and others to walking about the thirty-six acres of his estate. He always was a good walker, and he goes about a good deal in his light two-seated phaeton, though always with a coachman to drive, for he doesn't like to hold the reins himself. Mr. Hill's only exercise, aside from walking, is swimming, in which he delights. His house contains a superb swimming bath, and he still goes to the seashore every year to bathe in the surf.

He entertains a good deal, his guests almost always being those who were his followers in his political prime. They will tell you that he is not, and never was, a woman hater; he often asks the wives of his friends to accompany them on visits to Wolfert's Roost, and the women who have been among his guests say his courtesy to them is of the rarest and most delightfully old-fashioned type.

Mr. Hill's residing is much broader now than it was in the old days. Within the last few years he has read much general history and most of the world's classic fiction, though he still prefers law, legal and political history and the biographies of men

Chas. P. Steinmetz, the electrical expert, is a bachelor.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the perennial seeker after America's cup, is a bachelor.

Fourteen members of the United States congress, three of them senators, are bachelors, some of them confirmed ones.

And there are others; still, it must be confessed that while the men named have all scored heavily in the game of life, the list is not imposing for its length.

Beit the Richest Bachelor.

At 53 Alfred Beit is the richest living bachelor, and he comes perilously near being the richest man alive, whether married or unmarried. His fortunes are so vast that they can be compared with those of no other man save John D. Rockefeller, and more than one comparative computation has been made which makes the diamond king a wealthier man than the oil trust emperor.

There is no possible way, however, of deciding which is in the lead, the most liberal estimate of Beit's wealth makes him a two-hundred millionaire, reckoning in pounds sterling, and a billionaire, reckoning in dollars. He is rich enough at all events, and though he did not begin in abject poverty, he has practically made all his money for himself.

Alfred Beit is short and fat and pale, with pudgy hands. He is getting bald, and he shaves his face clean, with the exception of a diminutive mustache. It and whatever little hair he still has are perfectly white. His eyes are pale blue, and he is very short-sighted. He dresses well, without undue display, and he has the appearance of a very well bred, well educated man of the world, which he is. He is so nervous that he actually finds it difficult to remain quiet in one place for five minutes at a time.

Though now a British legislator, he was born in the German city of Hamburg, and the money which backed him in his early South African days, when he was fighting Cecil Rhodes in the diamond fields, was German money.

A South African of my acquaintance, who knew them both in those fighting days, delighted to tell how the attitude of Beit toward Rhodes was gradually transformed. For a long time the young diamond merchant was the nascent empire builder's liveliest rival, but after the consolidation of the diamond mining interests in and about and great stories are still told there of Beit's flight at the roaring of some lions at night, near whose den he and Rhodes' party once camped on one of these trips.

The contrast in personal appearance between Rhodes and Beit was startling. Rhodes was tall and of commanding carriage; Beit was the reverse. Rhodes was deliberate in his movements, Beit was electric in his. Beit was so nervous when the investigation of the Jameson raid which precipitated the Boer war was on that his friends didn't want to let him testify. They were afraid he would collapse. But he testified all the same, and came out of the ordeal with colors flying.

Beit belongs to the "Liver Brigade."

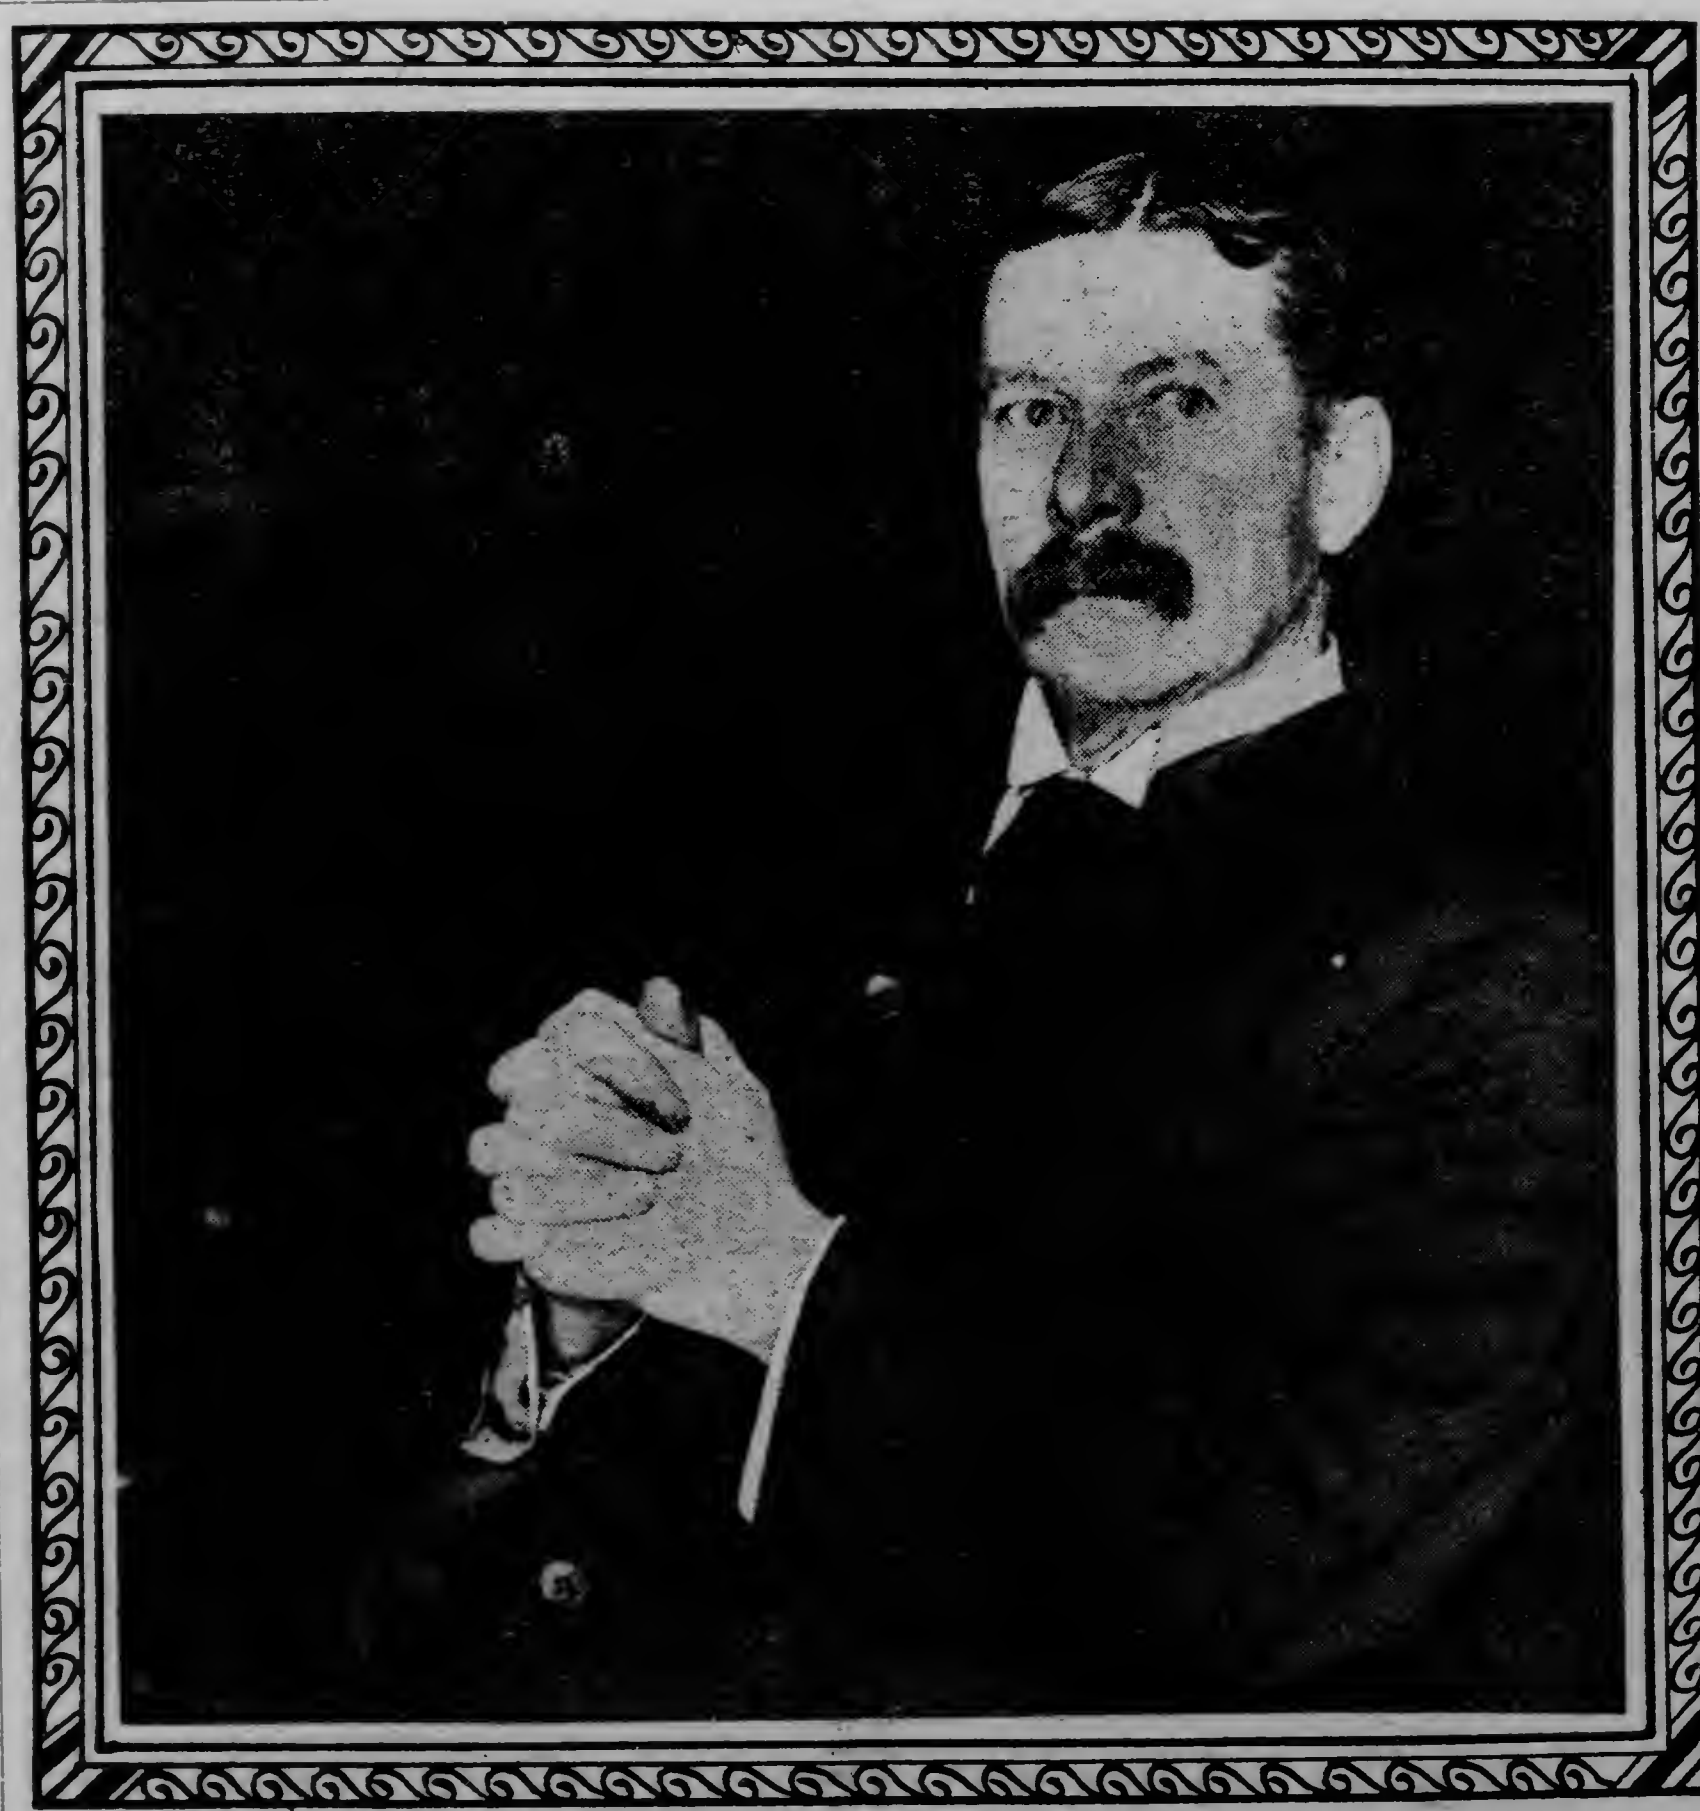

"Beit lived most of his life without taking much exercise, but some years ago he joined what is known in London as the 'Liver Brigade.' The 'liver brigadiers' are mostly men who have acquired large livers as well as great wealth in India or South Africa, and have settled down in the world's metropolis to exploit their fortunes, get into society and cure their livers. They ride in the park at 8 in the morning every day, and some of them, not having learned to ride when young, cut very funny figures on horseback. Beit is one of the funniest of the lot. His mount is of so easy a gait that the park promenade describe it as 'Beit's rocking horse.'"

"Werner, Beit's present partner—the name is pronounced Verner—is a German, as big as Beit is little, and personally his opposite in many ways. But they supplement each other admirably, and while Werner never could have done what he has without Beit, the latter would have been like a fast but rudderless torpedo boat without Werner. Werner is the man of judgment and deliberation; Beit is the genius. Once Beit bought most recklessly of certain lines of stock, forcing an immense and immediate advance. The stocks fell, however, and Beit thought the firm had lost a great deal of money. He hastened to the office of the firm, and with much penitence, told his big partner:

"We are nearly ruined!" he said. "Werner heard his partner out. Then, smiling his characteristic, slow smile, he said in his booming bass voice:

"It's all right, Alfred! It's all right. I knew what you were doing all the time and I bought the other way."

"In South Africa, at least, there are many who think Werner the stronger

SPORTING CARTOONS FOR THE WEEK

SIX CLUBS IN REGATTA

Boat Races at Lake Minnetonka Will be Big Event.

Winnipeg and St. Paul Fours Will Come Together Once More.

Indications are that the Northwest regatta, which will be held on Lake Minnetonka on July 13 and 14, will be the biggest rowing event ever held in this part of the country.

Six clubs will be represented in the races, as follows: Winnipeg Rowing club, Minnesota Boat club of St. Paul, Duluth Boat club, Fort William Rowing club, Kenora Rowing club and the Portage Lake Rowing club.

The Kenora club was formerly the Rat Portage club, and it has turned out some of the world's most famous oarsmen, including Jake Gaudaur, the world's champion single sculler.

The regatta will include races for junior and senior fours, junior and senior doubles, and an eight-oared race. Duluth will send down an eight-oared crew, from which a four will be chosen to row in the four-oared event. While the four is classed as a senior in the club classification, it is a junior in the regatta classification for the regatta, never having won a race, and it can, therefore, row in both the junior and senior races at Minnetonka.

The four-oared crews of St. Paul and Winnipeg, which raced against each other here last year, will both be entered in the regatta again this season. Both crews are seniors this year, as they each won a race in the junior classification last year.

The Winnipeg crew won the senior four-oared race, and the St. Paul crew the junior four-oared race, although both crews were entered in the regatta as juniors. These victories made both crews seniors, and they will not be allowed to row in the junior races at Minnetonka this year.

The Duluth regatta will be held just three days previous to the St. Paul regatta, the date chosen being Tuesday, July 19. There will be but three crews in the race here—Fort William, Port Arthur and Duluth.

About one week after the St. Paul regatta the Fort William club will hold a regatta, and the Duluth crews will go to the Canadian city for a return race.

One week from today the first club races for the medals will be held. There will be races between the junior and senior fours, and also an eight-oared race. This is the first of a series of regattas which will be held during the summer, and at the end of the season the medals or watch fobs will be awarded the men who participated in the largest number of victories.

The regatta was to have been held today, but the weather interfered so with the training that the crews were not in shape for the race.

NO REGULAR SHOOT.

Gun Club Program for Sunday Includes Only Practice Events.

No regular shoot will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Central Gun club grounds, but the members will probably hold a number of practice shots during the day.

Preparations are now being made for the big open tournament, which will be held here on July 16 and 17, and a number of the best trapshooters of the country are expected to be here at that time. The program has not yet been arranged, as the entry list is far from being complete as yet.

TEACH BOYS TO SWIM.

Y. M. C. A. Will Hold Weekly Swimming Class on Park Point.

One of the features of the summer work of the boys' department Y. M. C. A. will be a weekly swimming lesson for boys who have not yet acquired the art.

The first lesson will be given next Thursday afternoon. A good beach has been secured a short distance beyond the end of the car line on Park Point, and the boys will go there every Thursday afternoon during the summer, accompanied by Mr. Cole, the physical director, and Norman D. MacLeod, the secretary.

MEETING OF OFFICIALS

Of N. and C. C. League Will be Held at Houghton.

Will Discuss Schedule Changes and Other Important Matters.

Houghton, Mich., June 23.—Yesterday morning Percy N. Goss of the Northwest Copper Country Baseball league announced that a very important meeting of the managers of all of the teams of the league will be held in the Douglass house, in this city, next Monday morning, at 9:30 o'clock.

All of the teams will be in the Copper country at that time, and all of the managers of the teams will be present at the meeting, which will be one of the most important of the season.

Several changes will be made in the league schedule, and it is announced that an effort will be made to change all of the evening games, scheduled for this end of the circuit, so that they may be played in the afternoon.

Other important business, the nature of which cannot be announced yet, will also come before the meeting. It is said that some of the difficulties existing between the managers of some of the teams and their players will also be straightened out, and that stock companies, similar to the one managing the Houghton Giants at the present time, will be formed in one or two of the other towns of the league, and will take over the management of the teams in those cities.

Nothing definite concerning this matter can be given out yet, however. The meeting will also act on the umpire question, although the press is not free to say what this action will be.

At a meeting held in the Douglass house Tuesday night by the management of the four copper country teams and the copper country officials of the league, some of the minor tangles in which the teams find themselves were straightened out.

One of the questions talked over was that of the board and expenses of the Copper country teams while they are away from home, but still in the Copper country. This matter will also be finally settled at Monday's meeting.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—Confident that he will soon have a chance to show his ability in an Eastern ring, Al Kaufman, the California heavy weight who sprang into prominence by lasting eighteen rounds with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, is working hard to get into the ring again.

He is training at Tom Harbor's place in Tarrytown, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia, under the watchful eye of John J. Jeffries, who is his manager. Kaufman is a likely looking chap and as full of confidence as an egg is of meat. He is expected to fight O'Brien, as he figured that he was but a little better than an amateur.

AFTER THE DAVIS BOWL

History of the Great International Prize for Tennis

Offered in 1900, Has Been Competed for Four Times.

The Dwight F. Davis international lawn tennis trophy, which is the big bowl the American team now is endeavoring to win back, has earned rank as one of the big prizes for athletic competitions between nations.

Since 1900, when it first was offered, it has been considered the chief trophy of the lawn tennis world. It has been held in England since 1903, when the visiting British teams won it away from the Americans. Since that date other nations have entered into the competition for it, but it still remains in the hands of the British. The conditions surrounding it are not difficult, for instance, as those which rule for the other international trophy, the America's cup, and hopes are high that the Americans, Beals Wright, Holcomb Ward, Raymond D. Little and Kreigh Collins, will be able to break through the barrier defended by the sturdy Dohertys, Smith and Gore, and bring it back to this country.

In 1900 Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis, well known as an American college player and with Holcomb Ward, a frequent winner in doubles matches, went to England on a trip that was made for the purpose of discussing the idea of offering an international trophy, to be competed for by any nation so desiring, but which was designed to bring together the two great tennis-playing nations, the United States and England. The project was well received and a promise was made that a team would challenge when the trophy was offered. Upon his return to this side, Mr. Davis acquainted the tennis authorities here with the progress of negotiations and plans were laid accordingly. The offer of the trophy was made early in 1900.

The same year the first British team crossed to this side to try for the cup. The British team was made up of W. Gore, E. D. Black and H. R. Barrett. The conditions called for four matches in singles and one in doubles. The tournament was held on the Longwood Cricket Club grounds in Boston in August. The American players were Malcolm D. Whitman, Holcomb Ward and the donor, Dwight F. Davis.

The Americans won the first contest, Whitman defeated Gore by scores of 6-1, 6-3, 6-2. Davis beat Black, 4-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4. Ward and Davis then beat Black and Barrett in doubles and won in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. The third day's play was interrupted by rain, and the match between Davis and Barrett was postponed to the following day. The British team was defeated by scores of 9-7, 9-5, with Davis leading when the rain came. The Whitman-Black singles were not even started. The United States had won three matches and the British had to leave at once to be on time to get a boat back home. The rest of the contests were left over.

In 1901, all arrangements had been made by the Britons to send a team, and the Americans were all ready to meet them. At the last moment, however, the Britons sent regrets saying that they were unable to get together a team. There was great disappointment at this, but it was given to be understood that another challenge would be sent the year following, so the holders were content with that. In 1902 the English sent the team of Doherty, Smith and Gore, and the Americans nominated to defend Whitman and Whitcomb players when the doubles, R. F. Doherty played in singles, as did Dr. Pim. The Doherty brothers were the doubles team.

The matches were played at the Crescent A. C. courts, Hay Ridge. On the first day the Americans won each match. Larned scored 6-2, 6-2, and Whitman played Pim. Again rain interrupted the play, the Americans winning the two sets played in each match. Larned scored 6-2, 6-2, and Whitman beat Doherty, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4. The Britons showed how fine were their doubles players when the "Does" trimmed Ward and Davis, 3-6, 10-8, 6-3, 6-4. The cup was good for another season at any event.

The success of the Doherty encouraged the Britons to come back after the cup in 1903, and this time they were successful. The matches at Longwood were well worthy the object for which they were played. Although for a time it looked as if the accident to the elder Doherty might spoil the chances of the visitors for the cup, the third time rain intervened and gave the Britons their chance to recover. The visiting team brought with them H. S. Mahoney, but he did not play at all. The Dohertys took the cup unaided.

William A. Larned and Robert D. Wrenn represented America in the singles. R. D. Wrenn and George L. Wrenn, Jr., were the United States doubles. Hugh Doherty scored first for the Britons, defeating Bob Wren with consummate ease, 6-0, 6-3, 6-4. Reginald Doherty did not play against Wrenn, having won his first match in doubles at Nahant five days previous to the internationals. He defeated, so that on the first day they score stood 1-1 in matches. Permission was given the Britons to delay until the moment set for the beginning of play next day to nominate their doubles team. The British did not wish to put in Mahoney for fear that their team would be too weak, as he was not used to playing with Hugh Doherty. It rained that day and the next and Reginald Doherty's shoulder improved rapidly during the rest.

After two days of rain it was possible to play the doubles, and the Britons won after a terrific struggle.

beating the Wrenns, 7-9, 7-5, 9-7, 2-6, 6-3. The score shows how hard fought were the first three sets. That day following Hugh Doherty beat Larned, 6-7, 2-6, 6-3. The score stood 2-2, 6-0, 2-2, 7-5. In the fifth set, with games four all, the scores 15-40 in favor of Larned, the linesman's view was obstructed by a boy employed to pick up the balls, and he called a ball out on a stroke by Larned, which was said to have been in. The game was played over, and Doherty won. Larned won the following on his own service, and had the disputed point been allowed, he would have won the set and match. A victory, however, would have made no difference, for Reginald had shouldered and all beat Bob Wrenn 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 6-8, 6-4.

The shock was great. The Americans did not gather forces sufficiently to challenge the year following, and it was not until last year that a challenge was sent over. The British beat the Australians and French in 1905, and with the advent of the Americans in 1906, it became necessary to formulate new rules for playing off the ties in the series for the cup. The United States sent over Ward, Larned, William J. Clothier and Beals C. Wright.

The Americans met the French in the first round, after Belgium defaulted, the Australians being pitted against the Austro-Hungarians. Ward defeated Germet of France, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1, and Deconglis, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1; Clothier beat Germet, 6-3, 6-7, 6-1, 6-3, and Deconglis, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, 6-3. In the doubles Ward and Wright defeated Germet and Deconglis, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2. The Australians having beaten the Austrians, met the Americans for the privilege of challenging the British. Larned defeated S. E. Brooks, 14-12, 6-0, 6-3, and A. F. Widling, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, and took Clothier into camp, 6-5, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3. Wright beat Brooks and W. Dunlop in doubles, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2.

In the challenge round the English made a clean sweep, winning all five matches. Wright, who played brilliant tennis against the Australians, was not included in the team against the British, strangely enough. H. L. Doherty defeated Ward, 7-9, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0, 6-8, 6-4, 6-2. S. H. Smith beat Larned, 6-4, 6-4, 6-7, 6-4, and took Clothier into camp, 6-5, 6-1, 6-4, 6-3. The Dohertys won the doubles from Ward and Wright, 2-10, 6-2, 6-2, 4-6, 1-6. This was the best match of the tournament.

SIX CLUBS FOR REGATTA

To be Held at Lake Minnetonka July 13 and 14.

St. Paul, June 23.—Another boost was given to the Minnesota-Winnipeg regatta to be held at Lake Minnetonka July 13 and 14, when the Kenora club, which yesterday signified its intention of competing. This makes six clubs that will be represented, the others being the Minnetonka boat club, the Duluth, Winnipeg, Port William and Portage Lake clubs.

The Kenora club, which was formerly the Rat Portage club, has turned out many strong oarsmen, including Jake Gaudaur, that world's champion single sculler. The Kenora club did not state how many crews it will send down nor in what events they will enter, but it is probable that it will send four-oared crews for both the junior and senior events.

The senior four that will represent Winnipeg in the regatta will be the same crew that rowed against the Minnesota junior four at Duluth last summer. On account of the illness of one of the members of the crew and the absence of another, it was at first thought that the senior four would be a new one, but the same men are now working hard for the regatta, and all expect to row. A curious thing concerning this crew and the Minnesota four is that each crew became seniors last year by defeating the other.

SCHOLES WILL NOT ROW AGAINST GREER.

Toronto, Can., June 23.—There will be no opportunity to decide the question of rowing superiority between Scholcs and Frank B. Greer in the single sculls at the national regatta at Worcester in August, because Scholcs has announced that he would not meet Greer. Many attempts have been made to bring them together during the past three years, but all have failed. Scholcs has not, and will not, reconsider his determination, made upon his return to this country after winning the diamond sculls in England, to confine his rowing in the future to crew work.

BILLY DEHANY ON KAUFFMAN

Thinks Californian Will be the Next Heavyweight Champion.

Philadelphia, June 23.—Confident that he will soon have a chance to show his ability in an Eastern ring, Al Kaufman, the California heavy weight who sprang into prominence by lasting eighteen rounds with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, is working hard to get into the ring again.

He is training at Tom Harbor's place in Tarrytown, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia, under the watchful eye of John J. Jeffries, who is his manager. (Ladies' day at the ball grounds.)
"Aren't those Grand Forks boys stunning fellows?" said the girl with the gum, as she looked at a picture under her at the grand stand yesterday afternoon, adjusted her belt, smoothed out her dress, and turned her full attention to the elusive place of residence between her teeth, and the game before her.

"Aren't they?" asserted her companion, as she opened a cornucopia of business peanuts and settled down to business, meanwhile mentally cataloguing the summer thug's round hit.

There was silence for a moment, broken only by the crumpling of the paper. "Oh, there, they're going to be a little better," Jack said, looking at the picture. "He's a fine fellow. He says he's got twenty hits since he's been playing in Duluth, and that nineteen of them were fairs. Doesn't he throw the ball fast?"

The girl with the gum was non-committal on Krick.

"Look at the funny blouse the umpire has on," said the girl with the gum, breaking a silence of nearly a minute and a half, during which the visitors had been retired for the first time. "It's not like these new summer blouses. I'm getting one made of crepe de chene, out on the bias, with a gump and trimmed with lace extension in the back."

"At this juncture the reporter halted the boy, who was about to throw the ball, and said: 'The girl with the gum is not so hard to make blisters on the other men's heads.'"

The game progressed smoothly until the fourth, both pitchers working nicely, and showing a very strong disposition to keep the ball in the park.

In the fourth inning was a dispute on Harb's error, and went to second on a wild pitch. McCormick cracked out one of his Texas leaguers, scoring him, but showed that he was not so hard to make blisters on the other men's heads.

"There's Summers batting now," said the girl with the gum, "Jack says he's a dandy. He's got a wild pitch, but he's got a hard hit makes blisters on the other men's heads."

Aristocrats Use Up Two Houghton Pitchers, Getting Seventeen Hits.

Columet, Mich., June 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a grand slugfest at the Columet park yesterday, and the Aristocrats had far the better of the match. The Houghton men found Foulkes for ten safe ones, and the bunched in the fifth and sixth, but they could only get four runs at that, the Columet men holding him floods and accepting every chance without a mis-play.

The Aristocrats used up two Houghton pitchers. Hastings started the game, but he was touched so hard in the first, but he was not so hard to make blisters on the other men's heads.

The game progressed smoothly until the fourth, both pitchers working nicely, and showing a very strong disposition to keep the ball in the park.

In the fourth inning was a dispute on Harb's error, and went to second on a wild pitch. McCormick cracked out one of his Texas leaguers, scoring him, but showed that he was not so hard to make blisters on the other men's heads.

SYSONBY, JAMES R. KEENE'S GREAT COLT, WHICH DIED SUD- DENLY LAST SUNDAY.

SENSATION OF THE TURF FROM FRISCO

In England Now is Danny Maher, the American Jockey.

Has Won the Derby at Epsom Downs Three Times.

Cincinnati, June 23.—Danny Maher, the American jockey, is just now the sensation of the turf in England. His victories in the Derby and Oaks, a few weeks ago, at the famous Epsom Downs course, is something that any rider might well feel proud of; but Maher's record is even more remarkable.

He started in life as a poor boy, but he has never forgotten his old-time friends and acquaintances in this country. Maher is the son of a Hartford (Conn.) saloon keeper and a 25 years of age. He has been riding about ten years, and spent about half that number of years abroad. He has won the Kentucky Derby three times, and also the English Derby three times, and also the Kentucky Derby three times, and also the English Derby three times.

One of Maher's boyhood friends is Jockey Frank Duffy, of this city. Duffy has known Maher since the first day he ever stepped foot on a racetrack, and was very chummy with the little Yankee during his early days in the country.

"A most perfect gentleman is Danny Maher," remarked Duffy last night. "He started in life as a poor boy, but he has never forgotten his old-time friends and acquaintances in this country. # GIANTS LOSE CONFIDENCE Murnane Says They Are Showing Effects of Hard Work.

Both Mathewson and Darlin Are Out of the Hunt.

New York, June 23.—And now it looks like the Giants, the champions of the world, are badly in need of the baseball physician. Just one game convinced me that McGraw's men have lost confidence. Evidently Murphy's Chicago boys turned the trick here last week when they fairly slaughtered the local Nationals. From aggressive, sure workmen they look tired and worried, and now every club in the league will play against the Giants with more confidence and it would not surprise me a bit to see the team a big disappointment. John McGraw is worried; in fact, every one connected with the Giants wears worried expressions until the fans are affected and the attendance at the games here has materially dropped off, all visiting league clubs expressing their surprise at the falling off in patronage this season.

President Murphy of the Chicago club, assured me that his club did better business in Brooklyn than at the Polo grounds. The Polo grounds roster was not stick unless the team is winning, is the expression of the baseball men.

The good work of Frank Farrell's Highlanders has caught the New York fans in earnest for the first time, as the Giants were practically invisible. The Highlanders were considered outsiders, but that feeling has changed as pronouncedly as the appearance of a young drink in a duck procession bound for a quiet nook.

The Giants depended on players of ripe experience and must revamp with some clever youngsters and will grow strong. The baseball situation in New York is bound to completely change in this city this year. Both Mathewson and Darlin are out of the hunt this season, with the chances that Mathewson is out for good. The great pitcher was but a shadow of his former self as he went out for practice last Tuesday before the game at the Polo grounds. The other members of the team must feel keenly the loss of such a mastery, all-round workman as Mathewson, and "It's all off for the Giants" was the expression I heard among the league players here. I find players picking Pittsburgh for the honors this season, figuring that such a lack of a clutch will not finish the distance strong.

The Chicago men have great confidence in their ability, and that counts for much, especially when they are breaking in the right direction. Charley Murphy is traveling with the boys and has explicit faith in Manager McGraw. I have often seen ball teams leading the procession July 4 to fall by the wayside and finish as a last place result of taking the business too seriously.

Last players talk about a championship the better off they are. Fred Clarke has gone through the experience, and with a few fast youngsters in the fold and the old stars back in the fold, the Chicago boys have a stronger team than New York to fear this season.

Flag raising day here this week was far from a success, while the streets were crowded with people to witness this procession. It being on Monday the school boys failed to turn out, and the real attraction was the players and the crowd at the grounds was a big disappointment to Secretary Fred Clarke. Mike Schreck will be likely to show the absurdity of trying to celebrate an event of this kind six months after the hours were gathered in.

The very best money-maker in baseball is a club to get a poor start, and then gradually force to the top. This season the Chicago boys have a stronger team than New York to fear this season.

WATER PEARL IS BEST YOUNGSTER

In East and Opposition Not Likely to be Strong.

New York, June 23.—After the deluge of rain which has been poured on his field, no doubt need to be entertained as to the best two-year-old that has been seen since the late autumn of 1905. The looking son of Watercolor and Pearl V simply made his opponents look like a bunch of old men. He was perfectly safe before three furlongs had been traversed and he was holding them perfectly safe and substance of a dry horse, Water Pearl combines a lot of quality and grace and is hardly to be wondered at when he is behind the saddle and across the coup.

It is extremely doubtful if anything approaching him will be brought out this season. He is a fine looking brown colt, who has not yet faced the barrier, but Burlew himself bought him for $10,000. ## CRIPPLE CREEK DISRECT

Reduced Dividend by El Paso Mine—Fully Seven Thousand Miners at Work in District at Present.

Colorado Springs, June 23.—The El Paso Consolidated Gold Mining company has declared its regular quarterly dividend of one cent a share, or $24,600. The last dividend was paid March 28. Its total was $75,000. The mine has been under repair since early in April and operations have been greatly limited.

The Work Gold Mining and Milling company will declare a dividend early in July from $2,000 now in the treasury, to which additions are being made from royalties. The company is now operating the El Paso mine, which is the largest of its kind in the district. It is estimated that the mine will produce about 100,000 tons of ore this year. The company is also operating the El Paso mine, which is the largest of its kind in the district. It is estimated that the mine will produce about 100,000 tons of ore this year.

The new mill of thirty tons daily capacity at work on the Maple Leaf mine at Silverville, near Gunnison, is satisfactorily treating the large low grade ore reserves of the mine by amalgamation and concentration. The mine has yielded ore carrying as high as $2,000 a ton values. The ore now is coming from extensive underground workings at 400 feet depth. The Pleasant Valley Mining and Milling company has recently installed an up-to-date concentrating plant and is handling a large tonnage from its Hill mine near Central City, Colo. Since June 1 the Eagle sampler at Cripple Creek has handled 600 tons of ore daily. Other companies are busy. The Junction section will probably be ready for May, which was in advance of that for any month in 1906.

The Colorado Boss No. 1, of the Cripple Creek Consolidated company on Gold Hill, is shipping 40 tons of ore daily to the King and Craig mill at Anacoda.

ALASKA MINING

Seattle, June 23.—Five steamers have sailed direct for Alaska mining districts, to be followed by as many more before the expiration of the week. They are loaded to the gunwales with mining supplies, provisions and passengers for the mining districts. The steamer "Albatross" is expected to arrive in Seattle during the past week for the Alaska district. It is expected to be fully loaded with mining supplies and passengers. Hill City, S. D., June 23.—Frank Hebert, the original owner of the Clara Bell, who recently sold the property, is at work now developing some valuable claims which he has in the Clara Bell. He has a large amount of property in that section upon which some small developed veins are shown. The prospects on the surface have been discovered.

MICHIGAN IRON RANGES

would be so stupendous that it is not at all likely the steel corporation would venture into the proposition. More probable, the big company, now that it is enlarging its steel-making operations at the foot of Lake Michigan, will make a bid for John R. Walsh's Wisconsin & Michigan railroad. This line extends from Peshigo, Wis., to Norway, Wis., and is owned by the Menominee iron range, and prior to the recent banking panic, it was owned by the Wisconsin & Michigan iron range.

of two modern "drys," or changing houses, for the miners employed at the Maas and Princeton mines. The structures will be similar in equipment and design to that recently built at the Lake shaft of the Cleveland mine at Princeton. This will be 300 feet in length, by thirty in width, and will be a solid brick structure, resting on a foundation of stone and concrete. It will be divided into three large compartments by solid brick walls. That at one end will be a dressing room for the men; the middle compartment will be fitted up as a changing room, and will be equipped along the walls on three sides with lockers constructed of sheet steel, in which the miners will keep their street clothing, and with racks along the center on which to hang their dressing garments. Off from this room will be the wash room, which, besides containing the usual wash tubs, will be equipped with removing the stains of grease and iron ore, will be lined at one side with a row of hot and cold water faucets. Two small rooms adjoining this at the end of the building will be fitted up, one as an office for the mining agent, and the other as a place in which injured men can be cared for prior to the arrival of the ambulance. They will be Princeton will be an exact counterpart of that at the Maas and Cleveland Lake shaft. The latter will be as long, its length being 135 feet.

The big new hoisting plant recently installed at the Cleveland mine at Princeton's Cliffs shaft mine at Ishpeming is giving excellent satisfaction. It is of considerably greater capacity than the machinery it has superseded, and a larger force will now be employed underground. Places are open for 100 or more men, although as miners are scarce it will likely be some weeks before the number required can be secured. The work of the new hoisting plant is being done by the big building in which was housed the old Neagawane Concentrating works. It has been completely renovated, and the promoters expected would revolutionize the method of treating ore has become but a memory. In theory, the scheme was a beautiful one, but in practice the invention was a dismal failure, the hard Jasper rock wearing out the rolls as fast as they could be put in, and costing something like $400,000 had been sunk by the New York syndicate interested in the project. The new hoisting plant was long ago removed. The building fell into the hands of the Cleveland Cliffs mine, and last year when the holdings of the old Jackson company were taken over. Something like 500,000 feet of good Jasper was taken from the structure, besides much lumber which will be serviceable for blocking and other purposes about the mine.

The Lake Superior & Ishpeming railway, an ore road, owned jointly by the Cleveland Cliffs and the Jackson companies, and which extends from their mines at Ishpeming and Neagawane to the ore docks of the Lake Superior at North Marquette, has adopted the policy of retiring its wooden cars. It has added 250 steel cars to its equipment within the past year, and has 100 more under construction at Pittsburgh. Like those already in service, these are of 100,000 pounds capacity. They will be delivered at Marquette some time during the summer. Contrary to expectation, mining operations have not yet been resumed at the Steel Corporation's Champion mine near Ishpeming. The mine, which has been idle the past two and one-half years, and was recently declared to be a failure. However, the new machinery has been delayed in arriving, and until they put in an appearance and are installed in place nothing can be done. At a Section 16 mine at Ishpeming, the company is preparing for the erection of a new boilerhouse. A new battery of boilers will be installed here, and that now in commission will be shipped to the Tilden mine, one of the new range.

Pickands, Mather & Co. are to open another new mine in the Iron county portion of the Mesquimont range. This will be done at the L. A. DeGrasse property in Spring Valley. Explorations have been in progress here with a diamond drill the past few months, and the developments have been so flattering that a fifty-year lease has been taken to the tract, and preparations are being made to sink a shaft. It was learned a few days ago that the East Butte Copper company had attempted some time ago to secure the smelter of the Pittsburgh & Montana Copper company, either by lease or purchase, but the negotiations did not pan out. It is understood that the East Butte has not yet given up hope in the matter and is still engaged in the attempt. Whether the negotiations will turn out all right, remains to be determined. The smelter is in operation, having been closed down April 1, for an indefinite period.

According to report, the Davis-Daly Estates company contemplates greater achievement than the driving of a long crosscut south of the 1,800-foot level on the Original mine for the purpose of intersecting the veins traversing its ground. The company is now engaged in the driving of the crosscut, and is now figuring on driving from the bottom of the Original mine a crosscut to tap the veins of the Mt. Moriah, beginning the work in both directions. The crosscut will be about 2,000 feet long, and will have a northwesterly course, provided the company decides to drive it. The Mt. Moriah is one of the claims on which the company proposed to sink a deep shaft.

Hyannis, Mass., Aug. 17, 1905.

CHAS. H. FLETCHER, New York City.

Dear Mr. Fletcher:—I wish to congratulate you on your numerous victories over counterfeiters and imitators of Castoria, and trust the time is not far distant when these inferior and dangerous mixtures will be entirely suppressed.

You are right when you say in your advertisements that it is "Experience against Experiment."

I feel it to be an outrage, and an imposition upon the parents of little children that my name should be associated with imitations of Castoria, dangerous to the health and life of these little ones who too often fight their battles for life in vain.

CAMP LIFE, A Vacation Story for Boys. By William Wallace, Jr.

There were six of the boys from the Ferry School in the scheme. They had talked it over for a week before school closed for the summer, and now that vacation was really with them the "scheme" became a plain possibility.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said Tom, the leader of the six. "We'll go over on Scott River and pitch the camp. Round about that region there are lots of Indian graves and mounds, so I'm told. And who knows—we may find a lot of dandy Indian relics."

"Sure; that's the place to camp," agreed Frank. "We can spend our time between digging for Indian relics and fishing."

"When shall we start?" asked Bert, third important of the six.

"Tomorrow," answered Tom. "And each of the half a dozen wants to take along enough grub to last a week. We don't want to have to come back to headquarters for supplies."

"That's right!" exclaimed Sneed, Wait and Harry, the three who had as yet been listeners instead of talkers.

"I can lug about 20 pounds of grub besides my blanket and fishing tackle," suggested Sneed.

"Won't need that much," said Tom. "We want to have enough to live on, but we can depend on fish for some of our meat and we must not overload ourselves."

Then the six decided to sit down, and with pencil and paper figure out just what would be needed in the way of camp supplies.

"Well, we'll take a bag of meal and make our own hoeecake," said Tom. "Camp life with everything cooked for us would lack the real flavor. I've been with papa on camping trips and I've paid close attention to the way he conducted the camp. So trust to me to manage the preparation of our meals, which, after we are located in camp, we'll call the 'mess'."

Then sugar, coffee, bacon, a little flour, a can of lard, a can of butter, salt and pepper and baking powder were added to the list which had been headed with a bag of meal.

"And now that we've got the things to cook, we must not forget the utensils to cook them in," explained Tom. "We must have a thick iron skillet in which to fry our corn cakes, fish and bacon; a coffee pot, a few knives, forks, one spoon—which can be passed around—two plates for bread and meat and six tin cups. I think that is about all we'll need."

"Matches!" exclaimed Wait.

"Sure, a dozen boxes!" cried Sneed. "I've heard that one uses lots of matches when building camp fires."

"We'll take along plenty of matches, of course," said Tom. "But if a person understands how to build a camp fire there's no need to waste a lot of matches. All you want to do is to find an old piece of hollow log, drag it to the place where you build your stone fireplace and with some bits of dry, dead twigs and bark stir start the blaze inside the hollow log, where the wind can't put it out. When it is fairly caught carefully lift it to the fireplace under the edge of the dry timber piled up to cook over and you've a fire in a jiffy, having used only one match. For you scratched the match inside the hollow log, over which you held your hat."

"Ah, I see!" said Wait. "Gee, you're as wise as a tree full of owls when it comes to camp pumpton, aren't you?"

"Well, I've camped with men who know the business pretty thoroughly," admitted Tom, with a certain pride in his knowledge.

"Well, it seems to me we'll have our lark was singing its first song to the dawn, Tom was busy loading Jumbo with the camping outfit which had been collected from the six homes the night before and stored in Tom's father's barn. Before the task was completed footsteps sounded on the board sidewalks and into the yard came the other five boys, some of them still heavy-eyed with sleep.

"Have you kids had breakfast?" asked Tom, with a grin, as his eyes roved from one face to the other. Each shook his head and Wait said, "Breakfast! Goodness, when I told mamma last night that I wanted to start by 5 o'clock this morning she threw up her hands in horror. 'If you do,' she said, 'you'll go without your gay banterings the half dozen comrades were soon on their way out of town. Jumbo walking along in the best humor imaginable, bearing his huge load as though it did not weigh a pound.

Several times en route the gay crowd paused to rest on the roadside, but before the clocks struck 10 in the town, which they had left just as the sun peeped over the eastern horizon, Tom pointed to a low range of hills half a mile distant and said: "Beyond them runs Scott River, and among them to our left are the Indian mounds and graves."

"Breakfast almost ready?" asked Wait, glancing at Tom.

"Yes; don't you smell the coffee?"

that they formed a deep, shady bower within. Then through these they twined and intertwined branches full of leaves cut from other trees, till a roof was made that would shed an ordinary rain. Inside this little hut of trees the bedding and provisions were put.

"If it should rain very heavily," said Frank, one of the builders, "we could stretch a couple of our blankets over the top of our wigwam and tie their corners securely to the limbs."

"Necessity is the parent of invention," quoted Wait, the second camp watcher on the first day.

After the wigwam was made secure the boys set about piling up wood near the fireplace. Then they gathered armloads of grass, which they spread in the sun to dry. This was to be piled into bed shape inside the wigwam, and over which their blankets would be spread at night. About 3 o'clock in the afternoon the four "explorers" came into camp from the hills, bringing with them several genuine Indian relics in the shape of arrow heads and one cruel-looking club made from the root of a tree. The boys were much surprised when they saw the result of Frank's and Wait's work during their absence.

"Well, everything is shipshape," declared Tom, examining the rude but safe but of saplings and branches.

"You mean campshape, don't you?" laughed Wait. Then all hands turned to get some dinner, one boy fixing the fire, a second mixing the "skillet bread," a third slicing the bacon and a fourth getting some water from the spring for coffee.

After the meal was over and the cooking utensils washed and put away the boys stretched themselves on the grass in the shade to rest and tell Indian stories. Nearby browsed Jumbo, who was picketed near enough to the spring brook to cool his throat whenever his thirst prompted him to do so.

Till evening the boys lay in the fresh, cool grass, discussing the clouds, the distance in space which produced the blue canopy that stretched above them; then as the stars came out they got up, prepared their fishing tackle and lined along the bank of the river, hoping to have something for breakfast besides bacon.

When bedtime came they counted their catch, to find about 20 splendid fish—just the size to fry whole, as Tom said—which they dressed and salted in the tin plates and set deep under the wigwam to keep cool.

Then the blankets were spread on the fresh grass beds, and the half-dozen tired, though happy, campers turned in. And how they dozed! They slept right to the music of the frogs and grass crickets! And how they dreamed of Indians, of fishing and of living in the woods. But with the first gray of dawn they were up and down at the brook washing the sleep from their eyes in the cool water.

"After a week of this fine, sweet, simple life with nature how can we ever stand to live in town again and return to the life of fashion and custom?" asked Tom, rolling the fish in some meal preparatory to frying it.

"Don't call it to mind," said Wait. "Let us not cross the bridge till we come to it. We are out here for a good time—so let us have it."

"We're having it all right," yawned Bert. "If I were anywhere else than at camp I'd not roll out of bed till sun-up. But here—here there's so much to get up for that a fellow feels like sitting up all night to keep anything nice from escaping him. But just now the best thing I know is to get."

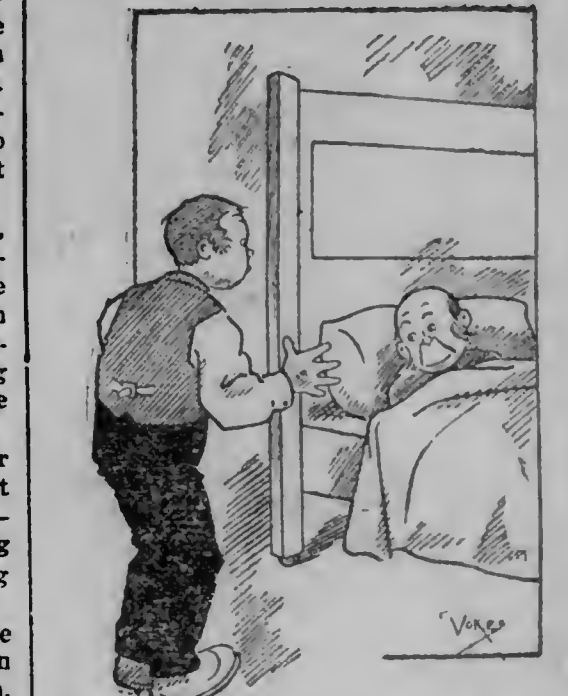

"A move on you and set the table," called Tom, bending over the frying fish. And Bert, now wide awake, obeyed the orders of his superior officer and spread the table for the morning meal.

A Cannon in Which You Can Go to Sleep.

The largest cannon in the world was taken by the English when India was conquered. The cannon was cast about the year 1350 and was the work of a chief named Chutley Koomy Khan, of Ahmednuggur. The inside of the big gun is fitted up with seats and is a favorite place for English officers to go for a quiet noontime siesta.

An Irishman, being in bed in an inn during a terrible windstorm, was warned by the landlady to get up at once, for the house was liable to fall over his head at any minute.

"What care I for the house?" said the Irishman, turning over to sleep on his pillow. "It don't belong to me; I'm only a lodger."

Laura's Confession. By Helena Davis

Laura was only 14 years old, but, being a capable girl, her mother decided to leave her in charge of the house during a part of the summer vacation, for, being in bad health herself, she needed a rest from household cares, and, feeling so confident of her little daughter's trustworthiness, she made all necessary arrangements, and the second week of the vacation season found her off to visit old friends, while Laura, eager for her mother's pleasure and benefit, stepped right willingly into the place of housekeeper and ministered to the needs of her father and young brother Ned.

Everything went on swimmingly, and Laura's father wrote the most flattering letters to his wife about Laura's wonderful management of the home; and, being so much pleased with his industrious and willing daughter, the good man promised to give her a party on her fifteenth birthday, which happy event would take place the latter part of June.

For days preceding the party Laura was very busy with the preparations, for the affair was to be given on quite an elaborate scale. Laura had taken several of her young friends into her confidence and had asked for suggestions from them as to the character the party should assume, for she very much wished the function to be out of the ordinary.

"Why not have a fancy dress party?" one little friend had asked. The suggestion was just the thing, and the invitations were sent out accordingly.

And then it was that Laura began to plan about her costume. What should she wear? Suddenly an idea came to her, but almost as quickly she shook her head and said: "No, no; I must not wear that."

But late that afternoon, when she went to her dressmaker and found it impossible to get a costume made before the date of her party, the dressmaker and her assistants being so busy with other fancy costumes for the coming event, the thought which she had banished in the morning came back, and this time instead of shaking her head and saying "No, no," she entertained the idea and said: "Why not? I'm quite sure that mamma, were she here, would readily give her consent. I'll be so careful that no accident can possibly happen."

So, without going in quest of another dressmaker, Laura hurried home and ran up stairs to the attic storeroom. "Of course," she said to herself, "I shall ask papa's advice about doing this. But I'm quite sure mamma would not object." Then she lifted the heavy lid of an old-fashioned cedar chest which had belonged to her maternal grandmother, and which had held that lady's wedding trousseau when she was a fair young maiden of 20.

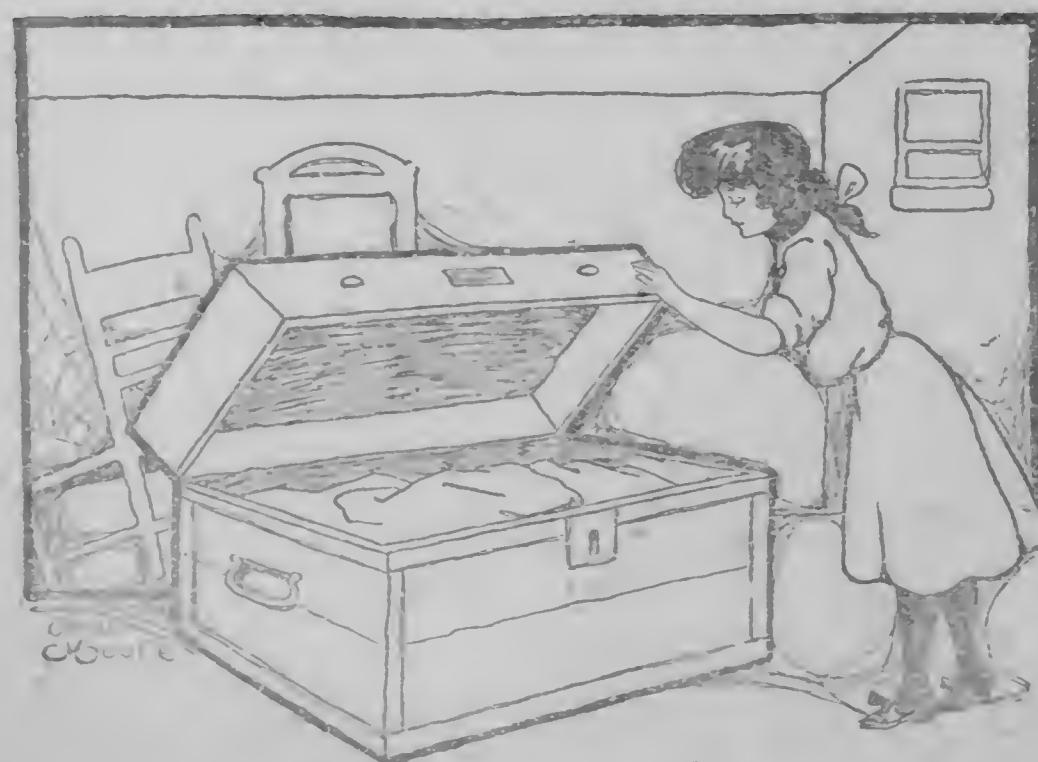

Laura began lifting out parcels done up in yellowed tissue paper, examining the contents of each till she came to the one evidently wanted. This one she laid gently to one side while she replaced the others in the chest. Then, closing the lid, she took up the parcel and hurried to her room. Removing the paper wrapper from about the parcel it proved to be a dainty, but very heavy, creamy satin gown of the fashion worn when her grandmother was a maiden.

Shaking out the ample folds and draperies, Laura put it on and stepped in front of the glass.

"Mercy, how small dear grandmother was when she was a bride!" she looked at the long slit of the gown on her own tall, supple figure—tall for her years. "And just think—this gown has never been worn but once, and then by grandmamma on her wedding day!"

But Laura was called from inspection of herself in the quaint old wedding gown to the hall door, the bell of which pealed sharply. She found a messenger there with a note to her from her father. It ran:

"Dear Girlie—Am off on the 4 P. M. train for L. In answer to a wire regarding the possible sale of my oil interests, and may not get back for the party, which will be a great disappointment to me. But I have left instructions with Ned about giving you the little birthday present I purchased before leaving, and which I hope will please my little daughter."

"Then she lifted the heavy lid."

The Fate of Little Colty.

A dear little colty,
Just one month old,
Went to the city,
So I've been told;

Saw the poor horse,
And wagon and dray,
Working and rearing,
Their poor lives away;
Felt the dread heat
That came fiercely down,
The dumb beasts in town;
Streets white and heavy,
Solid as lead,
Then there no grass was,
Solid as lead,
Then this dear colty,
Just one month old,
Took to his tiny hoofs,
I've been told,
And ran to the country,
Far, far away,
Where he decided
He never would stay.
"None of the city
For me!" he did cry;
Then he kicked gallily,
His head lifted high.

And so the years passed,
Numbering four,
When a man from the city
Came and looked Colty over,
"He's just the right horse
To put to a dray."
Sold the man from the city,
And took Colty away—

Took dear, happy Colty,
So I've been told,
To be killed in the city,
Killed cruelly for gold.
ANNE JAMES.

"Tried getting you over the phone while ago, but cook said you were out seeing about your fancy costume. Hope you get something unique."

"Hastily and lovingly,"

"FATHER."

Laura returned to her room in a quandary. Now, what should she do about wearing her grandmother's wedding gown on the evening of her party? Her papa, whose advice she had determined to ask, was on the train speeding westward, and it would be impossible to reach him by letter and receive a reply before her birthday, which was now just three days off. Also, it would be impossible to write her mamma requesting her consent to wear the gown, and receive an answer in time to have another costume made in the event of her refusal.

"Well, there's but one thing to do now, and that is to wear grandmamma's wedding gown. I shall be very careful of it, and I cannot understand how it could possibly meet with mamma's disapproval."

But even so, she reassured herself—or tried to—Laura kept recalling to mind how very careful her mother was of the dear old wedding gown, never allowing anyone to handle it save herself when once each year she took it out, aired and dusted it, and wrapped it in fresh paper.

The evening of the party came, and a neighbor lady, one of Laura's mother's friends, acted as chaperon. The costumes of the young guests were both artistic and unique, following the styles of the long ago. But not one present, save Laura, wore a genuinely aged gown, and she was the target for admiring eyes the entire evening.

But something happened which spoiled all her pleasure and ruined the rest of her conscience which she had kept silenced. Just as a jolly young gallant was about to hand a glass of orange nectar to the pretty, coy maiden whose escort he was, Laura, standing near, unintentionally stepped backward and struck her shoulder against the uplifted glass in the youth's hand. Then happened the accident which Laura had so carefully guarded against all evening. The yellow, sweet liquid flowed all down Laura's ugly, sticky stain from the shoulder puff to the hem.

As soon as the guests were gone and Laura was alone in her own room she burst into tears, for she knew she had committed a grievous wrong in wearing the precious gown her mother had kept so carefully put away.

But after her first fit of weeping and repentance was exhausted she began to consider what should be done. The stain must not be allowed to remain on the gown. So on the following day Laura wrapped up the satin gown and carried it to a cleaner. A few days later she called for it, to find that the stain had been so nicely removed that no sign of it was noticeable.

And then the voice of the deceiver whispered to her: "You need never say a word about the accident, for no one will ever know it happened."

The next week Laura's parents returned home, and her mother was high in praise of Laura's successful management of the house. "Why," she declared, "you are an excellent housekeeper. Everything is in better order than when I left. But, come, tell me all about your party. You said you had much to tell me that you did not wish in your letter."

Then Laura sat down beside her mother, and, taking her hand, said: "I told you, mamma, that I gave a fancy dress party, but I did not tell you what I wore. Well, I hope you will understand, dear, of what I did, but—but—I wore grandmamma's wedding gown."

"Oh, daughter," exclaimed Laura's mother, her tone one of hurt surprise. Then, seeing the wounded look on Laura's face, she hastened to say: "Of course, dear, if you wear it without injuring it in any way, why, it is all right. But had I known you meant to wear it I greatly fear I should have denied you the privilege, for I would have been afraid of some accident happening to it. You know it is one of my most precious heirlooms. But, tell me, Laura, the gown was not torn nor soiled, was it?"

Laura felt the blood filling her cheeks, but the voice of that monster, deception, again whispered: "For answer just show the gown and your mother need never know."

"You shall see for yourself, mamma," she cried, and before her mother could detain her Laura was out of the room like a flash, running to the attic. In a few minutes she returned with the gown, which she spread carefully over her mother's lap.

"Why, dear child," said the mother in a tone of mild reproach, "don't you know I can take your word? You have never deceived me in your life, and I feel so sure that you never will. But, really, dear, the wearing of the gown seems to have done it good, for it looks cleaner—cleaner of age-stains—than when I last folded it away. Since seeing it I am glad you wore it, for the gown is unhurt and you enjoyed the evening in your dear grandmother's wedding gown."

Laura's mother's words cut her to the quick, and the voice of old Judge Conscience spoke loudly: "Do not begin to deceive in little things or it will come easy to do so in big things. Tell your mother the truth and keep your self-respect."

Laura dropped on her knees beside her mother and made a full confession, holding nothing back, but telling everything, even confessing her intention of forever withholding the truth of the accident to the gown. And half an hour later when her father came in he found mother and daughter sitting close in each other's arms and heard Laura's mother saying: "How thankful I am to have such an honorable daughter, one who will not deceive me in the most trifling matter. This hour my deep faith in her has been strengthened, for she was in the clutches of the tempter and broke loose from his evil influence to make a full and penitent confession. We are all tempted at times, and it requires a firm, brave heart to always withstand the tempter. My little girl has come from the fire unhurt."

LABOR MEN ARE PLEASEDWith Appointment of Johnson as Deputy Game Warden.Evidence That the State Campaign Will be Started Late.

St. Paul, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Johnson's appointment of Walter Johnson, of Duluth as deputy game warden of that district is meeting with general approval from the labor unions over the state. The St. Paul Union Advocate, a strong labor paper in the Twin Cities makes this comment upon the appointment: "The appointment by Governor Johnson of Walter Johnson of Duluth as deputy game warden of that district will give much pleasure to the many friends of that gentleman in the Minnesota State Federation of Labor. The appointment is an excellent one. Mr. Johnson being an active, zealous man, opposed to lawlessness in all its forms. He was a delegate at the recent Duluth water convention and entitled himself to the respect and confidence of all who came in contact with him."

A. N. Dare state printer, who holds his position partially through the patronage of State Auditor Iversen, is led in this week's issue of his paper, the Sherburne County Star News, to declare that Cole's nomination was brought about without any combination or trades. He adds, in commenting on Jacobson's refusal to throw Iversen overboard for a Haldrup, "The nomination of Mr. Iversen was due largely to the suspicion of the sincerity of his principal backers as to any one thing, though it may be as well accepted as a fact that the conditions are not ripe for a man of Jacobson's positive conviction. In the next breath Mr. Dare says: 'The Star News does not for a moment wish to convey the impression that Mr. Iversen's appointment would not have made a good and faithful official, but he was handicapped in the contest by the backing which made a cat's paw of him to satisfy vengeance against the present state auditor for protecting the status interests.' Dare's readers will likely ask their editor who's cat's paw Jacobson was."

Bobb Dunn can't leave Sam Fullerton alone. The executive agent of the game and fish commission went to Minnetonka lake a week ago to experiment on some cormorants for the purpose of determining whether they were destroying the state's fish. Dunn comments: "An instance where birds of a feather flock together. Sam Fullerton visited the cormorants at their island home in Lake Minnetonka on Saturday."

Silverlight and Block get a dig from Dunn who proposes Charles H. Vane of Alphen as chairman of the state central committee. In the choice of a chairman Mr. Vane says that "Dunn and not a word of his support to Haldrup at the close of his own disastrous campaign two years ago. This is the reason and none other he gives for not supporting Iversen."

It is reported that Senator Knute Nelson will have his hand in the naming of the next state central committee. The reason why there is so much delay in naming the committee is because so many interests desire representation. It is said the friends of Dunn want two or three of his personal friends on it, but that some of the candidates will not stand for that. It is understood that Senator Nelson has asked the candidates to hold off naming the committee until he can confer with them. In a sense, it is understood, he has a right to a voice in his councils of the candidates who will select the committee.

Hulder E. Roen, editor of the Fergus Globe, is going to test the validity of the primary law. He wants to get on the ballot without paying the usual fee. Roen is going to run for congress on the Public Ownership platform. He takes the position that no man should be required to pay a fee, and that the law is unconstitutional. The secretary of state to place his name on the ballot. Mr. Roen was elected to congress in 1892 on the populist ticket, but two years later was defeated by Frank M. Eddy.

It is being rumored that the price of Jacobson's support during the next campaign will be a place on the board of control. The term of the board expires in 1907. Jacobson was in St. Paul late last week and had a conference with Cole, and it is understood that he left with promises of something good if he would get out and hustle for the ticket.

There seems to be every evidence that both parties will resort to a late campaign this year, and it is not likely that much thunder will be heard until the middle of September. The nominees on the Republican ticket are in no hurry to organize, which is an excellent indication that they are in no hurry to start the campaign.

MINISTER IS HELD FOR SHOOTING BOY.

Le Sueur Center, Minn., June 25.—Rev. W. Vine, pastor of the United Brethren church here and at Ulm, was arrested Saturday on a warrant charging him with assault with a deadly weapon. He pleaded not guilty, and examination was held and he was bound over to the district court, his bond being placed at $5,000, which he furnished.

It is charged that Mr. Vine let his temper overcome him in a better judgment and shot a boy, who was teckfacking him, through the thigh the night of June 16.

Sentiment is about equally divided, and the case is causing some excitement. The lad is able to move about by the aid of crutches.

ADVISEDWoman Suffragists to Make Demonstration,
So They Say.Want Campbell-Bannerman to Appear and Testify.

London, June 25.—The woman suffragists are trying to drag Premier Campbell-Bannerman, David Lloyd George, president of the board of trade, and Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith to a police court, June 27, to testify in their behalf when the adjourned hearing of the case against Miss Billington, Miss Kenney and three other leaders of the militant woman suffragists, who were arrested in Cavendish square, June 27, for creating a disturbance outside of Mr. Asquith's house, takes place.

Mrs. Parkhurst, another militant suffragist, today applied to a magistrate for summons against the officials mentioned, stating that Mr. Asquith would be in a position to explain to the court why the suffragists invaded Cavendish square, while the premier and Mr. Lloyd George could testify in regard to speeches in which they advised the women to take the course they had adopted. The magistrate declined to compel the attendance of Mr. Asquith, but promised to grant summonses for Premier Campbell-Bannerman and Mr. Lloyd George if the applicant produced evidence that the women had acted on their instigation.

Panama Canal.

The laborers, upon returning home, said that they had not been paid for their work on the isthmus. The passengers said it is generally believed at Nassau that the negroes were paid, but that they squandered their earnings in the casinos, and on returning home hatched up the complaints in question to account for their lack of funds.

Kiel, June 25.—Emperor William invited congressmen and Mrs. Longworth to take tea with him on board his American built schooner yacht Meteor. Mrs. Longworth said that one of the objects of the visit of her husband and herself to Kiel was to see the yacht she had christened.

ANY ENGLISHSpooner's Amendment to New Mexico Juries is Withdrawn.

Washington, June 25.—The senate today passed a bill relating jury service in New Mexico after Senator Spooner, on behalf of the judiciary committee, had withdrawn the amendment suggested by the committee, which made it necessary that all jurors in that territory should speak the English language. Senator Spooner is the author of the amendment, and he prevailed upon the committee to accept it. He stated today that the attorney general had told him that in ten out of the twenty-five counties of the territory it would be utterly impossible to secure a jury if the amendment should become a law. In those ten counties, he said, it is absolutely necessary for the courts to employ interpreters in all matters going before the jury. He, therefore, withdrew the amendment, and asked that the bill be passed. There was no objection, and the bill went through minus the amendment.

ICE BARONS
CONVICTEDToledo Dealers Sentenced to Pay Fines of $5,000 Each.Must Also Serve a Year in the County Workhouse.

Toledo, O., June 25.—Five ice dealers, representing local companies, were sentenced in common pleas court today to pay a fine of $5,000 each and each man to serve one year in the workhouse.

The men sentenced are: Joseph A. Miller, who was convicted; R. A. Beard, R. C. Lemmon, H. P. Breining and Peter H. Waters, who pleaded guilty. The judge said the sentence might be mitigated in the event the men made restitution.

Hearing motions in arrest of judgment cannot be heard for some time and the ice men will stand committed until the fines are paid or the sentence otherwise disposed of.

The five men, all of them prominent in business and social circles, were taken to the county jail to await the making out of the necessary papers to commit them to the workhouse, unless, in the meantime, they meet Judge Kinkaid's requirements of restitution to the public.

These men were indicted under the Valentine anti-trust law for combining to restrain trade. Under the pretext that the ice supply was much smaller than in recent years, these dealers combined and advanced the price from 50 to 100 per cent. They were indicted under the law. If they would escape any part of it they must pay back to customers all over charges and must agree to sell ice at the price prior to forming the combination. The law provides for imprisonment as well as fine and if the men go to the workhouse they will be put at hard labor. Two or three of them are worth at least $100,000 each.

Three other members of the Collins family were thrown into the water, but were rescued.

AMERICAN
SWINDLERSBefore London Court
Charged With Selling
Valueless Stock.Evidence Said to Show That Serious Frauds Were Committed.

London, June 25.—At the opening of the prosecution today in behalf of the treasury, at the Guild Hall police court, in the case of Mark Anthony Young and Henry Jonas, local manager of the American Mining, Milling & Smelting syndicate, who were arrested, June 13, on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the public by selling valueless shares, R. D. Muir, counsel for the treasury, said the evidence in the hands of the police indicated that serious frauds had been committed. Since Jan. 19 the country had been flooded with flowery advertisements of the American Mining, Milling & Smelting company, purporting to own mines in Alaska, California, Montana, Utah, Colorado and Mexico, which were paying 45 per cent interest. Documents sent broadcast announced that the net profits of the company for nine years were upwards of $27,500,000. Documents totaling $12,500,000 had been paid. Mr. Muir said the correspondence seized showed the defendants had on foot a scheme by which certain financiers in France were to put $2,500,000 into the concern, and a similar plan was in progress, from which a sum not so large was to be obtained in England.

After the presentation of evidence regarding the printing of circulars, the hearing was adjourned. Mark Anthony Young was admitted to bail in $25,000 and Jonas in $5,000.

of Minnesota.

Washington, June 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house committee on appropriations today reported the general deficiency bill. It contains an item of interest to the taxpayers of Minnesota, which authorizes the secretary of the treasury to reopen and adjust the claim of Minnesota for expenses incurred in suppressing Indian hostilities in the state in 1862, and ascertain the amount actually expended by Minnesota in raising and equipping volunteers for the war of the rebellion.

J. S. PARDEE MARRIED.

at St. Croix Falls.

St. Croix Falls, June 25.—John Stone Pardee of St. Paul, a well known newspaper man, who formerly resided in Duluth, and Miss Laura Peckham of River Falls, Wis., were married here on Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Lusk. FLIRTATION ON CAR WRECKED TWO HOMES.

Cleveland, June 25.—A street car flirtation caused the destruction of two homes, the suicide of a disgraced husband, a continental chase by an irate wife and proceedings for divorce.

Such was the story told Judge Kennedy in common pleas court today by Mrs. Mary A. Clarke, wife of William E. Clarke, son of the late James H. Clarke, one of the founders of the Standard Oil company.

The suit for divorce involves a fight for the many thousands of dollars that Clarke will inherit from the estate of his father. Mrs. Clarke said she and her husband lived happily on Cedar avenue, until he met Mrs. Nettie Diglow. He sold his Standard Oil stock for $20,000 and took Mrs. Diglow to Bakerville, Cal., she testified. He followed three years ago, and found them living there in fine style with three servants. His husband had bought the woman $100 worth of diamonds. "I attached those," Dr. C. H. Haller testified. "I told Clarke told him eleven years ago of a beautiful woman he had met on a street car. He was captivated by her. When he was ill he sent the doctor to treat her. I tried to break up the affair. He told the doctor, Clarke acknowledged he had gone wrong and said he would never see Mrs. Diglow again, but his promise did not last long. Shortly after I treated her, her husband committed suicide."

Additional testimony will be heard Monday Clarke did not appear in court, but may send depositions from California.

CONGRESS HAS NO RIGHT TO REGULATE INSURANCE.

Washington, June 25.—Congress has no right to regulate insurance, according to the senate committee on the judiciary. A report from that committee was presented today to its effect by Senator Spooner. The report was made on a resolution, instructing the committee to inquire whether congress had such a right. The committee promises to give its reasons at a later date. The report went to the calendar.

SHEA CASE CONTINUED.

Chicago, June 25.—The case of Cornelius P. Shea, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, and other officers of the organization who were indicted for conspiracy in connection with the teamsters' strike a year ago, were called on in the federal court and continued for one day to allow the attorneys for the defense time to confer.

In view of statement for Oklahoma, the amounts available for the payment of the expenses of the territorial government are to be turned into the treasury when the state government is organized.

The secretary of the treasury is hereafter to furnish congress detailed estimates of expenses of collecting the revenues from customs.

RAILROADS LABORERS RESTLESS

Contractors Employ Full Crews But Men Do Not Stick.

Railroads About Duluth Not Much Troubled by Situation.

"There is plenty of labor, but the difficulty lies in inducing the men to go to work," said a railroad contractor today. "So much has been said about the labor shortage that the men have become independent. The contractors are all paying good wages, but laborers think more favorable conditions may be found elsewhere, and after working a few days or a few weeks they pull up and leave, feeling assured that there will be no difficulty in getting free transportation and employment on some other contract.

"If all this talk about a scarcity of labor could be stopped, the men would be content to remain where they are receiving good wages, and the difficulty would be at an end. The contractors in this part of the country are not having as much trouble getting men as they are in some other places through the Northwest. Most of them are having no trouble at all, in fact, and are readily finding the men they need. The Lake Superior & South Eastern, I understand, could easily employ several hundred more men if they had places for them. This line at present has about 2,000 men at work."

THE ROAD MUST GO.

No Longer Any Doubt That Peerless Line Will Be Discontinued.

No doubt now exists that the Minneapolis, St. Paul & Ashland road, better known as the Peerless logging road, will be discontinued. The matter appears to be definitely settled. Men have been employed to take up the rails, and the work will begin within the next few days, it is expected.

The people of Ashland are much put out over the tearing up of the line. Ashland county was heavily bonded to assist in the construction of the road, which is practically owned by the Weyerhaeuser interests. The line has been used for the past six or seven years in hauling logs to Ashland mills. It was announced last spring that this would be the last season the line would be in operation, the timber owned by the syndicate in Northern Wisconsin having been all cut. Several spurs of the road were torn up then, but the officers at that time denied the report that the road would be discontinued. They stated that only unused spurs were to be torn up and that the road would be in operation all summer.

The Ashland Advancement association has been making strenuous efforts to interest outside capital in the road, so that it may be operated and its terminal facilities in the Wisconsin town maintained. About a year ago a Milwaukee real estate company secured an option on the road, but this was allowed to lapse. Then the association sought to interest the Northern Pacific in the line and officials of the company went to Ashland and looked over the road. As yet, however, they have made no move toward acquiring the property.

HAPPENINGS IN THE DAKOTAS

Collector Duns Granville Farmer and is Shot With Rifle.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Towner—Ed Dwyer, collector for a Granville machinery firm, attempted to collect a debt from Frank Marquette, a farmer of North Granville, Dwyer was ordered off the place, and Marquette, it is said, got a rifle and shot twelve times, a bullet hitting Dwyer in the left foot. He is in a hospital, and Marquette is in jail.

Dickinson—After a desperate quarrel with her mother, Marie Olive Barick, 15 years old, secured a quantity of strychnine, and left the house. She was seen by her mother walking quickly across the prairie, and the collector, when he reached the place, found the girl lying on the ground. She had taken the poison and died. Her mother half-dressed and half-carried her to the house, where antidotes and restoratives were administered, but they proved ineffective and the girl soon died in great agony. Other than the quarrel with her mother, no known reason why the girl should have taken her life. The Baricks live on a farm a few miles from here, having come from Wisconsin about a year ago.

Grand Forks—Acting in accordance with a recent decision of the supreme court in a telephone case, in which the court held that a telephone line along the highway is public property and not the property of the telephone company, the highway, further proceedings until the north half of section 9 and the northeast quarter of section 6, Walla township, is lawfully acquired for the purpose of right of way, and the amount of damages assessed and payment made therefor to the plaintiff.

The case of Mary M. Henderson against the Brotherhood of American Yeomen, set for trial at the present term of the district court, has been settled out of court. Albert Henderson, a son of the plaintiff, was killed while at work in the woods near Clouette, Minn., last year. The jury awarded him a policy for $2,000 in the Yeomen, and under the terms of the policy his mother as beneficiary was entitled to $1,000 at the time of his death. The Brotherhood officials contended that he had engaged in an extra hazardous occupation, and an arbitration board, consisting of John E. Dineen, J. C. Hart and W. A. Culler, examined witnesses and decided that the beneficiary was entitled to $1,000. Mrs. Henderson declined to accept this amount, and the case was set for trial at the present term. The settlement gives Mrs. Henderson $1,000 and the Brotherhood $1,000. The case is reached in the regular order of court business.

Sioux Falls—An unusual and pitiful case is that of Orville Norris, aged 11, whose home is at Larchwood, Iowa, who has just been brought to a Sioux Falls hospital for treatment. While at play about three months ago, a bullet from a shotgun, which was fired from the lips down his back, paralyzed and killed the spinal column. The boy is in a critical condition, and if successful an attempt will be made to build up the constitution of the boy in a critical condition, and there is little hope of saving his life unless the bullet can be extracted. His mother is a widow in poor circumstances.

Preparations are being made by about thirty members of the Minneapolis and Duluth Scandinavian Singing association, which will be held on July 6, 7 and 8 at La Crosse, South Dakota singing societies which will attend the meeting are the Nordrunk of Madison and the Greg of Canton.

Huron—One of the largest hotels in the state will be erected in this city at once. Articles of incorporation have been filed and plans for what will be known as the Hotel Grand, the building are being perfected and the capital of the company is $100,000. The building will occupy the quarter block at Fourth street and Dakota avenue, the building will be of five stories high, and contain not less than 100 rooms.

Rock Island, Ill., June 25.—The completion of a deal has been announced here by which the Ringling Bros. and Forepaugh-Sells shows are to be combined. Under the new arrangements Wallace's shows are expected to enter the syndicate next season, thereby eliminating the main element of trouble. Mr. Wallace is expected to accept the territory assigned to him this season, thus precipitating the end of the war.

WEST DULUTH LAUERMANN IS IN CITY

Former Resident Now of Aberdeen, S. D., on Business Here.

Dynamite Club Will Entertain Him—Aberdeen Suits Him.

Aberdeen, S. D., where he is now engaged in business, will be here for a short time looking after business matters. Mr. Lauermann has been warmly greeted by old friends in West Duluth and is continually wearing his breakfast food while he grasps the glad hand extended to him on all sides. The dynamite club, of which he is an honored member will likely hold a special session for him and should this be done, Mr. Lauermann is looking exceedingly well and his appearance would indicate that the secret of enjoying life is his. Aberdeen is the subject of his talk and he seems to think that it is one of the greatest "comers" in the West today. He says that land seekers are going in there in hordes and they are buying up land and settling there rapidly. Aberdeen, he says, has the record on growth in South Dakota for the past five years and is growing faster now than at any time in its history. Mr. Lauermann is in the wholesale business and he has just now taken a three-year lease on a store building in which he will put a retail shoe stock and will endeavor to make the South Dakotans sit up and take notice in Duluth fashion. Said he today:

"One cannot imagine the business done in Aberdeen unless one is on the ground. It is absolutely amazing to find the crowding land-seekers who are coming into the country. Actually day after day to see the procession of them going out in rigs, all that is lacking to make it seem like a rapid-paced funeral is the hearse. Speculation is rife in land also and it is selling at a high price.

"In Aberdeen, the residence situation is much as it is here—people are coming in too fast for the building that is going on; but there is a movement on the part of the people who are coming in different from Duluth. People out there are loyal to their town and never fail to boast it when they can. Time always speaks well of a town and we have a good one."

KICK AGAINST MOUNTED MAN

West End Citizens Want Patrolman Replaced on His Beat.

Claiming that it makes that part of the city look like a suburb, some of the people in the West end have protested against a mounted officer there, and have requested Chief Troyer and Alderman Mork to have the mounted man withdrawn and the patrolman replaced.

The mounted man was placed there by Chief Troyer, in the belief that the district between the Point of Rocks and the ore docks has but one officer between 8 a. m. and noon, and a man on foot would be lost on such a beat.

"All the big cities are putting on mounted men," said Chief Troyer, "and not all in the suburbs either. Out of the 1,000 new officers in Chicago, 300 are mounted men, and 100 of these will be stationed right down in the heart of the city, on State and Dearborn, and such streets as those. Their efficiency is far superior to the patrolman."

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Jury Awards Young Woman $400 for Breach of Promise.

Houghton—For having scorned Caterina Ronchetti in refusing to marry her after having won her heart, Martina Gato will have to pay that young woman the sum of $400. She sued for breach of promise in the circuit court. The jury debated over the question all night, and announced that a verdict had been obtained as stated.

It was found that Gato had wooed and won the girl on the ground that she sold drinks in a saloon and danced with the patrons thereof. The evidence showed that he had wooed her under those circumstances, and the jury held him liable.

TWO MOOSE VISIT CITY

Were Seen in East End District Early Sunday Morning.

The East end was invaded at an early hour Sunday morning by two large moose. It is supposed that the flies drove them out of the woods, and that in the course of their wanderings they got down into the city.

One, a bull moose, was first seen at Eighteenth avenue east and Jefferson street. He came out to Superior street at Seventeenth avenue east, and proceeded to Tenth avenue east and Superior street, where he stood for some time within a few feet of John Millen's house, gazing over the lake. When last seen the bull moose was in the vicinity of the courthouse, going west. A cow moose was seen about the same time on East Third street. She was also headed west. It is thought that the dogs chased them back up the

A year ago a large moose came down the hill on Fifteenth avenue east and stopped in a barnyard at sixteenth avenue east and London road. The animal was exhausted, and its flesh was torn in several places. It was thought that the dogs had chased the moose through barbed wire fences. The animal died from its fatigue and wounds.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Exercises Are Held at the Lester Park Church.

Children's day exercises at the Lester Park M. E. church took the place of the regular services last evening, and were very enjoyable. The auditorium was completely filled, and several of the parents of the children had to content themselves with standing room. A feature of the exercises was the music. Besides the organ, there was an orchestra of first, second and third violins and a flute, which added considerably to the singing by the school.

Recitations were given by Miss Marie McDowell, Master I. Myron, Laura Finkerton, Clayton Westover and Eleanor Aske. Mrs. Stephenson's, Miss Caroy's, Mrs. Fessler's, Miss Myron's and Mrs. McDowell's classes gave exercises appropriate to the occasion, and each acquitted themselves creditably.

Rev. Charles Fox Davis, the pastor, concluded the services with a short talk on "The Influence of the Children on the Parents," paying a high tribute to the value of the American Sunday school system on the civilizing of the nation.

UMBRELLA SCHEME.

No Need of Borrowing Your Neighbor's Umbrella Hereafter.

New York, June 25.—The strenuous New Yorker has devised a scheme that will keep his neighbors from borrowing his umbrella!

This scheme has no name. It doesn't need any. But it is usually called the dollar umbrella, or umbrella league. By its provision, by the payment of $1 a year, you can have the use of an umbrella anywhere in New York at any time, without owning one.

Whenever a shower comes up you simply drop into the first drug store, theater, office building, barber shop, news stand or hotel and give up your exchange check in return for a black cotton umbrella. When the shower is over, you stop at the next station, leave the umbrella and get another exchange check in return for it.

If you prefer to keep it rather than turn it in, you are welcome to do so, and you get an exchange check for it, whenever you do turn it in, if there is a thread of it left. Of course, if it is lost, you lose your dollar. But more than one dollar would have been lost, the New Yorker figures, if he had lost his own umbrella.

OLD SWEETHEARTS WED.

Romance of Story Book Kind Culminates at Chicago.

Chicago, June 25.—A romance of the story book kind culminated Saturday morning at Our Lady of Sorrows church in the marriage of Edward Van Der Castele, a widower, 51 years old, editor of the Standard of Depeere, Wis., and Mrs. Minnie J. Gussenhoven, 48 years old, of San Antonio, Texas. Both arrived in Chicago Friday, intending to be married that evening, but upon the arrival of the bride-to-be several hours later the ceremony was postponed until yesterday morning.

Mrs. Von Des Castele and Minnie J. Karst, a schoolteacher, were to be married twenty-five years ago when she canceled the engagement to marry Dr. Gussenhoven, who died three years ago in San Antonio, Texas.

Two years after Von Der Castele was lured by the schoolteacher he married and his wife died a year ago. Four years ago Mrs. Gussenhoven subscribed for the Standard and the editor sent her a marked copy containing an announcement of his wife's death, not knowing that the new subscriber was a woman who had been married to meet in Chicago were agreed upon. The bride and groom took apartments at the Sherman house and returned to Depeere Saturday evening.

A correspondence followed and the arrangements to meet in Chicago were agreed upon. The bride and groom took apartments at the Sherman house and returned to Depeere Saturday evening.

What Retail Markets Offer

Strawberries, $3 per case.
Sour cherries, $2.25 per case.
Cooked corn beef, 20 cents per lb.
Jellied tongue, 30 cents per lb.
What do you suppose the market man said this morning? He said with a slight smile, "Procrastination is the thief of time." The market man said that. What the market man meant was that the housekeeper who didn't get strawberries a while ago to preserve couldn't have any now unless she paid a big price for them.

The Wisconsin berries for whom all good housekeepers wait are a failure pretty near, because of the long continued rainy season when the plants were in blossom. Some corn beef that never saw the packers, oh, dear no, is in the market and it together with jellied tongue and jellied ham is the only thing in the market. There was a painful pause after that statement to see if he would apologize or anything like that, but he didn't and so it must stand. What the market man meant was that the housekeeper who didn't get strawberries a while ago to preserve couldn't have any now unless she paid a big price for them.

THE DEATH CHAMBER

By Stephen Crane.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Dowling.) A sergeant, a corporal and fourteen men of the twelfth regiment of foot line had been sent out to occupy a house on the main highway. They would be at least a mile in advance of any other picket of their own people.

Sergeant Morton was deeply angry at being sent on this duty. He said that he was overworked. There were at least two sergeants, he claimed furiously, whose turn it should have been to go on this arduous mission. He was treated unfairly; he was abused by his superiors; why did any fool ever join the army, as for him, he would get out of it as soon as possible; he was sick of it, the life of a dog. All this he said to the corporal, who listened attentively, giving grunts of respectful assent.

On one way to this post, two privates took occasion to drop casually to the rear and puffer in the orchard of a deserted plantation. When the sergeant discovered this absence, he grew indignant with rage which was an accumulation of all his irritations.

"Run, you!" he howled. "Bring them here! I'll show them." A private ran swiftly to the rear. The remainder of the squad began to shout nervously at the two delinquents, whose figures they could see in the deep shade of the orchard, hurriedly picking fruit from the ground and cramming it within their shirts, next to their skins. The beseeching cries of their comrades sounded in the sergeant's ears. They ran to rejoin the squad, while holding their loaded bosoms and with their mouths open with aggrieved explanations.

A moment later the squad moved toward its station. Behind the sergeant, back Jones and Patterson were slily passing apples and pears to their friends, while the sergeant expostulated eloquently to the corporal. "You see what kind of men are in the army now! Why, we've joined the regiment. It was a very different thing, I can tell you. Then, a ser-

Veils Important Adjunct to All Summer Gowns

A veil is such an important adjunct to the summer costume that each year its varying modes and styles must be most carefully studied. Fashions change markedly, even in so small a matter as the veil, and it would be quite dreadful to detract from the effect of a smart costume by wearing too large or too small a veil or one of an unpopular color.

This summer the chiffon veils are to be unusually large, but are generally worn hanging loose from the hat. Many of the long veils are tied close under the chin, or rather are tied or pinned up on the hat so as to close against the face. This last is uncomfortable in warm weather, however, and will not be seen later in the season. Then there are large squares of chiffon, which are used entirely for the more marching and much less talking." he said.

When he came to the house he had been ordered to occupy the sergeant's quarters, with dining room. These people must have lived like cattle!" he said, angrily.

To be sure, the place was not alluring. The ground floor had been used for the housing of cattle, and it was dark and terrible. A flight of steps led to the lofty first floor which was tiled, but respectable. The sergeant's visage lightened when he saw the strong walls of stone and cement. Unless they turn guns on us, they will never get us out of here," he said cheerfully to the squad. The men, anxious to keep him in an amiable mood, all hurriedly cringed and seemed very appreciative and pleased.

"I'll make this into a fortress," he announced. He sent the squad to the two orchard thieves, out on sentry duty. He worked the others then and he could think of no more things to tell them to do. Afterward he went forth, with a major general's serious scowl, and examined the ground in front of his position. In returning he came to a sentry, Jones, munching an apple. He sternly commanded him to throw it away.

The men spread their blankets on the floors of the bare rooms, and putting their packs under their heads, began lighting their pipes, they lived in lazy peace. Bees hummed in the garden and a sent of flowers came through the open window.

There was a sudden little spatter of shooting. A cry from Jones rang out. With no little intermediate scrambling, the sergeant leaped straight to his feet. "Now," he cried, "let's see what you are made of anything."

A man yelled, "Good God, can't you see you're all tangled up in my cartridges?"

Another man yelled: "Keep off my legs! Can't you walk on the floor?"

To the windows there was a blind rush of shamblerous men who brushed from their eyes even as they made ready their rifles. Jones and Patterson came stumbling up the stairs, crying dreadful information. Already the enemy's bullets were spilling and the powder smell was in the air.

The sergeant suddenly was stiff and cold with the sense of the importance of the thing.

There was a howl. "There they are! There they come! The rifles crackled from their rifles. Jones and Patterson came stumbling up the stairs, crying dreadful information. Already the enemy's bullets were spilling and the powder smell was in the air.

most cases is smarter if it matches the hat or gown.

Unquestionably chiffon veils are not so fashionable as a year or two ago, when no costume was considered complete without its yards of chiffon dragging the hat. Now there are many leg-horn and lace hats which cannot stand the chiffon veil. The question is how delicate the shade, with a lace or lingerie hat a chiffon veil should never be worn and many of the smart little summer toques are prettier if left unadorned with chiffon. Nevertheless a pale colored chiffon veil is too becoming to be abandoned altogether.

Lace veils in all possible styles and at all imaginable prices are in vogue this summer. Many of the real lace veils are beautiful and would dress any hat effectively, but among the better grades of machine laces are to be found some excellent veils. Either black or white is most generally seen, but dyed laces of all colorings are to be had. A light coffee color or ecru is generally more becoming than the plain white. In light mourning a lace veil is correct, but crepe bordered lace veils seem singularly inappropriate. A lace veil should be worn with an unusually wide. It should be worn with the ends caught up on the hat, but it must not be strained tightly across the face as a mesh veil is worn.

Colored mesh veils are no longer permitted, saving from any shade of lilac. The favorite mesh veil for and dress is of black and white dotted and generally single thread is preferred. All black is, of course, always in vogue, but the black and white veil is undeniably more in favor at present, as it looks so much cooler. Any style of brown veil may be worn and also all shades of ecru and tan. Lilac and purple are worn because a black veil seems to deaden purple. Black and white may, of course, be worn with lilac. A small white veil is not becoming and is, therefore, not fashionable. With black or dark brown hair also there should not be much white in the black and white veil as the contrast is

ELY TO HAVE CELEBRATION For Moonlight Ride in Auto With a Young Man.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 25.—A Vassar story has come to light after being successfully suppressed for a couple of weeks.

Two girls students were expelled and a third escaped this drastic sentence for transgressing the rules of Vassar only because she is about to be graduated.

The disclosures furnished a key to an episode which has been the subject of merry gossip. This gossip was started when a farmer came to town to discover the identity of two girls who drove an automobile that wrecked his wagon late at night on the Hill Brook road. He learned that the girls were Vassar students, and immediately ceased his investigation.

It now develops that the girls were a senior and a sophomore in Vassar college, members of prominent Western families, and popular in smart society in Poughkeepsie. The senior received some time ago a handsome automobile, said to have been a present from her father. She kept it in a garage in town and took her friends on frequent rides over the country roads.

A favorite stopping place was the Mill Brook Inn. There is no harm in enjoying entertainment there, even according to the strict standard of Vassar discipline.

There is a college rule, however, which forbids any student being absent from the campus after chapel at 7 p. m. without a proctor, or without having first obtained permission from the college authorities. Violation of this rule is punishable by expulsion.

It is known now that the pretty young senior left the campus in company with the sophomore, and the automobile was ordered from the garage. They enjoyed a fine moonlight spin, and rumor has it that a young man was a passenger.

All would have gone well had it not been for the narrowness of Hill Brook road. The auto was traveling at a merry clip and crashed into the farmer's wagon. The fair autists did not stop to investigate the accident. The following day Poughkeepsie papers had an account of the collision. After investigating and learning the identity of the Vassar girls, the farmer gallantly kept secret their identity and dropped the matter.

But it chanced that a Vassar girl who entertains high ideas of decorum saw the offenders enter the dormitory and next morning reported the case to the president of the student's association. The latter bore the tale to Mrs. Kendrick, the principal.

Then followed a questioning of the girls and the administering of penalties. Their parents were notified and hastened to Poughkeepsie. Every effort was made to keep secret the names of the girls. An appeal was made to President Taylor, and he upheld the action taken by Mrs. Kendrick.

The sophomore and the freshman have been expelled and cannot return to Vassar.

A Square Deal for Every Cigar Smoker

NO MORE—NO LESS

$300,000,000 Is Spent For Cigars Annually

You are paying your part of this $300,000,000. Where such a stupendous amount of money is involved, isn't it worth thinking twice about whether you are getting the best value for your money?

You've bought cigars with no guarantee of their goodness, no better assurance of their value than the recommendation of an unknowing retailer—in total ignorance of who makes them, how they are made or of what they are made—and with no guarantee of their real value.

You have kept on paying 10 cents for cigars that under proper manufacturing conditions should not cost you more than half as much.

Is that a square deal?

How much longer are you going to put up with it?

Isn't your part of the $300,000,000 a year worth more consideration by the manufacturer and by the dealer? Why don't you demand some guarantee of reliable quality?

Why should you take chances?

You should not allow your prejudice or your indifference to interfere with your getting the best cigars you can possibly buy for your money. You cannot afford to ignore the better quality that is yours if you ask for and demand it.

The American Cigar Co. gives you as good a cigar to-day for a nickel as you could get five years ago for a dime. Whatever price you pay, you can get honest smoking values, if you go the right way about it.

Here's HOW

Guided by the combined knowledge of the greatest cigar manufacturers in Cuba and the United States, the American Cigar Company set about to perfect new and better processes in cigar manufacture and to provide an equipment that would bring about the much-needed improvement in cigar quality without increase in cost.

Thus, with the knowledge of what to do, and with the capital, equipment and disposition to do it, the American Cigar Company is to-day manufacturing cigars that are in every way better than any other cigars offered to the public.

Here's WHY

The American Cigar Company was organized to manufacture cigars that would win the patronage of smokers solely through their merits.

The supremacy of the American Cigar Company to-day is wholly due to its recognition of the "Square Deal" principle.

That you may have a reliable guarantee—a sure sign by which you may identify the product of these latter-day methods—wherever you buy, whenever you smoke—the American Cigar Company has placed this "A" (Triangle A) mark of merit on the boxes of the best cigars of various brand names.

A NEW CREMO

These modern scientific methods have been applied to the Cremo Cigar. A new Cremo is now being placed on the market. This New Cremo is a prominent demonstration of the great improvement in quality made possible only by reason of the manufacturing system used exclusively by the American Cigar Company.

WARNING—WARNING

Cigar smokers are warned against substitution. We are constantly discovering and prosecuting unscrupulous cigar dealers and manufacturers who are trading on our reputation. The cigar dealer who sells from stuffed boxes robs you on every cigar he sells.

We caution cigar smokers to see that the goods they buy are genuine.

Always look for the Triangle "A" merit mark.

WILL BUILD LIGHTHOUSE

Government Plans Improvement for the Superior Entry.

Will Probably Duplicate the Buildings on Duluth Canal Pier.

The government lighthouse department on the Great Lakes will build a new lighthouse on the new concrete south pier that is being constructed at the entry to the Superior harbor, just as soon as that construction work is completed.

This decision was arrived at recently, after conferences between the lighthouse engineers and the United States engineers in charge of the harbor improvement work.

For some time, there was a question as to whether the new lighthouse should be erected on the north pier at the entry, which would place it on Minnesota Point and within the limits of Superior. At one time, it is understood, the engineers had practically decided to put the lighthouse on the north pier, but it is to be constructed next season, but the final plans were selected for the south pier.

The lighthouse and government engineers' departments are separate in their operations. The fact that the latter are building the pier and the lighthouse engineers will have to build the new lighthouse and whistle house.

brought the two departments together with a view of selecting the location and adopting the pierhead to the lighthouse and vice versa.

While the lighthouse department is doubtless developing the plans for the new building at the office of Capt. Charles Keller, who is in charge, with headquarters at Duluth, Mich., the details of the improvement are not yet available at this point. It is understood, however, that the lighthouse and whistle house are to be built of concrete and stone and will be practically duplicates of the buildings and equipment now located on the south pier of the Duluth ship canal.

Only the ground plans of the buildings have been received at the office of Maj. Foster, government engineer in charge of the Lake Superior district, and these have been forwarded with a view of giving the engineers data as regards the location of water pipes and drains that will be placed in the concrete structure of the pier to connect with the building.

The new lighthouse will be located about 500 feet farther out in the lake than the old one, the new pier will be that much longer.

The old light tower and whistle house which have done service at Superior since the old cribwork piers were put in, were destroyed by the big storm of last November. A temporary frame whistle house with a pinnacle light on top was put up to serve its purpose until the new lighthouse is ready. The old structure comprised a skeleton tower of wood at the extreme outer end of the pier with a frame whistle house about 100 feet farther in toward the shore. The new buildings will be heavy and substantial in construction and will be reinforced and bolted to the concrete pier in such a manner as to resist any storm that this end of the lake is likely to have in the future.

The pier construction will also necessitate an inner range light and this will probably be built along the same lines as the range light on the Duluth ship canal.

On the day that you make your first purchase of real estate, you become important to Duluth and the city becomes important to you. The real estate ads. should mean much more to you than a mere certain number of lines of type.

CENTER OF ATTRACTION

At Centennial Exposition Thirty Years Ago Was the Telephone.

Then for the First Time Exhibited to the Public.

Boston, June 25.—Just thirty years ago today, on June 25, 1876, at the Centennial exhibition in Philadelphia, the telephone was for the first time exhibited to the public. A few months before Alexander Graham Bell had perfected his invention in Boston, but it was not until a month after the opening of the Centennial that it occurred to him to exhibit the wonderful working device at the great fair.

The managers at Philadelphia, regarding it as rather interesting than useful, gave the telephone an inconspicuous place. As a matter of fact, but for the interest taken in it by Dom Pedro, the emperor of Brazil, the wide-awake monarch, who made it his business to copy the best features of American institutions, the telephone might not have attracted much popular attention during the Centennial. But the scene in which the Brazilian emperor was the chief figure had a far-reaching effect. Afterwards, indeed, until the exhibition closed, the telephone shared out with the then celebrated Corliss engine the distinction of being the center of attraction. For Dom Pedro's benefit, Dr. Bell recited over the telephone Hamlet's oft-quoted soliloquy, and this is said to have been the first public demonstration of the practical value of the telephone.

The telephone, as seen by those who visited the Centennial exposition did not at all resemble in appearance the instrument with which people of today are familiar. Lord Kelvin, who was the first scientist to hail the telephone as a scientific triumph, described the instrument exhibited at Philadelphia as a "homespun and rudimentary," but it embodied the essential principle, with the sound of the voice which was impossible.

In the thirty years since the Centennial, the telephone instrument itself has been perfected and, at the same time, means have been devised to bring it into practical use. The first telephone switchboard was constructed at Bridgeport, Conn., in 1877. A little later at Ansonia, Conn., a process was devised by which the outer surface of copper wire could be so hardened that the wire could be strung from pole to pole. This process provided a better conductor than the iron wire previously used, and thus made it practicable to telephone over greater distances than was at first considered possible. The original Bell company advertised in 1877 that the telephone could be used for distances up to twenty miles. To-day, thousand-mile conversations are ordinary occurrences over the lines of the Bell system and, under special conditions, this distance has been nearly doubled.

As an adjunct of the department of the telephone has grown to such an extent that an experimental line was constructed between Boston and New York. Early in 1882 New York was put in telephone communication with Chicago and a line from Boston to the Western metropolis was opened soon after. Now the long distance wires extend from Canada in the north to the Gulf of Mexico on the south and from the Atlantic ocean on the east to what was once known as the Great American Desert on the west. The lines of the Bell system alone include six million miles of wire and connect more than 40,000 cities, towns and villages in the United States. Over the Bell wires nearly 10,000 communications pass every minute, or 14,000,000 each day, the total for the year being 4,000,000,000. Eighty-nine thousand employees are required to keep the plant in order and the traffic moving, and one person in every thirty-three is a subscriber to the service.

The development of the telephone system has been brought about with marvelous rapidity but the engineers say that what has been accomplished is only the beginning. It is predicted that the time will come when there will be one telephone to every five persons in this country. At the same time, improvements in apparatus and the invention of new devices, such as the loading coils and repeaters now being introduced on the Bell long distance lines, will greatly increase the distance over which telephoning will be possible.

MUNIFICENT GIFT TO A UNIVERSITY

Estate Worth $800,000 Bequeathed to University of California.

Berkeley, Cal., June 25.—The largest single gift or inheritance ever received by the University of California is the estate of M. Theodore Kearney, late of Fresno, who has bequeathed his entire property to the university, suggesting in his will the establishment of the "Kearney Agricultural Experimental Station," as an adjunct of the department of agriculture of the university.

Mr. Kearney's magnificent bequest consists for the most part of land. He made his home on the "Fruit Vale estate," near Fresno, a ranch of some fifty-four hundred acres. There are 3,000 acres in alfalfa, 1,200 acres of vineyard, hundreds of acres in citrus and deciduous fruit trees of many varieties, ornamental grounds of more than 200 acres in extent, containing a wonderful variety of trees, shrubs, and flowers. Fine adobe dwelling which cost $20,000, and a very complete equipment of excellent packing houses, shops, stables, poultry yards, and other farm buildings and appurtenances. The value of the bequest is probably between $500,000 and $800,000.

Mr. Kearney died in May, while on his way to Europe. His beneficent purposes have been unknown, not only to the community but to the university as well.

President Wheeler has made the following statement regarding the magnificent gift of over three quarters of a million dollars by Mr. Kearney to the university: "The bequest of Mr. Kearney represents a wise use of a fortune. I may assume, I think, that the regents will scarcely hesitate to assume the trust involved. Though this trust is primarily to be exercised for the advantage of a single locality, Fresno, it must be remembered that it ultimately and purely insures to the benefit of the whole state of California. While the offices of administration and the formal instruction of the university are located definitely at Berkeley, the university in a broad sense occupies the entire state and knows no local residence. It is at the service of the whole state and everywhere present within its boundaries.

"Fresno is the natural center of a great and positively agricultural domain. There can be no doubt that scientific results in many lines of activity could be and will be secured from a regularly established experiment station at this place. Mr. Kearney was very anxious to have the University farm established there, and offered to give a tract of land for that purpose. The offer was not accepted by the university, because the conception of the purposes to which the farm was to be adapted involved the points of view according to which the site which has now been adopted at Davisville was more suitable. The climate was believed to be better adapted to the maintenance of a secondary school, such as is contemplated in connection with the farm, and the situation of Davisville offered better accessibility to the people of the North and South alike, as well as to the regular students in the agricultural department of the university.

"With the establishment of a station at Fresno, the state will now be wonderfully well equipped. The pathological station which, under provision of the last legislature, was provided for Southern California, will be situated at Riverside, with an adjacent laboratory for investigation of certain plant diseases at Whittier. Therewith Southern California is admirably provided.

"The station at Fresno will provide for the southern part of the great valley. Davisville will provide for the central and northern sections. The prospect for a greatly enlarged activity in agricultural experimentation has been suddenly enlarged. For the next year the university has as new material, not only the farm at Davisville, the station at Riverside and the station at Fresno, but the United States money to be derived from the Adams' bill, $24,000 a year for the advancing of scientific work in agriculture.

"Hitherto the means at our disposal for the agricultural work have been ludicrously inadequate to the vast expanse of the state and the variety of its agricultural needs and difficulties. Evidently we are, with the year 1907, to enter upon a new era."

THE BUREAU OF CORPORATIONS

Has Not Done as Much Work as Was Expected.

Washington, June 25.—An outline of the work of the bureau of corporations has been given to the house appropriations committee by Herbert Knox Smith, deputy commissioner, in urging that the unexpended balance of $75,000 for the current year be made available for the work of next year.

"Possibly you may remember," he said, "when I appeared before the committee last year we had in mind an investigation of steel, completion of the beef investigation, investigation of oil, sugar, and tobacco. The steel investigation was quite inexpensive, because we were furnished the work by the United States Steel corporation and as yet we have had to expend almost nothing. If we had done the work, it would have cost a good many thousands of dollars. In the tobacco investigation we did most of the work that we intended.

"The sugar investigations we had to hold up and part of the tobacco investigation, because of the immunity decision, until it was determined just how we stood on that matter. Then, when the special development came out in regard to the discrimination in the transportation of oil, the situation of the entire bureau had to be given to that and we could not really undertake another investigation at that time. The result has been that we have not done as much work as we expected. That shows the difficulty of estimating beforehand. "The past two years have been abnormal because it is a new bureau and we have run up against these legal questions like the immunity question and we feel now that those questions are settled and we can get the bureau organized so that we can handle the work and will need all the money estimated to carry on the work started and help up."

Representative Littauer—"You think that you can expend $200,000?"

Mr. Smith—"Yes sir; if we carry out the work we intend to do we shall. The steel work is a vast job, and when we get our men working, it is going to be very expensive and similarly with the tobacco and sugar investigation."

Representative Brundage—"Did the United States corporation do the work that your men should have done? Is that corporation supplying you with the information upon which to make a proper investigation?"

Mr. Smith—"Yes, sir; they furnished us with a lot of statistics in regard to the cost of various kinds of production. Then, we have the right to go to their books and check the figures up. That has saved up a great deal of work and we get it in much better shape."

Mr. Littauer—"They submit the figures for you to check up instead of your going to their books and taking them?"

Mr. Smith—"Yes, sir. Then we will take up the whole steel industry, not merely the steel corporation and that will take a lot of money."

FRIGHTFUL DEATH OF WOMAN UNDER AN AUTO.

Los Angeles, June 25.—In the overturning of an automobile in Pasadena yesterday while it was being driven at the rate of 60 miles an hour, and the subsequent explosion of the engine and burning of the machine, Mrs. J. J. Cordori, 28 years old, wife of James J. Cordori, a local business man, was pinned under the machine and roasted to death. John Henderson of Pasadena, the chauffeur was so badly burned that he will probably die, and Mrs. Ella May Morris an artist from Pueblo, Colo., was also slightly burned and bruised. J. J. Cordori and C. W. White escaped practically uninjured.

Why Many People Suffer From Constipation

A Sure and Safe Relief.

Constipation is most often caused by a torpid liver or failure of the stomach and bowels to perform their proper functions. The condition is commonly due at first to irregular habits of living and improper food, and if properly treated can be readily relieved. It is, however, too often aggravated and made chronic by the use, as medicine, of powerful and expensive drugs, which purge and perhaps give temporary relief, but do not remove the cause. The use of S. S. S. is a sure and safe relief. It is a natural remedy, the famous Natural Mineral Laxative Water—HUNYADI János—which has been relieving suffering mankind all over the world for nearly half a century. One dose, a tumblerful, drunk on arising in the morning, slightly warmed for best result, will, within an hour, bring a delightful and refreshing relief. A whole bottle costs but a trifle, and it is best to keep one always on hand. Every Druggist keeps it.

S.S.S. CURES BLOOD POISON

The first outward sign of Contagious Blood Poison is a small sore or blister. As the poisonous virus becomes more firmly entrenched in the blood a red eruption appears on the body, the mouth and throat ulcerate, the hair begins to come out, glands in the neck and groin swell, copper colored spots appear on the breast, back, etc., and the unfortunate victim finds himself diseased from head to foot. Mercury and potash do not cure Contagious Blood Poison; they shut the disease up in the system and remove the outward symptoms for awhile, but when the treatment is left off the trouble returns. Then the system being weakened from the action of these strong minerals the disease makes more rapid headway than before. S. S. S. is the antidote for Contagious Blood Poison. It cures permanently and certainly by going down into the blood and removing every vestige of the virus. It is free from all minerals, and while purifying the blood it builds up the entire system by its fine tonic effects. S. S. S. destroys every particle of the poison and removes all danger of transmitting it to others. S. S. S. cures Contagious Blood Poison because it is a perfect blood purifier. Book with instructions for self treatment and any medical advice free.

Millionaire Harry Thaw Deliberately Kills Stanford White.

Tragedy Began in Cafe and Ended in Roof Garden.

New York, June 26.—Perfectly calm, Harry Kendall Thaw, who last night shot and killed Stanford White, a prominent architect, faced a coroner and a number of police officials early today absolutely refusing to make any extended statement as to the motive which led to the tragedy on the roof of Madison Square Garden as the first night's performance of "Manselle Champagne" was being sung to a close.

MAY BE THE MEN.

Suspects Held at Cloquet for Murder of Macedonians.

St. Paul, June 26.—The Twin City police have a clue to the identity of the men who murdered the six Macedonians in a shack on Tenth avenue south, near Washington street, Minneapolis, on March 21.

The chief of police of Cloquet, Minn., telegraphed to the St. Paul and Minneapolis police that he had arrested five foreigners, and that they answered to the descriptions of the murderers.

Two of the murderers arrested by the Prior avenue police of this city shortly after the crime had been committed. They were released, as it was not known at that time that the murder had occurred. The St. Paul police got good descriptions of the two men, however, and these descriptions were scattered broadcast over the country.

Two of the Twin City police last yesterday afternoon for Cloquet, where they went to identify, if possible, the two men who were arrested by the Prior avenue police.

Sergeant Edward Christianson, who was night sergeant when the two men were arrested, and Detective John Lyons, of Minneapolis, who has been working on the case ever since the murder, were the men who went to Cloquet.

MINNESOTA INVENTORS.

ROBBER HOLDS UP "OWL" CAR

Gets Small Amount in Silver From St. Paul Car Crew.

St. Paul, June 26.—(Special to the Herald.)—A lone robber held up the crew on an "Owl" car at Brainerd and Edgerton streets early today and secured between $5 and $7 in silver. The motorman was dozing in the front end of the car and the conductor was checking up his receipts in the rear seat. Hearing a man get on the car he looked up and into the muzzle of a revolver. He shifted his position in the seat and covered up a pile of bills, about $20, and then handed over his loose change. The robber then relieved the motorman of what money he had and backed off the car and escaped.

RIPLEY TO LEAVE A SOO FOR PANAMA

Will Design and Superintend Building of the Locks.

Marquette, Mich., June 26.—(Special to the Herald.)—At least one Northern Michigan man will play an important part in the building of the Panama canal. He is Joseph Ripley, superintendent of the St. Mary's ship canals at the Soo.

Mr. Ripley, some time ago, accepted an important position on the engineering staff, the only provision being the final approval of the lock type of waterway. Mr. Ripley is now absent in Washington, where he went to confer with Secretary Taft, and it is expected there will be early announcement of his resignation as superintendent of the Soo, preliminary to his departure for Panama.

Mr. Ripley's task at the isthmus will be the designing and superintendence of the construction of the twelve proposed locks, which are planned to overcome the difficulties of crossing the isthmus, in accordance with the minority report of the board of consulting engineers, of which Mr. Ripley was a member. This plan projected six locks, 1,500 ft. in length on either side of Culpeper lock, which will be about 500 feet long, 25 to 100 feet wide and a depth of 40 feet over the miter sills. The object in building in pairs is to provide for two contingencies—growth of traffic and the occurrence of an accident to one of the locks which would put it out of commission temporarily.

The first year of Mr. Ripley's service will probably be spent in Washington, working on the designs and plans for the locks. At the conclusion of this task he will remove to Panama, and will remain there superintending the construction of the locks. The question of a successor to Mr. Ripley is said to be yet open. Mr. Haskell of the lake survey, who was understood to be a member of the deep waterways commission, is suggested as a likely man to take Mr. Ripley's post. He was a prominent member of the engineering staff during the construction of the Poe lock, and is one of the foremost authorities in the country on concrete construction. His present home is at Buffalo, N. Y.

BOY MAYOR AROUSED.

Becker of Milwaukee Turns Upon the Street Railway Company.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 26.—"Boy" mayor, Sherbo Becker, yesterday afternoon turned the heat upon the street railway company in a message to the council in which he demands that steps be taken to enforce the new state law which regulates transportation charges by taxing the fare instead of the stock instead of on both paid and watered stock. The street railway company joined the city recently from building a municipal lighting plant, the company is furnishing Milwaukee's electric light.

NEW YORK HAS A GREAT SENSATION.

New York, June 26.—Harry Kendall Thaw of Pittsburgh, brother of the Countess of Yarmouth, who shot and killed Stanford White, the noted architect, last night, is a prisoner in the Tombs today. Thaw admits the killing, pleading that his act was justified; that he had wrecked the life of his wife, the beautiful Florence Evelyn Nesbit, whose marriage to Thaw scarcely more than a year ago, was one of the sensations of the time.

The murder of White was probably the most dramatic and sensational tragedies this city has witnessed since the killing of "Jim" Fiske by E. S. Stokes, more than thirty years ago.

"I said to Thaw 'Did you do it?' and he replied: 'Yes, I did it. That man ruined my life or wife.' I don't know which he said, but it sounded like that. Then he went on saying: 'That man ruined my home, I guess he won't ruin any more homes, is he dead?' I told him he was, and he said he was damned glad of it and he was glad he made a good job of it."

"When I arrested Thaw, a woman, who Manager Lionel Lawrence told me was Mrs. Thaw, rushed up to Thaw and kissed him and said: 'I did not think you'd do it in that way.' It's all right! It's all right! Thaw told her. Then she whispered something into his ear. I don't know what she said."

"Down in the hall and in the street a lot of women gathered about us and shook hands with Thaw and sympathized with him. 'Why did you do it?' 'Why did you do it?' they kept on asking."

Capt. Hodgins, Sergeant McCann, Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly and Burr McInosh had a conference with Thaw shortly after 3 o'clock this morning, but if he told them anything they declined to divulge its import.

"White's body, covered by a sheet, lay in the spot where it had fallen, until early morning. The coroner, after an examination, said that one bullet had hit White between the shoulders and had perforated his lungs. The second hit entered the right side of the head. This seemed to indicate, according to this official, that after the first shot in the back White had tried to wheel on his assailant and had turned only half around, as the bullet literally went through the corner of his head in a glancing direction. That the second shot did not hit another in the crowd of more than a thousand persons present was remarkable."

Thaw was unable to reach his counsel early today and finally consented to accept Daniel O'Reilly, who will represent him in court. She was not present when Thaw gave this account of the shooting.

"I found the people almost crazy, trying to get out of the place. I jump-

WOULD CANCEL FLEET'S VISIT

On Account of the Anti-Semite Outbreaks There.

London, June 26.—Foreign Secretary Grey, replying to a question of Charles P. Trevelyan, Liberal, and to other interpellations in the house of commons today, suggesting the cancellation of the proposed visit of the British channel fleet to Russia, on account of the anti-Semite outbreaks in that country, announced that he had nothing to add to what he had previously stated on the same subject.

"It seems to me," said the foreign secretary, "that it is quite out of the question that the visit of the fleet, which was arranged for some time ago, should be regarded as having any reference whatever to the internal affairs of Russia, or as having any influence on them. Such visits during the summer cruise are a matter of course, and have been regarded as simple acts of courtesy."

The secretary also answered in the negative a suggestion of Sir William Evans Gordon, Conservative, that Great Britain break off diplomatic relations with Russia, on account of the massacre of Jews, as had been done in the case of Serbia, at the time of the assassination of the archduke.

Queen Draga, and suggested that any further question on the subject be postponed until the foreign office appropriation comes up for discussion in the house in July.

IMPLICATED IN LAND FRAUDS

Defendants at Los Angeles Object to Removal of Case.

Los Angeles, June 26.—The preliminary hearing of David M. Goodwin, A. H. Hedderly, Will D. Gould, Richard Hines, Lee R. Miners, George L. Stearns, Warren Gillen and R. W. Tompkins of Los Angeles, charged with indictment by the federal grand jury in Oregon with being implicated in land frauds, was held yesterday before William M. Van Dyke, United States commissioner. The government is seeking to bring the defendants removed to Oregon for trial.

The cases are being examined jointly and the defense filed a motion to dismiss the application for removal on technical grounds, claiming that the joint indictment was not found according to law, was insufficient, uncertain, ambiguous and unintelligent and that the grand jury had no legal authority to bring the indictments because the defendants in this city were not residents of the district in which the indictment was brought.

PENSION LAWS

Extended to Participants in Battles in Sioux War of 1862.

Washington, June 26.—The senate yesterday discussed the conference report on the railway rate bill for more than four hours, but did not dispose of it. It was made evident, however, that another conference will be ordered.

The senate last night passed the following bills:

Extending the pension laws to participants in the battles of New Ulm and Fort Ridgely, Minn., in the Sioux war of 1862; granting a right-of-way across the United States lighthouse reservation at Pigeon Point, San Mateo county, Cal., to the Ocean Shore Railway company; prohibiting shanting in the United States; authorizing the delivery to the Southern Historical society of the unidentified battle flag of the Confederacy in the possession of the secretary of war.

ATTEMPT AT SUICIDE.

Albert Lea, Minn., June 26.—Charles Edman, a young farmer of Freeman township, made an attempt to end his life by hanging himself, but he was discovered in time and cut down, and yet it required long and laborious efforts to fully restore him to consciousness. He is supposed to be somewhat deranged, and fear is entertained by his friends that he will make another attempt, but he is being closely watched.

FRISCO MEN ORGANIZE

A Powerful League to Enforce Collection of Insurance.

San Francisco, June 26.—A powerful organization known as the Policy Holders Protective league was formed yesterday by the business men of San Francisco to enforce fair treatment from all insurance companies. Bankers, manufacturers, merchants, ship-owners, were present at a meeting representing fire losses amounting to more than $100,000,000. A committee was appointed from the membership of the various organizations of the city, two from each, with one member at large, which will prepare and direct a plan of campaign for the league, which will supply the necessary money from a fund created by a pro rata assessment on the face value of the policies represented.

ELOPES WITH MILLIONAIRE

Quaker City Girl Married to Young Head of Stetsons.

Philadelphia, June 26.—Society folk in Germantown and Ogontz, the younger element particularly, are delightedly discussing the announcement of the marriage of Miss Helen Brooke Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Lewis, Jr., of Ogontz, manager of the Widenor stock farm, and G. Henry Stetson, the youngest son of the late John B. Stetson, the millionaire hat manufacturer.

They eloped last Friday and the first intelligence either of their families had of the event was received Sunday night when telegrams came from New York. Mrs. Stetson is 18 years old, her husband is 20.

The bride telephoned to her mother confirming the telegrams announcing the marriage, and saying that they would return after a short honeymoon. Both are well known socially and Mrs. Stetson especially has been popular ever since she was a little girl. When she was so tiny that she could just hang on to a pony she began to ride, and is now one of the best horsewomen in the country.

Although not of age, Mr. Stetson has proved himself to be a young man of brains and discernment. His father died within the last year, and Mr. Stetson, realizing that part of the management of his father's manufacturing business would sooner or later devolve upon him, left Harvard college and entered the business. When he celebrates his twenty-first birthday he will come into possession of several million dollars, and in the meantime enjoys a liberal allowance.

Augustus Thomas will welcome Mr. Bryan upon behalf of the league.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTIONS

Will be Held in the Various Counties on Aug. 25.

St. Paul, June 26.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a conference today with members of the Democratic state central committee, Chairman F. A. Day selected Saturday, Aug. 25, as the date for holding the Democratic county conventions.

The caucuses will be held on Wednesday evening, Aug. 22, to select delegates to county conventions.

CLAIM MURPHY WAS AGGRESSOR

Men Implicated in Proctor Stabbing Affray Allege Self Defense.

W. A. Young and Frederick A. Chubb of Proctor, who were implicated in the stabbing of J. P. Murphy of that place last night, an account of which appears in another part of today's Herald, were brought to the county jail this morning. They had a hearing at Proctor and were bound over to the grand jury on the charge of assault.

The men claim Murphy was the aggressor and say the affair happened about 11 o'clock last evening on one of the streets of the village. It is claimed by Young that when he and Chubb met Murphy the latter started a row by knocking Young from the sidewalk into the mud and then knocking him down again as he started to get up. Chubb is said to have mixed in and the black eyes which both of the accused men bear are visible evidence that they came in contact with Murphy's fist. Young claims that after he was knocked down the second time he drew a knife and used it in self defense.

At Proctor all three are said to have been drinking, with Murphy the most under the influence of liquor. The details of the affair leading up to the encounter are a little vague, but a statement by Chubb that somebody had called himself and Young "spotters" is thought to have something to do with the men coming together.

Marshall Murray arrested Young immediately after the cutting and arrested Chubb shortly after at his boarding house. Both men were confined for the night in the village jail at Proctor. The report got out the Murphy was dying from his injuries and considerable excitement was caused at Proctor. There was some talk, it is claimed, of storming the village jail and lynching Young and Chubb and Sheriff Bates' office was notified of the situation at an early morning hour. Deputy Sheriff Magie started at once for Proctor. The excitement had abated when he reached the village and no trouble was had getting the men to the county jail. They were bound over by Justice of the Peace H. G. Gilman.

Murphy has resided at Proctor for some time and has quite a wide acquaintance there. Young and Chubb are said to be new men on the railroad work this season.

WAGON RUNS AWAY.

Load of Sewer Pipes Has Escaped Down Fifth Avenue.

A wagon load of sewer pipe attracted attention, this afternoon, by doing a stunt all by itself down Fifth avenue west, from First alley to Superior street. The load had been taken up as far as the alley, and the horses were hitched there after the driver had blocked the wheels to prevent a runaway. About 2 o'clock this afternoon the horses broke away and the wagon rolled down the hill.

another team happened along, got too close to the blocked wagon, and knocked the blocks from under it. The wagon then started down the avenue.

Just as the street car tracks were reached the wagon buckled, and some of the pipes were scattered over the tracks in all directions. That which remained on the wagon was also across the tracks, and cars were stopped for quite a little while, during which attempts were made to remove the obstruction, and the tracks were finally cleared.

PEN'S MISTAKE

By F. Fitzgerald.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"Mrs. Godfrey stood in the kitchen of the Bush hotel, and tried to get the window shut. She was sitting at a table near the window."

"Then Mrs. Godfrey pulled a clothes-horse near the fire, on it was a neat tweed skirt, Mrs. Godfrey pulled a pair of garters, a sailor hat, and a pair of white socks, a small size and well made."

"Are the garters things dry?" inquired Mrs. Godfrey, looking at them slowly and carefully removed the eyes from a potato.

Mrs. Godfrey smiled and repeated the question satirically. "An' why wouldn't they be dry? I got 'em directly after dinner, didn't I? An' he giv' me his shirt, didn't he? An' he giv' me his shirt, didn't he? An' he giv' me his shirt, didn't he?"

"No, he didn't give you his shirt, did he?" Mrs. Godfrey asked, looking at her with a questioning look.

THE RIGHT MEDICINE FOR PELVIC TROUBLES FOUND IN PE-RU-NA.

MRS. CAROLINE KRAMER, Fort Collins, Col., writes:

"The majority of women who are suffering from disordered periods and other pelvic troubles have such strong faith in doctors that they allow them to experiment on them for kidney, liver or stomach troubles until they become completely discouraged and their money is gone.

"This was my unfortunate experience for nearly two years when my attention was called to Peru-na. I hardly dared believe that at last I had found the right medicine, but as I kept on using it and was finally cured, I could only thank God and take courage.

"I have had most satisfying results from the use of your medicine and have advised dozens of women who were suffering with women's ills to use Peru-na and let the doctors alone.

"Those who followed by advice are better today than many are fully restored to health."

Mrs. Wilda Moores, R. F. D., No. 1, Lewis, Or., writes:

"For the last four years I was a wretched woman, suffering with severe backaches and other pains, leaving me so weak and weary that it was with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties.

"I used different remedies, but found no relief until I had tried Peru-na.

"Within two weeks there was a change for the better and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman.

STARTLING TRAGEDY

brushing into several men and women, he walked slowly toward the table, until he leaned forward over its edge opposite to his victim.

As he did this White recognized him and made a move as if to arise. But there was no time. With some muttered imprecation the young man drawing a large automatic revolver, began firing. The shots rang out, but two took effect, and White was dead. Turning, Thaw faced the audience, broke the weapon, throwing it. It was then he was arrested, and soon afterward Mrs. Thaw rushed up and putting her arms about his neck, kissed him.

A statement credited to Thaw immediately after the attack, was: "We were all at a party in Martins. You can find out the names of the others there, but I was sitting some distance from my wife. Suddenly I saw her get very pale and began to shiver, and I thought, 'Good God, what is the matter and she called a waiter and wrote a note which she sent around the table to me.

"The note said: 'The dirty blackguard is here.' Then I turned and saw that fat scoundrel sitting there, big and healthy, and then I saw her and how she was.

"Thaw passed a sleepless night in his cell in the Tenderloin police station, and was kept under constant watch lest he should attempt to harm himself. He had just settled himself on the couch in the grimy cell when a man was half insane with drink and began yelling at the top of his voice, as soon as he was locked in a cell. The door man on watch was accustomed to such scenes and was unmoved, but Thaw was bothered. He called the doorman, and asked him, 'Say, can't you have that roomer next me moved away. He annoys me awfully.'

The doorman said he would move to another section of the cell house. The search for Mrs. Thaw, who disappeared immediately after the shooting at the Garden was continued throughout the night. During the forenoon Capt. Hodgins of the Tenderloin station said that she had been located, but that he did not intend to do anything but watch for the present at least.

Long before the time set for the arraignment of Thaw in the Jefferson market police court, his wife was being clothed for the prisoner, so that he would not be obliged to appear in court in the evening clothes which he wore when taken into custody.

The scene in the vicinity of Jefferson market police court was one of great excitement. Before 8 o'clock, crowds assembled in front of the entrance, and long before Thaw was timed to arrive at the court, a curious crowd completely blocked all the surrounding streets.

Photographers were there by the score, and the crowd grew to such dimensions, that it became necessary to call out a large additional force of police to maintain order.

It was understood at that time, that Thaw would be taken directly from the Tenderloin station to the court and that the usual procedure in murder cases of having the prisoner photographed at police headquarters would be disregarded. It was said, also, that Thaw would be spared the humiliation of riding through the streets in a patrol wagon and that he would be taken to court by Captain Hodgins personally in a cab.

It soon became apparent, however, that the reported plans were not to be carried out as the prisoner was taken to headquarters in a patrol wagon at 9:30.

It was reported today, on the authority of several persons interested in the case, that Thaw's defense will be that he was insane. It was said that at his trial he will be represented by the best and most noted lawyers of the day, who will ask for the appointment of a commission in lunacy to examine as to the state of Thaw's mind.

There can be no doubt, said one of these men, that Thaw is hopelessly insane, and that the commission will report him so. "Thaw's trip to headquarters was made only after the strongest protests on the part of his friends had been overruled. They were informed that the change whatever could be had in the usual procedure. Several friends of the prisoner were permitted to visit him in his cell, however.

When the detectives, accompanied by Inspector Schmitzberger, entered the cell to take Thaw to headquarters, Thaw inquired whether it was necessary for him to be handcuffed. "Yes," the inspector replied, "it is necessary. We always handcuff murderers."

Thaw was then led out of the Tenderloin station handcuffed to a detective. In the party were Police Inspector Schmitzberger, Capt. Hodgins, Patrolman Debs, who arrested Thaw, and the tenderloin station policemen. As Thaw was coming down the stairs, he raised his left arm to escape the cameras that were turned upon him. He was dressed in a neat gray suit, and wore a white straw hat. He looked cool and self possessed.

At the sidewalk the patrol wagon was waiting. Thaw was placed in it and driven to police headquarters. When the party arrived at headquarters Thaw was taken to the detective bureau and then to the top floor, where he is located the roving gallery and the rooms of the photographers and the officers in charge of the Bertillon measurement system. Thaw's picture was taken and his measurements recorded.

In the detective bureau he was lined up before a detective surgeon who had charge of the desk in a line with fifteen prisoners, pickpockets, confidence men and other criminals who had been picked up during the night. First Deputy Commissioner Rhinelandt Waldo, who knows Thaw personally, was present at the time.

Thaw was given no precedence over the others. The detectives in charge of the prisoners were called upon, by precincts, to present their charges, and they were recorded by the detective sergeant. Thaw was recorded when the turn of the Tenderloin officer came.

When the complaint against Thaw had been recorded, the Inspector directed the detectives to "take him up stairs." There his picture was taken and the Bertillon measurements were made. The prisoner then was taken down to the patrol wagon and hurried to Jefferson market court.

As Thaw left headquarters he was fastened to a detective sergeant by a light chain handbrace. An immense crowd had gathered around the building, and the police were forced to fight their way to the waiting wagon. At the police court, this patrol wagon had to force its way through another big crowd to reach the jail entrance to the building. Thaw was introduced to an official, who was permitted to consult briefly with Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly, Lawyer Joseph Brewster and his friend Burr McIntosh. O'Reilly told Thaw not to say a word about his case to anyone. He said that if there was any state-

CONCERNING THAW

The man who said he had no objection to elbow sleeves, but that the arms that were often put through them were objectionable in the extreme, had probably been pestered to death by forearms of more and much less beauty condescendingly taking dictation from him during office hours. When he matched ribbon at a counter down town for his wife, a young heiress of all the ages and $10 per week condescendingly reached him a bolt of ribbon with arms guileless of any covering to some place above the elbow. On the street cars he watched a skinny shank protruding from a stenographer's ruffle of elbow lace, and from fascinated scrutiny of that he went further up, and saw mysterious and pinkish bows gleaming under the much fussed and lace inset lingerie waist. And then he went home, undoubtedly, to find the wife of his bosom shivering in a short sleeved dress, and his own arms, which were not demonstrating with any grace, were clad in that weather that the Almighty has sent."

Elbow sleeves, truly, are all right, but the people who wear them, and the places they are worn, are sources of wonder to the persons who have a sense of the eternal fitness of things, which no woman who has any guiding sense of congruity will wear elbow sleeves to work, nor elbow sleeves in the street, while her arms are not covered from the rude gaze of the public. The impropriety of it doesn't strike any woman, and any reasoning and demonstrating which you may advance is met with an injured and cooling stare, and the conclusive and concluding question—statement, "But they are stylish, ain't they?" What more can be said, and what matter if your arms are physically constructed so that they ought never to see the light of day?

What matter if they do get soiled and grimy looking in the first five minutes of your public appearance, and are a mused and disorderly appearance? What matter if they do hypnotize people with their softness, roundness and general pinkness, or fascinate them with their general shankly appearance, they're stylish, ain't they?

And that gets one to black silk gloves. The man who knows least about styles knows that it is perfectly impossible to get elbow length black silk gloves. But now, some of the manufacturers have produced a few more of the black silken things for some of the stores in the country, and as you clutch eagerly at them, the person who stands with chin in air, and beautiful auburn hair in a well coiled cascade about her head, looks smooth one eye-brow with a moistened finger and announces that they are nice little gloves for $2.75 a pair. At your startled exclamation of incredulity, she stares with insolently disinterested eyes. No more speech wasted upon a person who cannot squander a paltry $3 for silken arm covering. And yet it never seriously occurs to anybody to lengthen their sleeves, and give the happy laughing sound to the makers and sellers. Darn the silken gloves you now possess, and hug them to your bosom, for they are few, and those few are a startling price.

Artist to Wed. Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Seymour Cook of Park Point announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Mal Cook, to Robert Wilbert Ashley of Minneapolis. The wedding will take place in this city Monday, July 2. Miss Cook is a Duluth artist widely known here and the announcement which you may advance is met with an injured and cooling stare, and the conclusive and concluding question—statement, "But they are stylish, ain't they?" What more can be said, and what matter if your arms are physically constructed so that they ought never to see the light of day?

Mrs. Fred Engels and son of 220 Sixteenth avenue east have returned from a two weeks' visit in the Twin Cities.

Mrs. L. B. Brook of 14 East Second street has gone to Walkville, Mich., for a three weeks' visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Clarke are spending the summer with Mr. Clarke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Clarke of 230 Thirteenth avenue east. Mr. Clarke is a student at the Chicago College of Dental Surgery and will be a graduate in 1907. He will return to college in October.

This early day had been decided upon because of the expressed desire of counsel both for the prisoner and the prosecution to have the case taken before this month's grand jury instead of letting it go over until next month. At the conclusion of the proceedings Thaw was taken through a side door to avoid the great crowd which had gathered in the corridors of the criminal court building and across the Bridge of Sighs to the Tombs. There, after his pedigree had been taken, he was assigned to a cell on the second tier of the prison where all prisoners charged with homicide are confined.

He received a visit from a few minutes later from the prison physician and was then left alone.

Lawyer Delafeld had taken leave of his client he was asked if he would have any statement to make concerning the case later in the day. "Certainly not," he replied, "and I have instructed my client not to talk to anyone."

PITTSBURG SHOCKED. Thaw-White Tragedy Only Theme of Conversation at the Clubs.

Pittsburg, June 26.—Mr. Charles J. Holman, mother of Mrs. Harry Kendall Thaw, who lives in Brooklyn, a suburb of this city, was appalled early today of the shooting of Stanford White by Mr. Thaw.

Mrs. Holman listened to a recital of the tragedy, but beyond asking a few questions as to further details said little.

She said she did not know Stanford White, the dead architect; had, in fact, never heard of him, and that she did not know what she was going to do regarding the matter. The information came in the nature of a distinct shock to her. She was naturally unprepared to hear of an incident in which her daughter's husband cut so tragic a figure.

The news of the killing came as a distinct shock to the friends of the Thaw family in Pittsburg and was a matter for discussion today in all the prominent clubs and houses in the two cities.

All efforts to find a member of the family in this city have proved fruitless. It was reported that Josiah Copley Thaw, brother of Harry, was in Pittsburg, but he could not be found, and it was stated at the clubs that he had been out of the city and had been for several weeks.

At the home of Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry, who sailed from New York last Saturday to spend the summer with her daughter, Alice, the countess of Yarmouth, it was said that she could be reached as quickly as possible and notified of the unfortunate affair.

It was likely, it was said, that she would take the first vessel for home. Mrs. Thaw was not in the city, and she feared the news will have a serious effect on her condition.

HELPED THAW'S WIFE.

White Assisted Her in Her Struggles on the Stage.

Chicago, June 26.—George W. Lederer, manager of the Colonial theatre in this city who was the employer of Mrs. Thaw when she was playing in Florida, and who was with her when she was on the stage, said today that he believed that the interest taken in her career by White was merely that of a good friend who desired to see her succeed in her profession.

"White was one of the finest men that ever lived," said Manager Lederer. "He was a man of great refinement, and when she was playing in Florida and tried to help her when he was what a struggle she and her mother were having to get along. I know of many cases where White had aided young people striving to obtain a foothold on the stage. He was a most kindly, generous man."

INVESTIGATION STARTED. St. Paul, June 26.—Investigation into the shooting of Stanford White by Harry Thaw is being conducted by the state printing was started yesterday by the state printing press. The investigation was conducted by the state printing press.

At the Garden was continued throughout the night. During the forenoon Capt. Hodgins of the Tenderloin station said that she had been located, but that he did not intend to do anything but watch for the present at least.

Long before the time set for the arraignment of Thaw in the Jefferson market police court, his wife was being clothed for the prisoner, so that he would not be obliged to appear in court in the evening clothes which he wore when taken into custody.

The scene in the vicinity of Jefferson market police court was one of great excitement. Before 8 o'clock, crowds assembled in front of the entrance, and long before Thaw was timed to arrive at the court, a curious crowd completely blocked all the surrounding streets.

Photographers were there by the score, and the crowd grew to such dimensions, that it became necessary to call out a large additional force of police to maintain order.

It was understood at that time, that Thaw would be taken directly from the Tenderloin station to the court and that the usual procedure in murder cases of having the prisoner photographed at police headquarters would be disregarded. It was said, also, that Thaw would be spared the humiliation of riding through the streets in a patrol wagon and that he would be taken to court by Captain Hodgins personally in a cab.

It soon became apparent, however, that the reported plans were not to be carried out as the prisoner was taken to headquarters in a patrol wagon at 9:30.

It was reported today, on the authority of several persons interested in the case, that Thaw's defense will be that he was insane. It was said that at his trial he will be represented by the best and most noted lawyers of the day, who will ask for the appointment of a commission in lunacy to examine as to the state of Thaw's mind.

There can be no doubt, said one of these men, that Thaw is hopelessly insane, and that the commission will report him so. "Thaw's trip to headquarters was made only after the strongest protests on the part of his friends had been overruled. They were informed that the change whatever could be had in the usual procedure. Several friends of the prisoner were permitted to visit him in his cell, however.

When the detectives, accompanied by Inspector Schmitzberger, entered the cell to take Thaw to headquarters, Thaw inquired whether it was necessary for him to be handcuffed. "Yes," the inspector replied, "it is necessary. We always handcuff murderers."

Thaw was then led out of the Tenderloin station handcuffed to a detective. In the party were Police Inspector Schmitzberger, Capt. Hodgins, Patrolman Debs, who arrested Thaw, and the tenderloin station policemen. As Thaw was coming down the stairs, he raised his left arm to escape the cameras that were turned upon him. He was dressed in a neat gray suit, and wore a white straw hat. He looked cool and self possessed.

At the sidewalk the patrol wagon was waiting. Thaw was placed in it and driven to police headquarters. When the party arrived at headquarters Thaw was taken to the detective bureau and then to the top floor, where he is located the roving gallery and the rooms of the photographers and the officers in charge of the Bertillon measurement system. Thaw's picture was taken and his measurements recorded.

In the detective bureau he was lined up before a detective surgeon who had charge of the desk in a line with fifteen prisoners, pickpockets, confidence men and other criminals who had been picked up during the night. First Deputy Commissioner Rhinelandt Waldo, who knows Thaw personally, was present at the time.

Thaw was given no precedence over the others. The detectives in charge of the prisoners were called upon, by precincts, to present their charges, and they were recorded by the detective sergeant. Thaw was recorded when the turn of the Tenderloin officer came.

When the complaint against Thaw had been recorded, the Inspector directed the detectives to "take him up stairs." There his picture was taken and the Bertillon measurements were made. The prisoner then was taken down to the patrol wagon and hurried to Jefferson market court.

As Thaw left headquarters he was fastened to a detective sergeant by a light chain handbrace. An immense crowd had gathered around the building, and the police were forced to fight their way to the waiting wagon. At the police court, this patrol wagon had to force its way through another big crowd to reach the jail entrance to the building. Thaw was introduced to an official, who was permitted to consult briefly with Lawyer Daniel O'Reilly, Lawyer Joseph Brewster and his friend Burr McIntosh. O'Reilly told Thaw not to say a word about his case to anyone. He said that if there was any statement to be made to the public, he, "Burr," would make it. Thaw assented.

The proceedings before Magistrate Barlow when Thaw was arraigned were brief. Capt. Hodgins, appearing as the complainant, asked that Thaw be remanded to the custody of the police.

"I direct that that be done," said Magistrate Barlow.

After another short talk with his lawyer and Mr. McIntosh, Thaw was taken back to the patrol wagon and started for the coroner's office.

Before leaving the police court building, Thaw said he was hungry—that he had eaten nothing since last evening. Capt. Hodgins sent a messenger to a restaurant across the street, and in a few minutes a waitress appeared, bearing a tray on which were two peaches, two slices of bread, a bowl of milk and a cup of coffee. Thaw hurriedly ate the peaches, a slice of bread and drank the coffee, and announced himself as ready to start for the criminal court building.

The greatest crowd of the day was encountered when the patrol wagon, with Thaw and the officers, approached the criminal court building. All the surrounding streets were filled with curious crowds, street traffic was suspended, and it was only by the combined efforts of nearly a score of policemen that a passage way was cleared for the patrol wagon.

Thaw and the officers stepped from the police wagon, he was confronted by a small army of photographers. He quickly covered his face with his hands and rushed into the coroner's office, and with his guards, rushed into the building. He was taken at once to Coroner Dooley's private office, and was welcomed by the coroner with the greeting: "Sit down here, Mr. Thaw," indicating a chair near the desk.

Burr McIntosh, who had preceded the prisoner from the police court, was in waiting in the coroner's office. He conversed in secret with the prisoner for a few minutes. Lawyer Lewis Delafeld, for whom Thaw had called immediately after his arrest, had entered the coroner's office in the meantime, and he at once assumed charge of Thaw's case. Assistant District Attorney Turnbull appeared as the representative of the prosecution. The formal proceedings before the coroner were brief. Thaw was arraigned on a short affidavit, sworn to by Patrolman Debs, in which the officer says he got his information from Warren Faxon, chief engineer of the Madison Square Garden; Lionel Lawrence, manager of the Tombs; Coroner Dooley, who had seen Thaw last night; Edward Convey, Harry Rubenstein and Dr. Prehen, who examined White's body after the shooting.

Upon the strength of this affidavit Coroner Dooley directed that the prisoner be committed to the Tombs with out bail.

During almost his entire stay in the coroner's office he sat with his hands pressed to his face to conceal himself from the score or more of photographers who had crowded into the room. Several times the coroner directed that the room be cleared, but just as the official enquired, the photographers and other spectators crowded back into the room.

In remanding the prisoner to the Tombs, Coroner Dooley announced that the inquest into White's death would be held on Thursday. He added that

"I Believe In The Use of Beer"

—Rev. A. W. Stein.

Distinguished Divine Pleads For Popular Beverage in The Home.

From staid old Fitchburg, Mass., comes the voice of a rector pleading for the same use of wine and beer. The Rev. Alexis W. Stein, rector of Christ Episcopal church of that city, and formerly assistant to the Rev. Dr. Rainsford at St. George's church, New York, and previously rector of Christ's church, Cincinnati, believes in facing conditions as they exist. "I am one of those," he says, "who believe in the use of wine and beer. The surest cure for the misuse of them is the proper use of them. The man who drinks beer in his home with his family and children about him will get no harm himself, nor do any harm to anyone else because he drinks. The man who spends an hour with a group of friends, among whom are women he respects, over one or two glasses of beer or light wine, as do some European people, will get no harm from it. The beer gardens of Germany are positive forces for good in the social life of that country."

That is the reverend gentleman's tolerant and rational attitude on the question, and had he gone further and examined into the merits of the various beers he would have agreed with some of our most eminent physicians that Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the best means to consume, because of its small percentage of alcohol and its great food value. He would also have recommended Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer, as do the doctors, "in preference to all other beers, because it is the absolutely clean beer—the beer that is absolutely pure, never touched by human hands, and never in contact with any air except sterilized and filtered air from the time it is brewed until it is poured into your glass." That is what one well-known doctor said of it.

Other doctors say Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is the cleanest, purest, most wholesome beer brewed, and our readers will agree with us that the doctors ought to know.

MAY CHANGE THE STYLE

Postoffice Addition May Resemble a Business Structure.

Government Architects
Eliminating Ornamental Style of Architecture.

As soon as congress acts on the omnibus public building bill which was reported back to the house yesterday by the committee on public buildings and grounds, it is expected that the plans for the addition to the Duluth postoffice building will be pushed as fast as possible by the supervising architect at Washington. The bill provides an appropriation of $125,000 for the improvement to the federal building here and the plans for the addition will, it is said, be made in accordance with that amount.

Whether the plans of the supervising architect contemplate any radical change from the old style of architecture in the government building, and the construction of an addition along the lines of buth the old and the new, yet known, but it is thought possible by local architects, that some innovations will be introduced in the new portion of the building more like a business building. It was reported from Washington not long ago that the supervising architect's department will hereafter plan postoffice structures more like business buildings. One argument for this is that the postal service should be a purely business proposition and should be conducted as such. The government instead of planning postal structures to serve as ornaments, but which really operate as a hindrance to the service, will endeavor to change the plans to a style of architecture that will improve and expedite it.

EMBEZZLER CAUGHT.
Bozeman, Mont., June 28.—Sheriff D. C. French of Portage, Wis., is here to take back Fred Price, wanted for embezzlement while employed in a bank. It is said Price turned over to the bank all his property and it agreed to allow him to make a complete settlement of his affairs. Price refused to agree to such a procedure.

KNOWS NOW.
Doctor Was Fooled by His Own Case for a Time.

It's easy to understand how ordinary people get fooled by coffee when doctors themselves sometimes forget the facts. A physician speaks of his own experience:

"I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day.
"Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea and coffee using Postum instead and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation except on one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone.
"When we began using Postum it seemed weak—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to boil for ten minutes and give it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color.
"I have advised a great many of my friends and patients to leave off coffee and drink Postum, in fact I daily give this advice." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
Many thousands of physicians use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their own homes and prescribe it to patients. "There's a reason."
A remarkable little book "The Road to Wellville" can be found in packages.

WEST END CHILD DIES

ON THE SEA

An Eleven-Year-Old Girl Taken Fatally Sick
on Ocean.

Contractor J. Olson, Her Father, Receives Word —Buried at Sea.

J. Olson, a building contractor at the West end, has just received news concerning his little daughter which has almost prostrated him. When on her way to Sweden with her mother for a visit, she took suddenly sick on board ship, and died and was buried at sea.

It is some time since Mrs. Olson and her 11-year-old daughter left for Sweden to spend a few months with relatives there and expected to return during the latter part of the summer. A day or two ago, Mr. Olson received a letter from his wife telling him of the news.

The little girl took suddenly sick on the ship and died in a very short time. It was considered dangerous to carry the body to Sweden so the remains were consigned to the deep. Mr. Olson's friends are offering their sympathy but he is inconsolable.

TEAM DROPS IN RAVINE.

Runaway Ends in Tangled Mass at Twenty-Second Avenue.

A delivery wagon of the Val Blatz Brewing company, yesterday morning tore along West Superior street, the horses attached to it having taken fright at a work car of the street railway company. They started somewhere near Twentieth avenue and although a heavy load of keg and bottles was aboard they went down the tar macadam paving in a manner which justified the company in being proud of the strength of its animals. They kept to the street all right until they reached Twenty-second avenue west. There they swerved toward the north side of the road. This was their finish. They got over the inner side of the sidewalk and then the horses wagon and drinkables rolled in a sad mass to the bottom of a rather deep ravine which is there. It took some time to untangle the mess but the horses were none the worse for the affair than to have been a bit scared.

MAN VS. COW.

Frank Johnson Has Things Done to Him While Leading Bovine.

Frank Johnson of Twenty-eighth avenue last performed a few impressive acrobatic feats on Sunday night, while trying to exercise his superior will on a fine Jersey cow which he owns. Mr. Johnson has taken a solemn vow that the next time he leads a cow he is going to have things fixed so she will have to obey orders. This particular bossy was grazing on the hillside Sunday and had not quite satisfied herself with the grass, when Mr. Johnson showed up to take her home. She therefore objected to going. He undertook to lead her by a rope around her horns. The cow did not like the idea worth a cent, although it had appealed to Mr. Johnson as quite the thing. Possibly the idea of being made a show of to people on their way to church had something to do with the cow's attitude and demeanor; at any rate she started to do things to Mr. Johnson and the scene became very animated for a time. When it was all over the greater part of Mr. Johnson's wearing apparel was in shreds.

Tearing Down Point.

The work on the Point of Rocks is progressing rapidly. Each night quite a large amount of rock is blasted down and so far it has not caused any damage. The matter is well guarded, the blasts are small and only narrow edges are thrown down each time. God work on removing the large boulder which has been a danger point, is being done, and it is believed that before long the dangerous parts of the point will have disappeared.

Mind is Affected.

Olaf Swenson of 2212 West Eighth street, who was overcome by gas at the West Duluth coke works last week, is still in quite a serious condition. The overdose of gas which he received at the time has somewhat affected his mind, but the physician in attendance says that this is only temporary and will pass off.

West End Shortfalls.

Dr. W. A. Coventry, accompanied by his wife and child, has gone to Ann Arbor, Mich., where he will take a post graduate course. He will be absent six weeks.
Mrs. P. Long left Friday last for Toronto, Ont., to visit with friends for some time.
Peter Miley has gone to Mount Clemens, where his parents and other relatives live, and will reside there in future.

Charles P. Cunliff, an engineer on the Northern Pacific has gone down the lakes for a trip. On his return trip he will stop over at Marquette to visit his relatives.
Your prescriptions are compounded, true to your doctor's formula at the Lion Drug store.
Kenneth Whitney, who has been a switchman in the Northern Pacific yards at the West end, has gone to Thessalon, Ont., where he will be employed by a logging company.

Frank Dardis has left his position with Stone-Orndorff-Well and will shortly leave for the West to remain. Uniform rank No. 2341, M. W. A. will give a dance on Thursday night at Lincoln Park pavilion, and during the evening will also give a fancy drill. Mrs. Redding of Pine City is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. William Schneckle of 219 Gilbert street.

Two Harbors, Minn., June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—C. L. Survant, who was arrested on a charge of stabbing C. W. Clough on the night of June 18, was given a preliminary hearing before Justice W. Survant belongs to the former. Clough says that at the climax of the argument Survant invited him to go to an alley and settle the matter. Clough stated he had nothing to settle, whereupon his former friend grabbed him by the neck and stabbed him with a knife. ## MIDSUMMER DAY Celebration by Finnish Residents of Ranges Was a Success.

Virginia, Minn., June 28.—The midsummer day celebration held near here Sunday by the Finnish residents of the range was the largest affair of its kind ever held in this part of the country. Nearly 400 people came from the Vermilion, and the rest from the Mesaba section, to enjoy a picnic. The celebration came from the western end of the range and the Finnish residents of the morning the special trains brought thousands from Ely, Tower, Eveleth and other points.
At 11 o'clock a parade was formed at the Finnish Lutheran church, the line of march extending to the picnic grove on the other side of the Auburn mine. Three bands from Ely, Eveleth and Hibbing were in the parade. At the grove a program, consisting of speeches, singing and races, was rendered. In the evening a concert was given at the Payson house. The special trains left the town between 11 and 12 o'clock.

Of Mica Shown at Federal Company's Colorado Mine.

In few days Henry Gulser, president of the Federal Mica Mining company, and John E. Roos, secretary, will leave for Cripple Creek, Colo., near where the mine is situated, with a view of putting in the mining machinery which the development of the mine has shown to be necessary. A meeting of the company was held a few days ago in the Porry building, and the report of Supt. Ames of the mine was read and created much interest. It was stated that the mine is past the development stage, as thousands of tons of mica are shown up in the tunnel, which is now in about 150 feet, and that two teams of mules to one of teams are taken from the vein, which runs to an unknown depth. Deceased here, out is so and put on stock piles to be clipped into sheets and ground.

DIES OF HEART FAILURE.
Hibbing, Minn., June 28.—John Vennin, who was born in Aroostook, Me., 75 years ago, died of heart failure Saturday morning. A logging company's headquarter camp, five miles north of Hibbing, was the scene of his death. He was taken out of a log cabin and put on stock piles to be clipped into sheets and ground.

ITS WORK IS IMPORTANT

Business of Juvenile Court for Year Ending
June 1.

Law Provides That No
Publicity Shall be Given Its Proceedings.

One of the least known institutions of St. Louis county, but one that is very important from the fact that it deals with some of the future citizens of the city, county and state, is the juvenile court. It was established by the state legislature in 1905, and has been in operation for about a year, under the direction of Judge Ensign of the district court the sessions having been held every Saturday.

The proceedings of the court have not been made public, for the reason that the law provides against that very thing, the theory being that as the court deals with persons of a tender age, who regret their offenses and indiscretions in after life, and that publicity of its operations in such cases would do no good and might be especially harmful.

There are, however, some interesting statistics connected with the first year's operations of the juvenile court of St. Louis county, the annual report of which was issued yesterday. The report covers the year ending June 1, 1906, and shows that the court had brought before it 135 cases. During that period there were 214 children in court, of whom 150 were of the class termed delinquents and 64 were dependent children.

Of the delinquents, 136 were boys and 14 were girls, and their disposition was as follows:

BOYS	GIRLS
Paroled	1
State Public School, Owatonna	3
Minnesota State Training School for boys and girls	6
Discharged and no appearance	3
Continued and no appearance	11
Deposited	1
Paroled	9

No appearance and continued	4
In custody of parents	1

Total number of delinquents.....150
Of the above delinquents sixteen have been committed to the court for further correction, having broken their parole and been found guilty of bad conduct.

The disposition of the sixty-four dependents was as follows:

Children's Home	3

Discharged	3
Paroled	1
State Public School	12
Children's Home	2

Total number dependents.....64
The total number of offences committed was 122 of which 102 were committed by the boys and 20 by the girls. The report in detail in this report is as follows:

THEY SAY FRAUD WAS PRACTICED

Iowa Men Sue for Restitution in Itasca County Land Deal.

Two Iowa men yesterday began suit in United States court against a Minnesota land company claiming that the latter misrepresented a large tract of land in Itasca county which was sold to the Iowa men in 1904. The plaintiffs are John and Hugh Gannon of Valeria, Iowa, and the defendant company is the Reishus-Reimer Land company of Grand Rapids, Minn., the defendants being named separately as E. N. Reimer, L. C. Reimer, E. J. Farrell, W. P. Reimer and E. S. Reishus.

The plaintiffs allege that E. N. Reimer visited them last winter to make the sale, and asserted to them that the land in question was worth $20 an acre, was high and dry and of good soil and easily accessible. He sold them the land for $12 an acre on these representations, and was paid $16,495 in cash and other property, besides which the plaintiffs allege that they gave him three notes amounting in all to $115,750, one payable each year the first coming due next November.

They claim also that when they first visited the land it was covered with snow, and they could not judge as to its value, but afterwards ascertained that it was worth about $3 an acre instead of $20; that it was not high and dry, but swampy; and that it was not easy of access, but extremely difficult. In short, it is claimed that the representations on which they purchased the land are entirely contrary to the facts. They say that the three notes which they gave, two have been sold to other parties, and that at present the defendant company is insolvent.

Oneota People Make a Strenuous Fight to Down Saloon.

The Council last evening authorized appointment of inspectors of wires and poles. Lays over application for renewal of saloon license in Oneota, against which ninety per cent. of voters protested. Passed resolution asking committee from commercial bottles to push sales of bonds among local people. Makes some changes in building ordinance in regard to freight elevators. Received request from chief of police asking for power to provide medical aid for sick and injured people picked up. Laid on the table indefinitely the amendment to peddlers' ordinance taxing farmers. Issued 200 licenses to dealers in fireworks. Authorized sinking fund to redeem $50,000 five per cent. bonds, July 1, 1907. Passed ordinance naming the alleys.

"This city is in a most dangerous condition," said Alderman Burgess at the council meeting last evening, in speaking of the necessity of doing something toward abating the teleed against the change, but we considered that the danger was not very great, and that the cost would in some cases be a hardship. So we decided to recommend the change, although, as I say, it was with some reluctance." Mr. Kelley when asked for an opinion, protested against the change. "You may say a man's a fool to go under an elevator," he said, but that's just what the law's for, in this case, to protect fools from being killed, and keep men from suffering from their own carelessness."

The changes were finally made. Alderman Tassman also tried to secure another amendment doing away with the necessity for automatic locks on the elevators, but this was voted down. The building inspector will now go ahead with his inspection of elevators, and the owners will be compelled to live up to the letter of the modified provisions of the ordinance.

In a communication, Chief Troyer asked for some action by the council which would enable the police department to secure more prompt medical attendance for sick or injured people picked up by the officers. Under present conditions such persons have to be taken to headquarters, and permission secured from the county physician or the poor commissioner to get medical aid. "They are kept lying in jail when they should be in the hospital," said the chief, in his letter, and asked that the police be empowered to send such persons to the hospital and have the bills approved either by the city or the county.

The amendment to the peddlers' ordinance came up again, and it was decided to make no change in the ordinance at the present time. Such a storm of protest was raised against the plan to tax farmers in order to make the whole ordinance constitutional that the plan was abandoned.

"In six months the legislature will probably pass a constitutional amendment, which will allow us to pass good ordinance," said Alderman Wilson. "In the meantime the committee and the city attorney have been unable to find any way of getting around the point, and the committee has thought that the best plan is just to leave the ordinance as it is until we can pass a good law."

The peddlers threaten to get together, engage an attorney and bring the law before the courts for a ruling. It was attacked recently in the municipal court, but the case was dismissed before the judge passed upon it.

Licenses to nearly 200 dealers in fireworks were approved by the council.

The sinking fund was ordered to take up an issue of $50,000 five per cent. bonds, maturing July 1, 1907.

An ordinance naming the alleys First, Second, Third and in order, was passed.

Alderman Jordan submitted an ordinance covering electric signs, which provides that no illuminated signs shall be allowed except those in which some design is spelled out with incandescent lights.

This places the ordinance back where it was before last January, and will do away with the "boxes with a candle in them," as Alderman Haven styled some of the cheap signs which are being constructed.

The ordinance was given its first reading.

QUADRUPLETS BORN TO A HUNGARIAN WOMAN.

Budapest, June 26.—The wife of a farmer named Szekely of Enekefalva, Hungary, has just presented her husband with quadruplets. According to the Fuggethelyi Magyar of Budapest, these bring the number of Szekely's children up to 52, of whom 32 sons and 17 daughters survive.

Szekely has been four times married, and his present wife has never had fewer than three children at a birth. On one occasion she had quadruplets. The latest addition to the family have had to be sent to a foundlings' home, as there was no room in Szekely's house for more than the forty-four children who live with their father.

ACTIVE IN VACATION

Y. M. C. A. Plans Novel Outings for Members During Summer.

Tower Excursion, Gypsy Trip and Hike to French River.

The annual excursion to Tower is an outing that members of the boys department look forward to, with a great deal of pleasure.

Arrangements have been made to make the trip this Saturday, leaving the Union Depot at 7:30 a. m. The boys will leave in a special car. At Tower they will take a steam boat to the Indian school on one of the islands of the Vermillion lake. After visiting the school and having lunch, there will be a swimming period. Each boy will bring lunch and swimming trunks. The party will return to the city at 7 o'clock. Boys going should see the secretary at once, as the crowd will be limited.

On Thursday the first of the swimming lessons will take place. A good place has been secured a little beyond the end of the car line. The boys will leave the building at 2:15, each boy taking swimming trunks. Thursday will be the regular swimming day and will be in addition to the regular Saturday outing. Mr. McLeod and Mr. Cole will accompany the boys on all the trips.

Monday, July 9, is the date set for the hike to French river. This will be a three days' trip. The boys will take the car to Lakeside and walk from there carrying their own packbags and doing their own cooking. They will camp at French river for two nights sleeping in the open air around the huge camp fire. This makes a very enjoyable trip, and gives the boys a taste of real roughing it.

Monday, July 22, the gypsy trip to Solon Springs will take place. The party will live like gypsies, living on the road with horses, gypsy wagon, tents, dogs, pots, pans, etc., eat good country food, breathe pure air, swim in warm lakes, play baseball, sing around camp fires, and have a general good time. They will cook their meals along the way and pitch their tents in some good spot in the evening. At Solon Springs they will camp for a couple of days, returning to the city Saturday. This trip will be limited to twenty boys, and applications are coming in already for it.

The Knights of Sir Galahad camp, that was to have gone to Zenith Island Monday morning, was postponed on account of the wet weather. It will take place next Monday.

LATE DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Revolver-Carrying Habit Causes Death of a Marquette Boy.

Marquette—Matthew Kemp, aged 17, was accidentally shot and killed by Fred Carlton, a companion of the same age, while the two were on a fishing trip Sunday. The fatality occurred while a revolver carried by Kemp was changing hands, and Carlton's hand was penetrated by the same bullet that killed his companion.

Bessemer—Joseph Salsky, a Hungarian, was run down by a passenger train and cut to pieces. His mangled body was carried in a clothes basket to the undertaker's rooms.

Norway—Mrs. Oliver Belland of Norway attempted suicide last week by drinking corrosive sublimate. A physician was called and applied the stomach pump and administered an emetic, thus preventing the woman from carrying out her rash act. It is said that some family trouble was the cause of the deed. Mrs. Belland was formerly the wife of Joseph Laurence, who shot his brother about a year ago during a quarrel.

Iron Mountain—It has developed that John Davey, formerly of Iron Mountain, was killed recently at San Jose, Cal., by the overturning of a street car due, it is alleged, to the carelessness of the company, and relatives have been advised to commence an action for damages. The deceased owned a fruit ranch a short distance from San Jose and was also interested in a contracting business. The remains have been interred at Iron Mountain.

Iron Mountain lodge, No. 383, Free & Accepted Masons contributed more money to the San Francisco relief fund than any lodge in Michigan, leading even Palestine lodge of Detroit with its 800 members. The Iron Mountain contribution was over $20, more than double the amount forwarded by any other peninsula lodge.

Menominee—Will Bruce, a boiler-maker employed by F. G. Fernstrom of the Menominee Boiler works, had a very narrow escape from a horrible death while at work in the plant. The man's right arm caught in the gearing on the shaft and he was jerked off his feet and thrown up to the ceiling. Just at the critical moment his clothing gave way, his shirt and overalls being torn off, and he fell back to the floor. His arm was badly strained and his body considerably bruised. His injuries are not dangerous.

MAN STABBED AT PROCTOR

Switchman Named Murphy Badly Cut in a Drunken Row.

J. P. Murphy, a switchman employed by the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road, lies at St. Mary's hospital with several ugly cuts in his body, as a result of a quarrel with a fellow trainman at Proctor last night.

W. A. Young, another switchman in the employ of the same road, is said to have been responsible for Murphy's injuries. Details of the fracas are lacking, but it is said that the men had been drinking and got into an argument which led up to blows.

In a rage, Young is said to have pulled a knife and stabbed the brakeman several times, two of the blows taking effect in his breast. Dr. Corson attended the injured man and early this morning he was brought to Duluth and taken to the hospital.

When news of the affair first came from Proctor, it was said that Murphy could not live, but it was announced at the hospital this morning that the injured man was in no danger and that his recovery would be speedy.

Former Nurse Says He Was Delirious Part of the Time.

Chicago, June 27.—Miss Elizabeth McLennan, a nurse, who accompanied John Alexander Dowie to Mexico and Jamaica, testified yesterday in the hearing before Judge Landis to determine the ownership of Zion City properties, that Dowie during that trip was delirious a greater part of the time. While in Jamaica, she declared, he was continually under the impression that the emperor of Germany was coming to visit him, and at times said the witness to the port to watch for the imperial fleet. On one occasion, she testified, Dowie dressed himself in evening clothes and awaited the coming of the emperor. Dowie seemed to believe, according to the witness' testimony, that by his prayers he had prevented war among Asiatic nations and that in consequence he was to receive a sum of money. Only a few more witnesses will be heard before the case is argued before the court.

STATE POLICE

Street Car Strike at Allentown Results in Shooting of Boy.

Allentown, Pa., June 27.—A platoon of the state constabulary which is on duty in this city in connection with the street car strike, fired into a crowd last night and injured a boy. The police were riding past Fourth and Hamilton streets when they were greeted with yells by a large crowd congregated at that point. Two of the state policemen arrested two men and started with them for the jail, a half block away. A crowd of 2,000 persons attracted by the shooting quickly gathered and stones were thrown at the state police. The helmet of F. Markowitz, a state policeman, was smashed with a brick. In the melee that followed one of the arrested men escaped. The police being hard pressed by the crowd that was following them, turned and fired a shot into the air and then shot low. A bullet struck Harry R. Winkie, a 13-year-old boy, in the leg and he was taken to a hospital. Chief of Police Bower and several city policemen arrived at the scene and the crowd was brought in their remaining prisoner, and two troopers who were accused of doing the shooting were locked up. Charges will be preferred against them for shooting.

Very few cars are running, the company not having enough to keep up their usual service. Guards of state constabulary are on each car and others are on horseback pointing out where danger is anticipated.

WILL BUILD AN INSANE ASYLUM

Supervisors Vote to Bond
Douglas County for $100,000.

The board of supervisors of Douglas county, Wis., have adopted a resolution to bond the county for $100,000 to build an insane asylum. The bonds are to run twenty years, bearing a 4 per cent interest, the interest and annual payments on the bonds to be taken care of by a levy each year.

The county expects to purchase a 60-acre tract of land near its workhouse property at Rockmont, where the new asylum will be erected. The members of the board of supervisors claim that after the asylum is completed and in operation the county will be keeping within its own borders the large amount of money that it has been paying each year for the support of insane patients at the state hospital. The state will also contribute toward the expense of running the county asylum.

The asylum in Douglas county will be practically the only one in Northern Wisconsin, but many of the Southern counties of the state already have them.

LIGHTING CONTRACT

Will Come Up for Consideration at Next Council Meeting.

Company Gives Fifty Free Lights and Reduces Commercial Rates.

At the council meeting next Monday evening the question of the renewal of the city light contract will come up for discussion.

The contract held by the Duluth Edison Electric company with the city will expire on Aug. 1, and a renewal for five years is being sought. Several months ago the company submitted a proposition to the city to renew the contract at the old rate of $55 a year for each arc light. It offered to furnish fifty extra arc lights free of cost as a bonus, in addition to the lights in the parks, and those at the city hall and police headquarters, for which the city pays nothing.

In addition to these concessions, the company offered to make a reduction of 20 per cent in the cost of commercial lighting.

The offer has been before the council for consideration since that time, and the committee has been making an investigation and comparing the cost with that in other cities of the size of Duluth. The members of the committee are Aldermen Schaefer, Mueller and Haven.

Alderman Wilson has also been making a study of the contract, and comparing it with other cities, acting on the theory that the contract was not as advantageous to the city as it might be.

From what the aldermen have discovered, however, it is understood that they are favorably inclined toward the offer, and that they consider it, in the main, a fair and an equitable one for the city.

Last week a meeting was held between the committee members, the city attorney and the representatives of the company, and some minor changes in the contract were suggested. It was finally decided to leave these to the city attorney and Oscar Mitchell, attorney for the company.

The two attorneys held a meeting Monday, and another will be held during the latter part of the week, to adjust the differences between the city and the company. If these are amicably settled, it is understood that the committee will report favorably on the contract at the council meeting next Monday evening.

Some of the aldermen believed that, while the rate on street lighting was fair, the city was paying too much for its commercial lighting, but the reduction of 20 per cent offered by the company, it was considered, was an equitable one, and from the opinion of some of the aldermen, privately expressed, it is likely that the contract will be confirmed.

LAUNCH INSPECTION SOON.

First License to Run One for Passengers is Taken Out.

The first license to run a gasoline launch was taken out at the United States steamboat inspector's office yesterday. It was by John H. Farnum, superior, who runs a launch from old town across to Minnesota Point. Under new laws the government operators of gasoline craft carrying passengers, must have a license. They do not have to undergo a examination by masters and engineers of steamers, but they must be subject to examination by the inspectors, for it is required that all gasoline launches must have a life preserver for each person carried, certain lights and a whistle, together with certain requirements which must be lived up to.

It is not known positively whether or not any others carrying passengers have failed to take out licenses, but if they have, they will be themselves subject to one of these days, for the steamboat inspectors propose an active campaign on launches as soon as the first rush on larger boats lets up some.

THAW'S ROBBED

Pittsburg Residence Entered and Gems Valued at $60,000 Taken.

Pittsburg, June 27.—Following closely upon the sensational shooting of Stanford White by Harry Thaw in New York Monday night, comes the disclosure of still another incident that brings the Pittsburg family into public notice, and that was disclosed last night while information was being sought as to the presence of the various members of the Thaw family. A $60,000 jewelry robbery from the Thaw home on the Beechwood boulevard is the story and its disclosure was made through a "leak" unconsciously dropped by one very close to the family. The exact time of the robbery is not known, but it occurred while the Thaw family was in the city and although the police and detective forces of the city were immediately notified, the matter has been kept under cover until the present time.

The jewels are said to be some of rare value, gathered by Mrs. William Thaw in her travels, and include strings of pearls, diamonds of rare value and perfect color, and silver plate. Heavier pieces of plate of cumbersome bulk were left behind.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Saturday half holidays during the month of July, August and September have been granted by President Roosevelt to skilled mechanics and laborers, and to the employees in the classified service at navy yards and naval stations of the United States.

The most violent hail storm ever known in that vicinity swept over Knox county, Neb. Tuesday evening, completely ruining fruit and growing crops in a territory two by eleven miles in extent.

Mistaken for an ash heap by the engineer, three young negroes Tuesday evening, near the Kansas line, and ground to pieces by a Missouri, Kansas & Texas south-bound train Tuesday at Welch, T. T., near the Kansas line, and ground to pieces.

In response to a telegram from Governor Hoch of Kansas, asking Western railroads to send farm hands to that state, the roads Tuesday decided to make a rate of one-third the usual fare on points in Iowa and Kansas from June 23 to July 10, inclusive.

The overturning of a freight car of a train running on the Sierra railway between El Paso and Lordsburg, N. M., Tuesday, exploded one and a half tons of dynamite and killed two brakemen. The conductor, named Hawkins, and a passenger, E. A. Roberts, were injured.

A REWARD OFFERED FOR BREWER'S RETURN.

Pittsburg, June 27.—Five thousand dollars reward for information leading to the finding of Michael Liebel, Sr., a millionaire brewer of Erie, Pa., was announced in this city last night. Liebel left his home on May 25, and went to Buffalo, from which place he telegraphed his family he was about to start for home.

When he did not arrive home, detectives were called into the case.

Not the slightest trace was found, however, until Sunday, when a Mrs. McGowan of Pittsburg, while on her way to her home in Erie, saw Liebel at the Pittsburg & Lake Erie depot. She did not know at the time that any search was being made for him.

Upon reaching Erie she learned of Liebel's disappearance, and told several persons of seeing him.

BOB EVANS RESENTED

An Insult to the Uniform of the Enlisted Man.

Made Jackies His Guests at Leading San Francisco Hotel.

New York, June 27.—A Washington special to the Sun says: A little while ago a chief petty officer of the navy, on duty at the Norfolk navy yard, applied for and obtained board at a Norfolk boarding house. He was in mufti when he made the arrangement as well as when he moved in, but when he started for the navy yard on the next morning he was, of course, in his chief petty officer's uniform. Now, a chief petty officer in the American navy, or any navy for the matter of that, is a good deal of a man, and he has to put in a good many years of hard work and decency and good conduct to get his uniform. But he's an enlisted man, all the same.

When the man who ran the Norfolk boarding house saw the new guest go out in the morning in his chief petty officer's uniform, he immediately became swollen with wrath. He halted the chief petty officer, accused him of being a sneak, and told him he'd have to vacate his room at once. Rather than have the boarding house on false pretenses, and told him he'd have to vacate his room at once. Rather than have the boarding house on false pretenses, and told him he'd have to vacate his room at once.

Mr. Bonaparte, the secretary of the navy, heard about this thing—not from the chief petty officer, but through another source. In general orders he gave expression to some remarks concerning the treatment to which enlisted men are subjected by a certain class in the country that read just as acridly as they were meant to read. Mr. Bonaparte all but said that the government should be framed making it a misdemeanor for anybody to bar a sober enlisted man from the privileges freely granted to sober civilians.

Mr. Taft, the secretary of war, followed a while later with several paragraphs of exceedingly penetrating comment on an incident in which a party of entirely sober soldiers had been barred from a hotel by a certain class in the country that read just as acridly as they were meant to read. Mr. Bonaparte all but said that the government should be framed making it a misdemeanor for anybody to bar a sober enlisted man from the privileges freely granted to sober civilians.

The two secretaries delivered themselves of these observations for the president of the United States as well as for themselves. Since taking the presidential chair Mr. Roosevelt has been known to make some decidedly scorching utterances with respect to persons who give enlisted men the worst of it on account of their uniforms.

Incidents of the sort which called forth the remarks of the two secretaries make it hard for the recruiting officers of the two services, land and sea. Young Americans don't like to take on with any outfit a connection with which obviously from these stories places them below the level of the most ordinary civilians.

The great majority of officers, both army and navy, keenly resent the slight put upon enlisted men by the behavior by persons to whom the uniform is the livery of degradation. No less a man than Admiral Fighting Bob Evans gave a few years ago, in San Francisco, a fine illustration of the way the right kind of officers feel toward their men.

It happened in the palm garden in the open court of the Palace hotel. Admiral Bob's fleet, not long back from the Asiatic station, was anchored in the bay, and he was stopping at The Palace. listening to the music of the orchestra was a bunch of half a dozen blue-jackets from his flagship appeared at the entrance from the street. They were a spick-and-span looking lot, all cold sober, and merely curious to have a peek at the famous palm garden. The manager of the garden who happened to be at the door, waited them back with lordly gestures.

"Strict rule of the house," he told them. "No bucks or buccies in uniform." "What's the matter with those men? Why didn't they come in?" the admiral asked the manager.

The manager who was quite well aware of the admiral's pull with the hotel, and who quickly perceived, too, that one of the San Franciscans at the admiral's table was a big stockholder in the hotel company, stammered something about the rule of the house as to enlisted men.

"Enlisted?" remarked Admiral Bob. "They're clean and sober men, aren't they?"

The manager said that if the admiral insisted upon it, why—

"Lay aft, hearties!" sang out the admiral to the blue-jackets, who were disappearing down the passage way.

Wheeling and recognizing their admiral, the blue-jackets walked back to the entrance in order, saluting as they came to a halt.

Good orchestra here, sons," said Admiral Bob to the men, not letting them know that he'd made any point about their getting in. "No use making off yet. Come in and hear a tune or two."

The admiral's table, where his amused cronies still sat.

"Pull up chairs," said the admiral to the clean looking lot of jacks, and in a jiffy they were all grouped around the table. "What's it going to be?" and the admiral summoned a waiter.

The admiral entertained his men for an hour or so, giving his civilian cronies the chance to pick right interesting talk out of the well behaved sailorman.

Nobody in the immense palm garden was snobbish enough to think even of objecting to the presence of the blue-jackets.

When Commander Ingersoll was executive officer of the unfortunate Bonington, ten years or so ago, he figured in an incident of a similar sort in San Francisco. An even dozen of the Bonington's crew had bought at one of the hotel theatre ticket stands, seats for a grand opera performance at Baldwin's theatre. Seasoned monowar's men who have served a good deal of time on the Mediterranean station develop a liking for high-grade opera. These blue-jackets had paid $8 a throw for their seats, which were in the very first row of the orchestra, and they had journeyed all the way from Vallejo to take in the opera.

But when they got to the gate they were turned back. It was the business manager of the opera company, on the door, who considered that the blue-jackets wouldn't help to dress the house. Anyhow, the business manager was glad to seize the opportunity to oblige some San Francisco friends who had been unable to obtain seats for the performance. He saw his chance to nab the sailors' tickets and purvey them to his friends.

"No uniforms," he gruffly told the Bonington's men. "You can turn your seats in at the box office and get your money back."

"You can have the money, mate," said one of the sailors and they turned to leave the lobby.

Lieutenant Commander Ingersoll had arrived in the lobby in time to take in the incident.

"Turn in your tickets, boys," he said in a low tone to the men and they obeyed him. They had no sooner got their money back on the tickets than Mr. Ingersoll, who was in evening dress, stood before the box-office man.

"I'll take those twelve tickets just turned in," he said to the box-office man and the latter, not having yet got the signal from the opera company's business manager, passed them over to the lieutenant commander.

"Fall in boys," said the executive officer, and he walked at the head of his dozen blue-jackets to the entrance door with his own ticket and the twelve

Hancock, June 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—The usual bundle of errors cost Duluth its game yesterday, when by all that is right, Cummings, who was in the box for Duluth, should have been entitled to a victory. He allowed only two hits and had seven errors. Spiker was not much less invincible, however, for he allowed only four hits and had an equal number of strikeouts. In the first inning, Duluth played like a team, and three of the six errors of Cummings were charged up against them in that inning.

MAKE CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT

And Keep Team in Hancock is Wish of Fans.

Hancock, Mich., June 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire Wreath and keep the team in Hancock, as the cry of the fans here, and yesterday the sum of $50 was raised by popular subscription to form an association for the purpose of taking over the team.

Herbert S. Baer, a local business man, will have charge of the management of the team, and Bill Foster will act as captain and playing manager.

The Hancock players have had trouble with Wreath all year, and during the last few days the manager has had no control over them whatever. Several of them refused to play under him any longer, or to play at all until they received their back pay.

The action yesterday will probably prevent the transfer to either Superior or Ashland being made.

MAKE CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT

And Keep Team in Hancock is Wish of Fans.

Hancock, Mich., June 27.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire Wreath and keep the team in Hancock, as the cry of the fans here, and yesterday the sum of $50 was raised by popular subscription to form an association for the purpose of taking over the team.

Herbert S. Baer, a local business man, will have charge of the management of the team, and Bill Foster will act as captain and playing manager.

The Hancock players have had trouble with Wreath all year, and during the last few days the manager has had no control over them whatever. Several of them refused to play under him any longer, or to play at all until they received their back pay.

The action yesterday will probably prevent the transfer to either Superior or Ashland being made.

WEST DULUTH FOR CLUB'S ATTENTION

Two Matters of Importance to Come Up for Consideration.

Subscriptions in Bond Issue and Fire Insurance Rates.

There are two important matters for the West Duluth Commercial club to take up at its meeting next Wednesday night. For several weeks matters have been quiet with the club, but now a battle is mapped out for the members, should they care to take it up. A member of the club this morning said that if nobody else does it he will bring up the matter of bidding for a part of the water and light bonds, and also against the increased insurance rates in West Duluth. On the water and light bonds, a resolution passed the council last Monday night to allow the citizens to bid on the bonds and to refer the matter to the three commercial clubs of the city to see what they could do with it.

The West Duluth club will probably take this up as it is understood that a bid will be made from West Duluth for at least $10,000 of the bonds. The total issue is $375,000 and it is hoped that the citizens will take up a large portion of the amount. The city council asks the banks and individual citizens to subscribe and thus take the bond issue out of the market for bond buyers. It is considered an excellent investment and it is believed that it will pay those who go in for it. The club will likely take this up and will endeavor to have a good subscription from West Duluth.

In the matter of fire insurance rates considerable of a kick at the advance has been heard from West Duluth. As has been published before there is an increase of 15 per cent on merchandise stocks and this is hitting some of the Central avenue merchants pretty hard as they were already in many instances paying as high as 5 per cent. This matter will likely be fought. One man of influence said this morning: "It strikes me as short-sighted on the part of the companies to make insurance such a burden on people, for it will result in similar action with insurance companies as has hit ice trusts in Toledo recently. It will result in a law which will make the state's consent necessary for a change in rates. The insurance companies are cutting their own throats by this kind of a move."

FEW COMPLAINTS ARE RECEIVED

Board of Review Holds a Very Uneventful Session.

The board of review has apparently worked itself out of a job.

This morning only three or four complaints were heard, and the members of the board sat around the table swapping stories and waiting for indignant taxpayers to appear and present their claims.

The indignant taxpayers didn't show up, and those that did ask for a hearing were very mild in their protests.

The number of complaints this year is smaller than usual, and nearly all of them appear to have been disposed of on the first day of the board's session. Some of those who have appeared had just cause for complaint, but others were turned down in their attempts to obtain a reduction in their assessments.

The board will continue in session, until the end of the week, unless it is seen to be no longer necessary.

Refrigerators.

And what is more important than your refrigerator purchase? Into your "food container" goes, for preservation, all the perishable food you eat. Suppose this container be a poor one—one not properly constructed as to circulation—as to dryness, etc., and the food begins to spoil?

Poor food means—poor health, and your refrigerator should be selected with the greatest of care.

A good refrigerator saves its cost almost every year in provisions that it keeps from spoiling, as well as in the strict economy in ice. A cheap refrigerator generally "eats its head off" in foods wasted and in ice consumed, so that the first difference in favor of the ordinary refrigerator is a genuine extravagance instead of saving.

The Bohn or Dr. Perkins' Sanitary we fully warrant, absolutely no taint and perfect refrigeration. Let us show them to you. They are the BEST and cost no more than the inferior kind elsewhere.

PITIFUL PLIGHT OF AN INDIAN

Buried Too Soon, His Brethren Spurn Him as Ghost.

Pawhuska, Okla., June 27.—Perhaps there is not in all America another individual in the deplorable plight in which John Stink, a full-blooded Osage Indian, who lives at Pawhuska, Okla., finds himself. He has been completely, mercilessly ostracized by his people for many years.

Twenty-five years ago John Stink was one of the leading men among the Osage people. He owned more than his share of cattle, and sat in the councils of his tribe. In the midst of this honor and prosperity he was found dead one morning. The Indians mourned for him as became his rank, and buried him with elaborate funeral ceremonies on a high hill east of Pawhuska. The mourners, duly considerate of his comfort in the other world, deposited upon the top of his cairn-made grave provisions for a three-weeks' journey, and tethered his pony near by so that he might ride when he became tired of walking.

The horror of the Indians can easily be imagined when John Stink appeared upon the streets of the village the morning after his burial. The populace fled in terror at his approach, declaring that he had returned from the dead to cast an evil eye upon them.

From that day to this no Osage Indian has ever spoken to John Stink.

LET THE EAGLE SCREAM.

King of Birds Looks Well on the Label of the King of Cigars.

It is not often that the cigar store has a lot of eagles, but S. F. Boyce when he received his stock of Wadsworth Bros' Choice cigars found that a handsome eagle decorated the box. It is very appropriate he says to have the King of Birds on the label of the King of Cigars. This is one that pleases all who love a good smoke, yet it sells for only 5c. Smokers who used to pay ten to fifteen cents for cigars now put on the Choice, and are better pleased and satisfied.

Try a Chico and you will thank S. F. Boyce for recommending the cigar.

Twice he has built himself a house, but the Indians burned both of them, declaring that as he was a familiar demon he ought to live in the air. So, deserted by his tribesmen, the old man sleeps in doorways, if the weather be good, under the open sky. No amount of argument will convince the Indians that their unfortunate brother was not dead when they buried him, a quarter of a century ago, but was simply the victim of a cataleptic trance. To translate into articulate English what one of the chiefs of his tribe said about him: "He has tread the happy land and has spoken face to face with his father. His eyes have beheld the sights of an immortal world, and his ears have heard the Great Spirit's voice. His soul is filled with evil, or else he would have stayed in the better land." And so John Stink, homeless Indian, is a wanderer on the face of the earth.

GOOD WORK OF LEAGUE

H. V. Eva Says Conditions Are Favorable for Drainage Movement.

State Organization Probably Will Meet Here Next Year.

H. V. Eva, secretary of the Duluth Commercial club, who returned this morning from Wadena, where he attended the annual meeting of the Minnesota State Drainage league, says the organization is now in a position to accomplish much good work this year. Mr. Eva played a prominent part at the meeting yesterday, and was chiefly instrumental in the election of C. H. Warner of Aitkin president, and J. S. Gole of Grand Rapids, secretary of the league. This selection of officers seems to be universally acceptable.

"I believe the work of the league will meet with success from now on," said Mr. Eva this morning. "We need more money to carry on a campaign of education in our own state as to the needs of drainage, than to send men to lobby at Washington. When the residents of Minnesota are themselves convinced that drainage really is needed to insure a more rapid and complete development of the state, the greatest step toward getting the work accomplished will have been taken."

"Acting on behalf of Duluth, I extended an invitation to the league to meet in this city next year, and I have every reason to believe that the invitation will be accepted. Crookston and Moorhead are also after the convention, but nearly all the members who were present yesterday appeared to favor Duluth as the meeting point. The executive committee will decide to which city it shall go."

"There isn't much now to be said on the drainage question. The need of the work is pretty well understood all through Northern Minnesota, but farther south the people do not under-

BRYAN THE SUCCESSOR

To Roosevelt, the View of the Pennsylvania Democrats.

Convention is Being Held to Nominate State Candidates.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 27.—The Democratic state convention to nominate candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, auditor general and secretary of internal affairs, assembled here today.

Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia was presented as temporary chairman. Mr. Ryan said that "For a generation our citizens have permitted the control of their affairs to be vested in a corrupt combination as ever cursed a free state. Utterly devoid of civic conscience, the managers of the Republican party have formed illicit combinations with the railroads of the commonwealth and enabled them to defy the mandates of the constitution, prostitute the ballot and debauch the electorate, they had diverted public moneys into private channels and for personal gain used them to build street railways in Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Chicago, and to finance projected railroads in the wilds of New Mexico."

He said, "To redeem Pennsylvania and preserve it for the people is our ambition."

In conclusion, he said: "Popular government must be restored. The curse of black slavery must not have been destroyed only to be supplanted by degraded labor and corporate ownership of human chattels; the brutal lash of the master shall not have been snatched away only to give place to the more cruel scourge of monopolies with power to destroy private industry and thwart personal endeavor."

The platform follows:

"That public questions relating only to the future of the government, and affecting solely the election of representatives in congress, appropriately belong for determination to the voters of the several congressional districts."

"We congratulate the country upon the fact that the only prominence which the present Republican national administration has attained has been achieved by a feeble and pretended application of the principles enunciated by the Hon. William Jennings Bryan, the great Democratic commoner, who is now regarded as the certain successor of Theodore Roosevelt to the presidency."

Tomorrow Morning Gidding's Begin Their First of the Season's Clean-up Sales of Tailored Suits—Costumes and Gowns

At Exactly Half Price! In Some Instances Even Less.

It is not merely a clean-up of odds and ends as is often the case with usual stores—but a round up of the season's lines regardless of their cost to us.

We have had the most successful Spring business in our history and have had to carry very much heavier stocks—as a result the assortment is better this clean-up time than ever before! In fact we believe you will find greater assortments right here now than at any two Head of the Lakes stores at the opening of the season!

And, what makes buying more desirable or advantageous at this time—and, in Duluth, is the fact that the Summer season has barely opened up so that you buy them practically at the beginning of the wearing season at half!

The Sale includes the most desirable styles, shades and materials of the present season. Notable of which are beautiful model gowns of Voile and Veiling over Silk.

CITY BRIEFS.

The young people of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church will conduct the service at the Star of Hope mission this evening at 8 o'clock. H. A. Sedwick will speak. There will be social singing.

Arrangements are being made for the annual picnic of the Epworth League, which will be held July 10, at Fond du Lac. J. M. Gidding & Co. will begin tomorrow their first of the season's clean-up sales of high-class tailored suits at half price. Jacob P. Noll was arrested yesterday afternoon on the charge of keeping a disorderly house at 62 West Michigan street, and his trial set for tomorrow. Three young men and three girls were arrested in his place Monday afternoon.

The month of June has thus far maintained its record as the month of brides. Yesterday eleven marriage licenses were issued by the clerk of the district court, and this was the first time in many months so many licenses were issued. The closing days of the month are likely to see many more applications.

Thomas F. Casey of Superior, Wis., and Miss Ida Lee of Duluth, were married by Probate Judge Middlecott yesterday.

John La Prairie, a Floodwood farmer, brought two wolf pups to the county auditor's office yesterday and received $20 in state and county bounty. The pups were found around, but were seldom brought in during the summer season for the reason that the wolves separate themselves in the almost impenetrable swamps in the northern part of the state.

MRS. THAW PAYS VISIT TO TOMBS

Greets Her Husband in a Most Affectionate Manner.

New York, June 27.—While Thaw was still in the criminal court building, undergoing an examination by alienists, Thaw called at the prison to see his husband. She was accompanied by Joseph G. Thaw, the prisoner's brother. They were obliged to wait in the Tombs consultation room, until the alienists permitted Thaw to return to the prison. The arrival of Mrs. Thaw at the prison had been anticipated, and a crowd numbering several thousand pressed around the prison entrance when her cab arrived. An Italian funeral cortege was passing down Center street, the brass band playing a funeral dirge, and Mrs. Thaw's car was obliged to take its place in the long line of carriages behind the hearse. When the Tombs was reached the street was so crowded that it would have been impossible for her to alight, and she was obliged to remain in the car while a large force of policemen labored to clear a passageway from the prison to the prison entrance for Mrs. Thaw.

Dr. Allen McLane Hamilton, the alienist, was called into the Thaw case today by counsel for the defense, Dr. Hamilton held a long consultation with the former Judge Olcott, with a view, it is said, to select a corps of expert on insanity to examine the prisoner.

Both Mrs. Thaw and her brother-in-law then were subjected to search, as is customary in the case of all visitors to the Tombs. Nothing was taken from Mrs. Thaw, but the attendants gave her a small package of soap in exchange for a small perfume found in her pockets.

Mrs. Thaw and her brother-in-law were then conducted to the Thaw cell, on the second floor. The prisoner and his wife greeted each other affectionately.

"You don't look very pert," said she, as the attendant left them alone for a long talk.

A CONFIRMED OLD MAID

By M. M. Couper.

(Copyright, 1906, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Miss Margaret Brentwood and Montgomery, her cat, lived together near Union square.

Montgomery was 4 years old, and was a striped all over like a tiger, with the exception of an immaculate white shirt front.

Montgomery had his own particular chair and cushion in the drawing room and boudoir; this was Miss Brentwood's favorite, and Montgomery was naturally fond of it. When a man and woman sat up house together a certain amount of give-and-take is necessary, and this particular instance resembled many others in that the giving was monopolized by one side.

It seemed to give Montgomery thick cream in dairy china snucers, and soft velvet cushions, but he never gave anything back to his mistress, and was very fond of his mistress, he had grown accustomed to her, as he had to his respective chairs and cushions, and not being without experience of women in general, he placed her emphatically before any others of his acquaintance.

He liked to see her graceful figure bending over her work, and his mistress was very fond of her, as he had to his respective chairs and cushions, and not being without experience of women in general, he placed her emphatically before any others of his acquaintance.

He liked to see her graceful figure bending over her work, and his mistress was very fond of her, as he had to his respective chairs and cushions, and not being without experience of women in general, he placed her emphatically before any others of his acquaintance.

THE EVENING STRIP

amounts to the same thing," responded the other lady.

"Thought that was smart, didn't you?" murmured Montgomery, watching the speaker through his half-closed lids.

"Old she has never married—so well off as she is, too!" pursued Mrs. Otway.

"Well, I don't know about its being odd," said Mrs. Brasher, nursing up her lips with much significance.

"Why, was there any one?" Oh! do tell me, dear Mrs. Brasher; she will be down in a moment."

"Of course you understand it must go no further."

"Looks for all the world as if she saw a jug of cream," interpolated Montgomery with disgust.

"Well, when she was quite a girl, one of old John Dorrington's sons fell in love with her, and she with him; but the old man, who was as mad as a hatter even then, vowed that his son should marry rich, and wouldn't hear of an engagement between them."

"Brentwood has always had plenty of pride, and she absolutely refused to marry young Dorrington against his father's wishes, and consequently they parted with the usual protestations of undying constancy, and I believe they have held no communication with each other since. She has kept her word, as you see."

"Unmarried, too! Refreshingly romantic, isn't it?"

"Surprisingly so. And where is Mr. Dorrington now?"

"Oh! I have no idea of his present whereabouts. I haven't set eyes on him for years. He was a very handsome boy, but I expect he is a gray-haired old bore by this time. I know she keeps his photograph, and looks at it every night. Oh! my dear Miss Brentwood, how dry you are! We were just admiring your beautiful cat. Quite unique specimen, I am sure!"

"It's you who are the unique specimen," hissed Montgomery. "Don't touch me! I'm not a cat!"

"No, he doesn't—when they are any thing like you," said Montgomery, and studied the performance with scant interest, for it had no definite result like the turning out of a lamp or the ringing of a bell, and he had come to look upon it as a mere idle habit on the part of his mistress. Sometimes also, in the twilight, he had seen her take from the same drawer a packet of old, faded letters and look upon a photograph. ## WISCONSIN DEMOCRATS PLEDGE THEMSELVES TO THE SUPPORT OF BRYAN

Strong Platform Presented to State Convention at Milwaukee.

Demands Enforcement of the Statutes Against All Trusts.

Favors Election of United States Senators by Direct Vote.

Milwaukee, June 28.—The Democratic state platform as prepared by the committee on resolutions after an all night session and presented to the convention as a whole today for ratification, strongly endorses William Jennings Bryan, the Democratic candidate for president in 1908. Among other things, the platform demands enforcement of the statutes against all trusts, combinations and monopolies; favors revision of the present tariff; the election of United States senators by direct vote and government control and regulation of all public service corporations. On state matters the report favors a law conferring upon municipalities power to regulate public service corporations; favors two cents per mile maximum passenger rate; taxation on the ad valorem basis and amendments to the primary election law. The platform follows:

The Democratic party of the state of Wisconsin, in state convention assembled, in the enjoyment of the constitutional provision that the right of the people peaceably to assemble to consult for the common good shall not be abridged, recommends the adoption of the following platform of principles:

We recognize that the gigantic trusts and combinations, designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint products of capital and labor, and which have been fostered and promoted under Republican rule, are a menace to the public interest, and are obstacles to permanent business prosperity. A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable.

We demand a strict enforcement of existing civil and criminal statutes against all trusts, combinations and monopolies, and as a feature of the Democratic members of both houses of congress for the loyal support they have given to the tariff, which has been diluted somewhat by off-repeated victory of the Blue, Yale has won each year since 1890, and her victories are 18 to Harvard's 7, in the 25 dual regatta, Cornell having won 7, in the triangular regatta.

We favor revision of the present tariff, and hold that the tariff duty should be levied for the purpose of revenue, such duties to be so adjusted as to operate equally throughout the country, and not discriminate between classes or sections, and the taxation should be limited to the needs of the government, honestly and economically administered.

We deem it imperative, in order to protect the people from the inordinate exactions of coal and oil combinations and monopolies that the federal government should reserve from sale all coal and oil rights on government lands hereafter granted.

We believe in the principle of income tax, and favor such amendment to the federal constitution as will permit federal taxation on incomes.

The platform item that the Philippine Islands should receive the same treatment given Cuba, and recommends the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people; and it demands the governmental control and regulation of all public service corporations; the amendment of the present state law, giving the state railway commission power to correct, upon its initiative, any schedule of rates which in its judgment should be corrected or modified; municipal ownership of public utilities; the amendment of the constitution, so that indebtedness incurred in acquiring

STATE DRAINAGE LEAGUE

Adjourns After Passing Resolutions and Listening to Papers.

Wadena, Minn., June 28.—A feature of yesterday's session of the state drainage league was an address by Superintendent McGuire of the North-east experimental farm at Grand Rapids, on swampy soil.

The resolutions indorse the Minnesota congressional delegation in congress and particularly Chapp, Stearns, Volstead and Buckman, for their work. Thanks were voted to the retiring officers, and it was noted with pleasure that the drainage question was coming to be non-partisan.

Epitomized, the resolutions recommended support of Stearns' and Hansbrough's drainage bills; favor an amendment of section 4, chapter 230 of the general laws of 1905, regarding county aid, so that the aid can be given by a majority vote of the commissioners; want the state to provide a fixed annual appropriation to be used by the drainage commission to reclaim swamp lands; commend the policy of the state forestry board in the planting and growing of trees on non-agricultural lands; favor the maintenance of government reservoirs, also the regulation and conduct of such in a manner that will not force use upon ship upon communities and business interests and farmers and settlers at the headwaters of the Mississippi for the benefit of tugmen, manufacturers and lumbermen on the lower river; and recommend co-operation with the national government in the matter of topographical survey.

A vote of thanks was given Wadena for entertaining the convention, an address by Mr. Heron of Washington on the reading of topographic maps closed the program, and the convention adjourned.

YALE WINS FIRST TWO

Defeats Harvard in Freshman Eights and 'Varsity Four.

Twenty-Eighth Annual Regatta Being Rowed on Thames.

New London, June 28.—Yale wins the eight oared freshman race. Time: Yale, 10:35; Harvard, 10:41.

New London, June 28.—Yale won the four oared race by over eight lengths, Yale's time was 11:46 3-5; Harvard, 12:14, unofficial.

New London, June 28.—Race day on the Thames dawned with a promise of wind and water conditions that was well nigh perfect for the three events which will make up the twenty-eighth annual regatta between Yale and Harvard. A cool westerly breeze was blowing but it was not strong enough to ripple the river's surface. As favorable as the outlook for the two morning races, the prediction was freely given that conditions could not be better than those that seem certain will prevail when the big event, the varsity eights, is called at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Interest in this race, intense as it has been for the past two days was increased this morning when the supporters of the Blue and Crimson saw that there was no likelihood of this handicap from either wind or wave.

More than ever before during the past two weeks was the outlook for a grand variety race and still the uncertainty as to the outcome prevailed. Early in the morning the crews were in the water, and the rivalry in the city from the quarters of the rival crews were reduced in making any predictions. They said that in both camps the greatest confidence was felt in the outcome, but no one was rash enough to make an outright claim of victory. The same uncertainty and intense interest was felt in the two lesser races. Many college men pointed out the fact that Yale has been defeated somewhat by off-repeated victory of the Blue, Yale has won each year since 1890, and her victories are 18 to Harvard's 7, in the 25 dual regatta, Cornell having won 7, in the triangular regatta.

The crowd of race observers poured into the city on early morning trains. Thousands also came by water, and there were automobile parties without number. The first race of the day, the freshman eights, was scheduled to start at 10 o'clock from the drawbridge. From dawn until that hour scores of yachts moved up from harbor anchorages to positions in the upper river, forming a long line of craft through which the rival crews were to race. There was a big fleet of sailing and steam yachts and it was small in comparison with the flotilla which was in motion today.

Cong and life were given to the marine picture by the fluttering of the flags and bunting with which the craft had been dressed, everything flowing briskly in the morning breeze. Observation trains for the morning races ran up both banks of the river and were well filled.

An hour before the time for the first race word was received from up-river that everything was in readiness for the day's events.

The referee was Guy Richards, Columbia, '07.

The oarsmen were quietly confident, both at Yale and Harvard, Yale strengthened by the varsity victories of the past. Harvard, buoyed up by the knowledge that she has one of the fastest crews ever put upon the river. The absorbing interest was, of course, in the varsity race, but an unusual preparation given to the four-oar and freshman crews lent extraordinary attention to the outcome of these events. The first race, scheduled for 10 o'clock, was that between the Yale-Harvard freshman eights, over a course two miles in length, beginning at the bridge at New London and ending up the river at the navy yard. In this event Harvard had the west lane of the river and Yale the east course. Both freshmen eights were at the starting point promptly on time, but the start of the race was delayed by the failure of the observation trains to arrive on time. Meanwhile the varsity fours had proceeded to the navy yard, which was to be the starting place of their two-mile race up stream. At this time the river was like a mill pond, from one end of the course to the other. There was scarcely a breath of air.

In the four-oared race Harvard was assigned to the east course and Yale to the west. This event was started immediately after the freshman race.

SALOONS ARE LIMITED BY NEW CHICAGO LAW.

Chicago, June 28.—If Mayor Dunne signs an ordinance which was passed by the city council Monday night—and it is expected he will do so—no more saloon licenses can be issued in Chicago for many a month after July 31 next. Anybody who wishes to speculate on saloon permits must get one before that date.

The ordinance is known as the "Harmon measure," and its purpose is ultimately to limit the number of saloons in the city to one to every 60 inhabitants.

Inasmuch as Chicago, under this rule, will have to grow to be a place of 3,000,000 population before more licenses are needed, it is evident, the ordinance is sustained by the courts, that it will be years before any more licenses can be issued.

WILL SMASH BUILDINGS

If They Are Rented for Saloons in Kansas City, Kas.

Attorney General Sends Out Warning to All Property Owners.

Kansas City, June 28.—The anti-saloon crusade at Kansas City, Kas., was renewed today with increased vigor. In addition to destroying stocks, liquor and bar fixtures C. W. Trickett, the Assistant attorney general appointed by Governor Hoch to enforce the prohibition law, threatened to demolish saloon buildings if the owners persist in renting their places to joint keepers. Many of these buildings are owned by brewing companies. Today Attorney General Trickett began sending out warnings to property owners.

"This is to notify you," reads the warning, "that if you permit said premises to be used for the sale of intoxicating liquors, so as to make necessary the issuance of a second writ of abatement, I shall order the premises sufficiently demolished, so that no third trip will be necessary, and in addition, will cite you for contempt of court in aiding and assisting in violating the order of the court."

There are about 100 saloons in Kansas City, Kas., about fifty of which have been closed. The liquors and fixtures in fifteen of these have been seized by the county officials up to today. A portion of this property was destroyed yesterday, and today the officials continued to spill liquor and break up costly bars, tables and furniture already brought in, and to search for still more.

APPROPRIATION CUT BY SENATE

Would Reduce Funds for Duluth Postoffice to $100,000.

Washington, June 28.—Subject to changes, the senate committee on public buildings and grounds, upon convening today, made public the amendments made during its night session in the omnibus public building bill.

Reductions in appropriations made by the house bill include the following:

Duluth, Minn., $125,000 to $100,000; New York, $35,000 to $30,000; Lead, S. D., $50,000 to $75,000; Mitchell, S. D., $50,000 to $75,000; Watertown, S. D., $50,000 to $75,000.

The senate committee made increases in the house appropriations as follows:

Alexandria, Minn., $7,000 to $30,000; Devils Lake, N. D., $25,000 to $50,000; Minneapolis, $25,000 to $35,000.

To the general legislation of the house is added a provision appropriating $3,000,000 for condemnation proceedings for a building in Washington for the departments of state, justice and commerce and labor.

CORONER'S JURY FINDS THAW GUILTY; PROMPTLY INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

MRS. EVELYN NESBITT THAW.

MONDAY A BETTER "HANGMAN'S DAY."

Omaha, June 28.—"The crucifixion of Christ took place" on Friday and I do not think it appropriate to set the execution for two murderers for that day," said Judge Sutton, when he sentenced Jay O'Hearn and Harrison Clark to be hanged on a Monday. The statement of the court came as a surprise for it upsets the long-established custom of making Friday "hangman's day."

"My reason for fixing Monday," continued the court, "is that I think it better to have these men meet death on the day following Sunday, which is devoted to religious thought and services, as they naturally will be in a better frame of mind to go to their final reckoning on that day than any other."

NEW RURAL ROUTE.
Washington, June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Herald Rural Route No. 1 has been ordered established on Aug. 15, at Menasha, Waushara county, Wis., serving 515 people and 103 houses.

TERRE HAUTE MAYOR OUSTED FROM OFFICE.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 28.—The city council in the impeachment charges brought against Mayor Edward J. Bickman yesterday found the mayor guilty as charged, and declared him ousted from office. Mayor Bickman immediately took the chair and attempted to call the council to order. He declared that he will not recognize the ouster order, but will continue to discharge the duties of the office. No further action was taken by the council and the outcome of the matter is uncertain.

OREGON ELECTRIC COMPANY.
Portland, Ore., June 28.—The Oregon Electric company was organized yesterday, to take over the line between Portland and Salem, being built by the Willamette Valley Traction company. The directors consist of G. B. Moffatt and W. A. White of New York; Harold B. Clark of New Jersey; F. T. Griffith of Oregon City, Ore.; A. N. C. Bush, Salem, Ore.; and Thomas H. Brooke and H. L. Corbett of Portland.

Stage Director at Madison Square Gives the Most Important Testimony.

Mrs. Thaw Goes Into Grand Jury Room and Remains About Fifteen Minutes.

Understood That Prisoner's Wife Would Refuse to Answer Any Questions.

New York, June 28.—The coroner's inquest in the Thaw case was scheduled to begin at 9:30 o'clock, but at that time the coroner was not present. Coroner Dooley was engaged in work on the Thaw case until after 3 o'clock this morning, and sent word that he would be a little delayed in starting the inquest.

The White inquest was completed and the case was submitted to the jury shortly after 11 o'clock.

The jury brought in a verdict that White came to his death by gunshot wounds inflicted by Harry K. Thaw.

The important testimony at the inquest was given by Lionel Lawrence, stage director at the Madison Square roof garden theater. Lawrence said that immediately after the shooting Mrs. Thaw rushed up her husband and throwing her arms around his neck said:

"Never mind, Harry, I will stick to you through thick and thin."

Thaw turned to the crowd which surrounded them and said:

"That is my wife and I got him and fixed him for it."

Soon after the close of the coroner's inquest the proceedings against Thaw were begun before the grand jury. At noon Mrs. Harry K. Thaw entered the grand jury room. She was accompanied by her counsel, Judge Olcott and Terence McManus.

Mrs. Thaw remained in the grand jury room about 15 minutes. She then left in company with her husband's counsel, and together they went to the Tombs to visit the prisoner. At that time it was understood that an indictment against Thaw was being drawn up and that it would be ready for presentation to the court this afternoon.

The grand jury returned an indictment against Thaw charging murder in the first degree. Thaw will plead to the indictment before Justice Cowan tomorrow.

New York, June 28.—Decision was reached today that Mrs. Harry K. Thaw will refuse to testify before the grand jury and that she will plead to the indictment before Justice Cowan tomorrow. It was understood that she should not be made to give any evidence that might be damaging to her husband's case. The grand jury's permission of her husband's counsel to attend the coroner's inquest today and to visit the prisoner was denied by the attorney.

New York, June 28.—The coroner's inquest and the meeting of the grand jury today, both to formally name the murderer of Stanford White, the district public inquest today with the developments of yesterday, when an insanity commission was appointed to examine Mrs. Thaw, visited her husband in his cell in the Tombs prison. There was much speculation today as to just what position Mrs. Thaw would take when she appeared before the grand jury today.

It was asserted that the wife had told her friends that she would go to prison rather than testify in the grand jury room, where proceedings are secret and where the only counsel is a representative of the district attorney's office. Mrs. Thaw has told most intimate friends that she would "stand pat" and refuse to say anything, no matter how important the question, being asked by the grand jury.

This assertion is said to have been brought from Mrs. Thaw by the intention of the district attorney's office to make her a witness for the prosecution.

Assistant District Attorney Nott and Garvin, it was said today, are determined that the wife should testify, and where she can be put under oath and where it is expected to learn from her enough to establish the motive which actuated Thaw in killing White. Mr. Nott says that Mrs. Thaw cannot claim the privilege of refusing to answer questions just because she is the wife of a man accused of crime, and that this privilege is extended only to what are known as confidential communications between husband and wife. If she refuses to answer other questions she can be committed for contempt of court.

She may refuse to answer questions on the ground that the answers might tend to degrade or incriminate her, and also she has the right to refuse to answer questions on the ground that the answers tend to convict her of a crime.

It is also understood that Mrs. Thaw told her husband when she called upon him in the Tombs yesterday that she would obey the subpoena of the grand jury so far as calling at the grand jury room was concerned, but that under no circumstances would she permit any body to question her, and that if the acting district attorney insisted on putting questions to her she would positively refuse to make any reply to them.

The legal question of what testimony a wife may or may not give against her husband is important in Thaw's case. Under the old common law a wife could not be compelled to give any evidence against her husband, but the revised penal code of the state of New York modified this absolute barrier. Section 715 provides as follows:

The husband or wife of a person indicted or accused of a crime is in all cases a competent witness on the examination or trial of such person; but neither husband nor wife can be compelled to disclose the confidential communication made by one to the other during the marriage.

As the proceedings in the grand jury room are secret, no announcement of the testimony in today's examination is expected. Only witnesses sufficient to establish the fact of a crime and who committed it will be called, the district attorney's office not wishing to disclose its whole hand either at the inquest or grand jury inquiry.

The district attorney's office completed the examination of the more important witnesses so far discovered yesterday and immediately shifted its attention to the investigation of the relations existing between Evelyn Nesbit and Stanford White prior to the girl's marriage and the attitude assumed by Thaw after he had made her his wife. Mrs. Thaw has been instructed by her husband's counsel to furnish to him every scrap of writing she has from White. She has promised to look for more of the letters.

A man connected with the Equitable Life Assurance society said last night that Stanford White's life was insured in that company for $120,000 by policies taken out at various times in the past twenty years. During that period, it was said, Mr. White paid to the Equitable $30,000 in premiums. All of the policies were made payable to his wife.

A ST. PAUL MAN ENDS HIS LIFE

Edmund Lotz Shoots Himself After Quarrelling With Fiancee.

St. Paul, June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Edmund F. Lotz of St. Paul shot and killed himself at Hutchinson, Minn., last night. It is reported that he had previously made an unsuccessful attempt to shoot his fiancée, a Miss Dunbar of Hutchinson, following a quarrel. Lotz was an electrician and was formerly employed by the Twin City Telephone company, but did not return to work after the strike was called off Monday evening he went to Hutchinson to visit his fiancée, and it is reported that a disagreement of some sort arose which culminated in a violent quarrel. Lotz is reported to have taken notice to shoot the girl, who escaped unhurt. He then turned his weapon on himself and sent a bullet through his brain. Lotz was 28 years of age and was a son of James G. Lotz of Stillwater.

FLETCHER TO RUN AGAIN.

Will Again be Candidate for Congress in Minneapolis.

Washington, June 28.—It is the understanding among members of the Minnesota delegation that Representative Fletcher purposes again to be a candidate for congress in the Minneapolis district.

When he came to Washington at the beginning of this session he intimated he would not run again, but as soon as the chance for getting a public building appropriation presented itself, he began to sit up and take notice. For two months he has devoted himself assiduously to this one matter, the appropriation being secured, at last. It is now said that he will seek re-election on the strength of securing this appropriation.

TELEGRAPHPHONE SYSTEM.

Telephone Messages and Telegrams May be Sent at Once.

Winnipeg, Man., June 28.—The Canadian Pacific railroad has introduced a special copper wire between here and Montreal for their telegraphphone system, by means of which two messages—one by telephone and the other by telegraph—can be transmitted over the wire at the same time. A number of tests have been made, and yesterday operators here were able to converse with those in Montreal, proving the success of the system. The distance is over 1,600 miles, and it is claimed to be the greatest distance a human voice has ever been carried over a metallic wire. The introduction of a long-distance telephone in connection with a railway opens up great possibilities. It will be a boon to heads of departments who wish to converse with other departments hundreds of miles away. It will eliminate the long-service messages which so frequently tie up the wires. For the operating of trains it will be invaluable and will revolutionize the work of dispatchers. It is stated the company intends to install this system along all its lines as soon as possible.

VOLUNTEER FIREMAN HURT.

Benson, Minn., June 28.—P. G. Gallagher, Jr., clerk in the postoffice at this place, and one of the most prominent young men, fell while returning from a fire here Tuesday night, with the hose cart which he broke his right leg in two places. The doctors think that amputation will be necessary.

CONTRACTOR DEAD.

New Richmond, Wis., June 28.—Andrew Brown, one of the pioneer contractors of this section, died yesterday of a complication of liver and kidney troubles. He was 68 years old. He came here in the latter sixties from Belva, Ontario, and built many public buildings in the Northwest.

CONCERNING WEDDINGS

Those last evening invited to the wedding of Miss Jennie M. Patterson and Lewis Park Campbell at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius D. Campbell of Park Point were delightfully surprised at being guests at a double wedding, for after the service uniting Miss Patterson and Mr. Campbell, the marriage service for Miss Jessie Florence Ames, daughter of Mrs. A. Ames of Park Point, and William B. Campbell was read, to the surprise of the guests Mr. Campbell arrived in the city from Canada yesterday to attend his brother's wedding. No date had been set for his wedding to Miss Ames, although the engagement has been announced and the sudden decision was not made known to the guests until the marriage service was begun.

The Campbell home was a bower of bright daisies and ferns and the living room of the cottage was a charming setting for the interesting ceremonies. At 8:30 the wedding music, played by an orchestra concealed on the piazza, and the bride party entered the room. Miss Patterson was attended by Miss Grace Penney and the best man was Sumner Covey. S. L. Mitchell of the First Baptist church read the marriage service. The bride wore a dainty and simple gown of white and carried white roses. Miss Penney also wore white and carried white flowers.

After the ceremony was completed Miss Ames and William Campbell stood forth and amid a shower of rice the second service was begun. Miss Kathleen Watterworth was the maid of honor and Sumner Covey was the groomsmen for the second groom. Miss Ames wore a dainty gown of white and carried white flowers. Miss Watterworth wore a gown of white and carried white sweet peas. After the ceremony an informal reception was held. The Messrs. Campbell and their brides left today for a wedding trip and later will be at home in Duluth.

HOME WEDDING.

Pretty Service Unites Miss Young and Robert Foster.

A pretty home wedding took place last evening when Miss Lea Margaret Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Young, daughter of the bride of Robert Denison Foster of Chicago at the home of the bride's parents, 307 West Fourth street. The rooms were prettily decorated in blue and white. At 6:30 o'clock the wedding music was played and the bride party entered the parlor. The bride was attended by Miss Minnie Young and Miss Anna Stamp and the best man was E. R. Clarke of Chicago. The Episcopal service was read by Rev. A. W. Ryan of St. Paul's church. The bride wore a dainty gown of white chiffon trimmed in baby blue and carried white roses. Her attendants were gowned in blue. The wedding music was played by Miss Edna Harris.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served and in the evening a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell and their brides left today for a wedding trip and later will be at home in Duluth.

Home Wedding.

A quiet wedding service took place last evening when Miss Rosa Grettum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ingelbult Grettum, became the bride of Ewing Franklin Luoka of Superior, at the home of the bride's parents' 100 East Fifth street. The wedding took place at 8 o'clock the service being read by Rev. Arthur Hoag of West Duluth. The bride was attended by Miss Nell Corner of St. Croix Falls and the best man was Mr. Paulk of Wisconsin. Mr. and Mrs. Luoka left for a wedding trip. After their return they will be at home in Old Superior.

LACK OF FAT

Attributed to Writer of Elbow Sleeve Protest.

A lady-like protest was conceived and written by and printed in the Women's column of The Herald the other evening, against the indiscriminate wearing of elbow sleeves. Following that, the ensuing telephone conversation was enjoyed by one of the guileless scribers of the Herald's force.

"Is this the Herald?"—rather metallic feminine voice.

"It is,"—politely, impressively and in smothered baritone.

"Is this the city editor talking?"

"No,"—in an apologetic manner.

"Mr.,"—again quite abject.

"You had better tell the lady who wrote that article about short sleeves in last evening's paper, that she had better take something for it."

"What?"

"I say that you had better tell the lady who wrote that article in last evening's paper to take something for it—something that will make her fat, and

"What? Who is this?"

"—she won't object to short sleeves, and—"

"Say, who is this, who—"

"You just give her—"

"—is talking anyway? What kick

"—a tip that there are some things about short—"

"—have you coming? Did you say short sleeves or short sleeves?"

"I said 'short' sleeves, sir," acridly, "and I just want to say that what she doesn't know about short—"

"What—short?"

"No 'short'—what she doesn't know about short sleeves is a good deal. You tell her that."

"All right; I'll tell her; who will I say said it?"

"You tell her that and tell her that she should take something to make her fat. Ha! Ha!"

The laugh that closed the incident was steady and left The Herald end of the conversation in a very much chagrined and submissive mood.

The wedding of Miss Ella Wakefield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wakefield of 613 Nineteenth avenue east and Water Bates took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Lowrie. The bride was Miss Jessie Wakefield and the best man was T. E. Myers. The bride wore a gown of white mull and carried white roses. The bridesmaids also wore white and carried American beauties. Mr. and Mrs. Bates will be at home at 242 West First street.

Beautiful eyes and lashes are not so difficult to obtain as some women think, for even though the color and shape cannot be changed, their beauty may be greatly enhanced by special care and treatment. This is especially true of women who have occasion to use their eyes at any close work.

When fancy work is valuable, since it is said to act as a sedative for the nerves in much the same manner as smoking for men, yet there is always the tendency to overstrain the sight. Working under electric light or with insufficient light, reading for from a lamp or on a train all are apt to induce inflammatory conditions which affect the beauty of the eyes as well as their usefulness.

In the event of a slight inflammation, a mild astringent such as boracic acid does much to relieve this tendency, using ten grains of the acid to an ounce of distilled water, or, if a little more severe treatment is necessary, the addition of a grain of sulphate of zinc to the solution increases its efficacy. Dilute this one-half cup to one-third, and use in an eye cup, and third, and use only half filled. Salt and water also is good for bathing tired eyes.

One of the most annoying results of eye strain is the baggy condition under the eyes, which is very disfiguring. Disease of the liver and kidneys also occasions this appearance, but in this case a physician should be consulted. To restore the relaxed condition of the skin, tannic acid is generally effective, using twenty grains to an ounce of glycerine, which may be applied with a soft camel's hair brush to the puffiness night and morning.

Massaging the eyes and just beneath them also restores the tonicity of the skin. With the thumb and forefinger of each hand take up the skin little by little beneath each eye, using quite a little pressure as progress is made. With the thumb and forefinger gently massage the eyeballs also. This is done to many persons if taken more but care should be taken that the work is done gently. Another motion is circular, using the forefinger, beginning at the middle and working out to the corners of the eyes.

Nothing adds more to womanly beauty than pretty eyelashes and eyebrows, and in the case of the former there is the added virtue of long lashes being a protection to the eyes. Formerly it was never thought necessary to assist nature in altering the shape or appearance of the eyebrows and lashes, but now there are establishments that make a regular business of treating them. A daily means of daily care at home, though, will work wonders in this respect.

Oil or vaseline add materially in ing medicines. Tea and milk are good to drink, if they agree with an individual, but no liquid or food should ever be taken when it is either very cold or excessively hot for either extreme is particularly bad for the vocal cords, for it gives them a shock and contraction follows, and often inflammation, that is painful.

"Besides pineapple, I would recommend the use of apples and plenty of apple sauce for the average person who has a rheumatic voice, and I would advise them against eating oranges and bananas, for both increase uric acid, and unless a person is absolutely sure that these fruits agree, they should not indulge in them.

"This disease is often aggravated, if not actually increased, by the constant use of candy, especially that with chocolate, cocoa, vanilla flavors; in fact, sweets of any kind should be taken sparingly if the voice is often husky, or there is a soreness in the tonsils.

"For the person who wishes to cultivate a pleasant speaking voice I should say there were no better rules to follow about eating than those that the prima donnas observe. To one familiar with their habits it will be useless to say that they never overeat their stomachs, and instead of taking a heavy meal, as most of us do, they eat light food and take it often, frequently as many as five or six times and always on a diet that they know agrees with them. For instance, some of them take no meat, for it is not easy for them to digest it, while others eat all they want of it. As a rule, they see to it that they have plenty of the right kind of exercise.

"Now if a woman with a rheumatic voice follows these rules with the modifications that suit her case, or one who has no trouble with her throat, the quality of the tone should improve, for as the general health gets better it immediately manifests itself in the voice, which gains strength and often beauty and purity of tone.

"As to preventing complications in the throat I know of no surer way than by careful treatment of the teeth. This should be a habit that is never neglected for even a single meal, for nothing is more dangerous than to have particles of food, in which germs gather, collect around the gums, for sooner or later these pass into the throat and then the damage is done. The teeth, too, should be kept in good repair by a dentist and any little cavity that appears should be cleared out and filled immediately as a protection against rheumatism in the throat."

What Retail Markets Offer

Wild plums, 10 cents a box.
New potatoes, 30 cents a peck.
Head lettuce, 10 cents.
Fish.

The new potatoes are no longer in the realm of luxuries when they have reached the above-mentioned price. Everybody can enjoy new potatoes.

The wild plums in the market are just right, a delicate plum color, ripe and delicious, and will be in for at least three weeks. The cantaloupes are getting a better quality, but still are rated at 20 cents each, so that most people are refraining for a time. The strawberries, oh, the pity of it, are almost gone, and what do remain are poor in quality, and what are coming are the same. Those who are to enjoy strawberry preserves next year will be those people who have some left which they put up two years ago, and anybody who has preserves left for two years are the persons who really can enjoy them properly, and so the hardship of the present crop failure is going to fall, as usual, on the people who are least prepared to bear it.

Fish is the thing to have tomorrow. Have it crisp and broiled and lemon on it, and there will no protest coming.

training the eyebrows into becoming shapes. If the brows are uneven, then the hairs may be removed by tweezers. The eyebrow brush is one of the most important aids in their care, and by nightly dipping it in oil and rubbing the brows well, their growth will not only be increased, but they will present that well trained appearance which adds so materially to the appearance of the face.

In the event of the brows being staring and coarse, a bit of mullage or bandoline applied at night, after smoothing them into shape will prove effective. Quite a bit of difference in the brows can be accomplished by accentuating the upper line by rubbing the hairs up from the bottom, or vice versa.

If a woman has very thin eyelashes their color can be accentuated by a dye composed of—

Gum arabic, 1 dram; India ink, 1/2 dram; rosewater 4 ounces.

Powder this ink and gum and triturate small quantities of the powder with the rosewater until you get a uniform black liquid in a powder, and then add the remainder of the rosewater to it. It should be applied with a very thin camel's hair brush.

To increase their growth a bit of kerosene rubbed in carefully will increase their growth, while a pomade composed of one ounce of red vaseline, one sixteenth of an ounce of tincture of cantharides, eight drops of oil of lavender and the same of oil of rosemary will be effective.

It should be mixed thoroughly and applied to the eyebrows with a tiny toothbrush once a day until the growth is sufficiently stimulated, then less often. Clipping the ends of the lashes is said to accelerate their growth.

WELL IN A STABLE.
From It Water Was Obtained for Indianapolis Soda Fountains.

Indianapolis, June 25.—That many of the soda fountains of Indianapolis are supplied with water from "bad" wells is a discovery the state board of health has made. Some time ago the secretary decided that the water sold to the city soda fountains was not good, and started an investigation to locate its source. His search ended in a stable on the north side. The water supply was at the secretary's feet.

"Just as I expected," he said, holding his nose. "A well right here in the stable supplies half of the soda fountains in town."

The secretary was not long in putting the well out of commission by emptying the contents of a bottle of kerosene oil into it.

WRITERS BUY MAGAZINE.

Spalding as associates, has been sold to the Phillips Publishing company, composed of John S. Phillips, Lincoln Steffens, Ray Stannard Baker, Ida M. Tarbell and C. Boyden, long connected with McClure's Magazine, and Peter Finley Dunne and William Allen White.

It is understood the price paid is in the neighborhood of $400,000.

such utilities shall be excluded from the limitations of Section 3 of Article II. We favor the passage of a law by the next legislature conferring upon, and delegating to municipalities the power to fix the price which public service corporations within the municipalities shall furnish their service, and commodities to users and consumers.

We are in favor of a maximum rate of charge by all railroads doing business in the state of Wisconsin of two cents per mile for passenger traffic within this state.

We favor the enactment of laws providing full protection for policyholders in all life insurance companies transacting business in this state.

We favor the enactment and enforcement of laws giving labor and capital impartially their just rights, but the rights of labor are certainly not less vested nor less sacred and no less alienable than the rights of capital.

We favor the enactment of a law establishing the doctrine of comparative negligence in all personal injury cases.

Equality of contribution to the public burden essential to equality of social and political rights. The recent decision of our supreme court in the railway cases has opened the way for more equitable distribution of the tax burden and a speedy return to the constitutional rule of uniformity. We now insist that all laws imposing a license fee on earnings of less than $100 be assessed and taxed on an ad valorem basis until superseded by a more scientific method. We incline to the opinion that a graduated income tax as the ground work of all taxation will prove to be a more scientific and equitable method of raising the state revenue than the antiquated system now in use. We therefore favor the adoption of the constitutional amendment favoring the primary of a graduated income tax.

We are in favor of the highest efficiency of the public schools and all institutions of learning, including manual training and agricultural schools. And we demand that party considerations be wholly eliminated from the management of this institution.

The construction of good highways is entitled to the highest consideration of the state. We demand that the present state debt of $2,251,000, borrowed from the trust funds of the state for war purposes, and bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum, for which an annual tax levy of $157,500 is made, shall be paid in accordance with the mandates of the constitution; and we condemn the action of the Republican administration for diverting the sum years 1903 and 1905, from the government in repayment of the war claims of the state, from the trust funds, from which this fund was originally taken, to the general fund, and its use in the payment of general state expenses. We favor primary elections as being Democratic in principle, but recognize some defects in the present law, and favor such changes and amendments in as time and experience may demonstrate to be necessary, after a fair trial.

We regard with just pride and admiration the typical American, who has been journeying in foreign lands the past year, and who, although only a private citizen, with none of the allurements of place or power about him, has been accorded distinction and consideration because his course in public and private life has shown him to be a broad, wise and far seeing statesman, and a thoroughly honest and upright man, in whom the people can safely repose their utmost confidence. We therefore declare that we are heartily in favor of that typical American, William Jennings Bryan, as the Democratic candidate for president in 1908, and we pledge our united efforts to secure his nomination.

Pineapple Cure for Women Afflicted with Rheumatic Voice

That hundreds of women and girls suffer with rheumatic voices without even realizing what is the matter with their vocal cords, and that nearly half of the fair sex in New York have a touch of rheumatism in the organ of speech is a statement recently made by a throat specialist of that city, who declares that though this condition is annoying it is not necessarily dangerous, and it does not follow that the speech will ever be entirely lost. In its mild form he says that it can be almost entirely eliminated by the diet and careful and regular habits of living.

"Rheumatism manifests itself in the throat, by hoarseness, and a husky, raspy or a decided pain in the tonsils," he says, "and yet few women know that there is anything to be done to dislodge it with the thought that it is what they call a cold in the tonsils, vocal cords, etc., take a little soothing cough mixture or a wash for the inflamed parts and forget about it. They do not know that when this condition is constantly recurring it means something more than a simple cold and that it takes regular if simple treatment, such as can be given at home, to keep it from becoming troublesome.

"One of the best remedies I know for this disease is the use of pineapple. It should be eaten at least once a day, and a syrup from it drunk slowly.

"If a woman used this fruit makes it more palatable, but I would not make it too sweet, for sugar does not tend to cure the rheumatic state of the vocal cords.

"For the average woman or girl suffering with this chronic hoarseness, pain, etc., I should advise her never to eat tomatoes, strawberries or lettuce, for these contain the very acids that accentuate the disease, and for that reason should never be taken.

"Alcoholic beverages, especially when drunk to excess, have a detrimental effect on the voice, just as have many of the soft drinks. Coffee, too, is injurious to many persons if taken more than once a day, for it is not good for the liver, and anything that affects the stomach acts directly upon the throat and voice, and for that reason more effective treatment can be secured by a careful diet than by administration

TWO WIVES ASK FOR DIVORCES

Cruelty and Desertion Are Grounds for the Petitions.

Jessie Boyer filed in the district court, yesterday afternoon, the papers in her divorce action against August Boyer. The action is based on charges of cruelty and inhuman treatment, and the story of the Boyers, as told by the wife in her petition, is a story of heart-breaking scenes and broken promises.

Mrs. Boyer gives her age as 26, and says she was married to August Boyer, a meat cutter, at Mount Clemens, Mich., in April, 1903. She claims that after two months of happy wedded life, her husband became intemperate and ugly, and choked her. Specific instances of alleged cruelty are mentioned in the complaint. One of these happened, it is claimed, in October, 1903, when Boyer is said to have driven his wife from the house with the threat to kill her, and threw her clothes into the street after her.

This alleged attack was followed by a reconciliation, but Boyer is claimed to have broken his promises a year later, and chased his wife with a butcher knife. Following an alleged assault in December, 1904, Mrs. Boyer left her husband and came to reside with her parents in Duluth.

Another divorce action, started yesterday, was that of Sadie Miller of West Duluth against Fred Miller of Superior. Mrs. Miller charges desertion, and claims that they were married in Superior in June, 1903, a son resulting from the union. According to the complaint Miller is 44 and his wife 25 years of age. She asks the custody of the child, claiming that her husband is not a fit person to care for it.

MOTION FOR INJUNCTION.

Coffee Companies Argue in Federal Court Over Disputed Label.

Judge Morris in United States court has taken under advisement a motion for a preliminary injunction against the Aroma Coffee company of Duluth to prohibit them from using a so-called "King Arthur" trade-mark for certain coffee which they put on the market. The Importers Coffee company of Duluth was the applicant. The papers were filed in United States court about a week ago and noted in The Herald at the time. The motion for a preliminary injunction has just been argued and probably will be decided within a few days.

It is claimed that the Aroma Coffee company is using the trade-mark mentioned, while the Importers Coffee company has precisely the same trade-mark registered and therefore the using of the label by the other company is an infringement of the Importers company's right. The latter asks for an injunction and turning over of profits from sales of the King Arthur brand by the Aroma company.

ALUMNI HAVE BIG SPREAD

Former Students of University of Minnesota at Banquet.

Dr. F. C. Bowman Re-elected President of Association.

Former students of the University of Minnesota gathered at the Commercial club last evening to attend the second annual banquet of the Northern Alumni association. The gathering represented graduates of almost every class in recent years and there was plenty of enthusiasm manifested for the grand old "U of M."

Dr. F. C. Bowman, '79, was toastmaster. Dr. Bowman was re-elected president of the association, which he served faithfully as chief executive for a year. The other officers elected were: Vice president, F. G. Jewett of Hibbing; secretary, Rev. J. W. Powell, treasurer, Clarence B. Miller.

Dean F. S. Jones of the faculty was the principal speaker of the evening and he gave a very interesting talk on "What the University Needs."

"There are as many opinions as there are people and it is probable that every one of the alumni or any other person who had ever been connected with the university has a different idea of what the university needs, so I can only speak from my own point of view and not as representing any particular body of men," said Professor Jones.

"In my opinion, the most crying need of the university is a spirit of confidence, by which I mean that the faculty should have some sense of security and stability which in the past has been largely impossible. We have lately escaped from the dangers of political control, under which a professor would be in daily danger of removal by reason of some shift in the political chessboard and we are thankful for it."

Dean Jones looked upon the talk of finding younger men to fill the important posts at the university as the height of folly and said that provision ought to be made for pensioning old professors in a way which would permit them to retain their connection with the institution to which they had given their lives. This method is used in Germany.

"Minnesota is only on the fringe of her vast resources," continued the speaker, "and as far as the material needs of the institution are concerned I feel that they will be amply provided for the occasion, but what is present there is need for the establishment of a post-graduate school, such as the Eastern universities have."

"The university also needs an organized department for young ladies, who should be under the wing of a trained preceptor. They should have greater facilities for amusement and entertainment, which would make them more at home. A start has been made in this line for a fund for the establishment of Shetlin hall, but the building is hardly more than begun, and after it is finished there will be need of about $4,000 for furnishing it. The young men have contributed something to the fund from the revenue derived from the athletic event programs, and it would be a good idea for the alumni of the state to contribute the remainder of the fund, so that the ladies might have better and more home-like quarters."

Prof. Henry F. Nachtrieb spoke on the organization of the alumni. He explained what has been given to the cause in the organization of the General Alumni association.

E. B. Johnson, secretary of the general association, spoke briefly about that organization, and the other speakers were Miss Mary McFadden of the Tribune staff and Rev. J. W. Powell.

The range towns were well represented at the banquet.

KILLS SELF ON WEDDING DAY

Bridegroom Gets Cold Feet and Swallows Dose of Strychnine.

Sioux City, Iowa, June 28.—Falling to appear at the appointed time for his own wedding reception his sweetheart, Miss Myrtle Baul, of Decatur, Neb., in ignorance of his whereabouts, Leslie Holman, aged 24 years, wrote her a loving farewell yesterday, a few minutes before he was supposed to depart for his bride, across the river from here.

"My Dear Sweetheart," he wrote, "You will be surprised to hear from me now. My dear Myrtle, I am going to end my life. You know how I love you and this spring, but I never do you right, and you deserve a better man. If you get married to anybody else, I wish you all the happiness there is. Tell Elmer that I love him. From your old sweetheart, Leslie Holman."

A letter written at the same time to the young man's father, John Holman, of Decatur, Neb., says the writer is unhappy, but does not say why. It bids the family a loving farewell.

Holman coolly went to his self-destruction, carefully dressing himself, bought strychnine under the name of John Reed to kill gophers. This remark was probably a ghastly joke, for it is said he formerly came from Minnesota, the gopher state.

Governor, Lewis E. Emery, Jr., of Bradford; lieutenant governor, Jere S. Black, of York; auditor general, William T. Cressy, of the prohibition nominee, secretary of internal affairs, John J. Green of Philadelphia.

The convention did not go on record as endorsing Bryan's nomination for president.

Emery was the choice of the delegates who favored the Lincoln party. He was nominated on the first ballot by a vote of 281 to 69 for Arthur G. Dewalt of Lehigh county.

DULUTH TUG GOES DOWN; CREW SAVED

Strikes Rock at Pie Island Near Port Arthur.

The tug Alfred W. of Duluth struck a rock at Pie Island, near Port Arthur, yesterday, slipped off and sank instantly. That is the news which comes to the Duluth-Superior Dredge company, owners of the tug, and that is about all the company knows about it, except that the accident happened in a heavy fog and that the crew was saved.

The Alfred W. left Duluth on Monday to tow a mud-screw to Port Arthur. It is presumed that she was starting for home when the accident happened, but that is not known. She carried a crew of eight, all but two being from Duluth. Frank Frechette, Jr., was master, Archie McLean was mate, Charles Hector chief engineer, and Frank Frechette, Sr., was second engineer. There were three firemen and a deckhand.

Two of the firemen were from Duluth, but their names have not yet been learned. However, they were saved, as one of the boats from the tug broke loose and floated when the tug went down and the men got to it.

TWO MEN HAVE A STRANGE ESCAPE.

Detroit, June 28.—Theodore H. Perry and Harry Rogers, both of Detroit, had a strange escape from death late yesterday, being blown off their sailboat by an explosion while they were sailing near the mouth of the Detroit river. The young men were passing a small island at the head of Fox island, the smaller island being used for the storage of explosives. A powder house blew up and windows were broken as far away as the Canadian city of Amherstburg. It is not believed that there was anyone in the powderhouse at the time.

Perry and Rogers were rescued by a small boat that hurried to their aid. Perry's clothes were torn from his body and Rogers was partially disrobed, but neither sustained serious injury.

SHIPPERS WANT TO ACCOMPANY FRUIT.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 28.—A resolution was passed yesterday by the chamber of commerce to the effect that congress be urged to include in the railroad rate bill now pending, a clause which will give fruit shippers the privilege of accompanying shipments as stockmen are now allowed to do. It is said that such personal care is of the utmost importance to citrus growers for the prevention of decay in the fruit.

THE IRON-MARKET SHOWS STRENGTH

High Quotations Prevail and the Tendency is Still Higher.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 28.—The Iron Trade Review says: "The dissolution of the agreement of southern furnaces in 1905 and the subsequent decline in the price of southern pig iron have continued to be the principal topics of discussion in trade circles and the unusual strength of the market in the period preceding midsummer has been demonstrated by the prevalence of high quotations in the north and the tendency toward still higher prices. Following the abandonment of the agreement, a large amount of southern iron, roughly estimated at 100,000 tons was sold at from $12 to $12.50 Birmingham for Number 2, but the market was quickly advanced by nearly all sellers to that figure at present. The market is in sound condition and in some places, notably in the Cleveland district, there is a scarcity of both foundry and steel making irons. Although iron can be purchased in the Ironport district at $16, the prevailing price in the valley is $16.50 for Number 2, foundry. We note the sale of 8,000 tons of Bessemer for the Ironport at $17.50 valley. Many mills will be closed for repairs during the coming week. On account of the large amount of business on hand, the suspension will be as short as possible.

The scarcity of crude steel continues and the expected advance of $1 per ton on sheet bars has been announced. The market in iron and steel is in good condition and the demand for iron has increased on account of the favorable crop reports. Fluctuations in both new contracts and specifications, especially in the Chicago district. The requirements for the two new battleships in which contracts have been awarded, will be 7,500 tons of plates for each vessel, and 3,000 tons of armor plate.

ALIENISTS SAY DOWIE IS INSANE.

Chicago, June 28.—John Alexander Dowie, declared by Dr. Archibald Church, an alienist, to be insane, although possessed of mental capacity for business, in testimony before Judge Landis in the Zion city controversy yesterday. Dr. Church has attended several sessions of court during the hearing and had heard Dowie tell of seeing lights and hearing celestial music, of preventing a shipwreck and of curing diseased persons by means of prayers. The physician declared it to be his belief that Dowie might be insane and still have mental capacity to accumulate $7,000,000. The doctor will continue his testimony later.

"BOOSTING FOR BEMIDJI."

New Commercial Club Doing Good Work
After Manufacturers.

Bemidji, Minn., June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The new Bemidji Commercial club is hustling and "boosting for Bemidji" in a manner that is pleasing to note by every citizen of this place. A meeting was held Tuesday evening, at which it was voted to change the name of the organization from the Business Men's club to Commercial club. Correspondence has been had with the Bousfield Manufacturing company, representatives of which have been looking over the city with the view of locating here. This concern is now located in Minneapolis, and is a large manufacturer of tubs and all kinds of woodenware. It is more than probable that he company will locate here, and the Commercial club will continue to go after other similar manufacturers. C. H. Miles, president of the club, has tendered the free use of elegant rooms until other suitable quarters can be secured.

Although it was not decided until a late day that Bemidji would celebrate the birthday of July, there is every indication that the celebration will be a rousing one. An excellent program has

INDIANS ARE UGLY.

Make Trouble for the Whites in British Columbia.

Hawston, B. C., June 28.—During the past few months the Indians of this province have been giving their white protectors no end of trouble. Since the beginning of the year practically every conceivable kind of crime has been committed by them and hardly a day passes but the police are notified of some new outrage. Last week Alexander McIntosh and Max LeClare, two Indians, were brutally shot down, while on their way home. Investigations pointed to an Indian named Simon Johnson as perpetrator of the murders and the country is not being secured for him by the provincial police. Johnny Tackum is another whose case will come before the magistrates during the next few days. He admits having killed another Indian who had struck a woman with whom Tackum had lived. This Indian has a bad record having been sentenced to death for murder in 1902, the sentence being changed to life imprisonment and on account of his supposedly dying condition he was afterward pardoned. Other murders in the north country are interesting the provincial police and hopes are entertained that some of the murderers will be arrested before long.

WILL BUILD ELEVATOR

Jean Du Luth Company Will Store All Its Grain.

Building Will Have a Capacity of 15,000 Bushels.

The Jean Du Luth company has begun the construction at its stock farm on the East Duluth and Lester river road, of the first private grain elevator to be built on a St. Louis county farm.
The project was talked of last year by the proprietors, John G. Williams and Charles P. Craig, but they did not get the conditions favorable to carry out their plans until this summer.
The elevator will be a concrete and frame structure 40 by 38 feet on the ground and with a capacity of about 15,000 bushels of grain, all that will be carried over the winter seasons.
The site selected for the elevator is on the north bank of Lester river, which runs through the farm, and within a few feet of the big root house located near the farm office and barn.
Built, as it will be, against a gravel bank, the reception bins, concrete lined and sloping downward to the elevators, will handle the grain on the gravity plan. The elevators, run by steam power, will hoist it to the six steam bins, which will be equipped with augers in the milling room underneath to permit of the easy withdrawal of the contents. The basement room, will be 14 by 40 feet and will contain the feed mill, the smut mill and the root chopper. When the building is completed and the machinery installed it will be a very easy matter to get in operation the feed mill and the root chopper, the root cellar being situated almost at the basement door.

The frame construction of the elevator will consist of overlapping two by fours, making it a wall of sufficient strength and thickness. It is the intention of the Jean Du Luth company, as soon as its elevator is in operation, to carry on its grain feeding under an economical and scientific basis. Instead of feeding out to the various stock barns an indefinite quantity of grain along with other feed, the needs of each barn will be carefully figured out and a certain amount of grain will be checked out against that barn each day. That amount will be expected to meet all proper demands and the company will be able to check the waste that cannot be prevented when the granaries are scattered throughout the barns and the facilities are not the best for handling it. The elevator will be in the charge of one person who will be held responsible for the distribution.
The elevator has been planned with a view of filling its bins with wheat, oats, barley and rye, though in what proportions the owners have not yet fully decided. The probabilities are, however, that the wheat crop will be the lightest crop put in it. It is possible, too, that if the elevator more than meets the demands of the stock farm that the owners will operate some of the bins for the benefit of other farmers in the vicinity.
Messrs. Craig and Williams have some rather unique plans for the new silo, or rather series of silos that they will build in connection with a large new barn structure. The first proposition is considerable. Very important factor in silo building in this latitude for such a structure must necessarily be constructed to withstand a lower temperature than that it would be subjected to.

THE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, NEW YORK

Has devised and placed on the market at a notably low rate, a policy which provides protection more reaching than an ordinary contract. Address the above and get the particulars.

to in the southern part of the state and for a longer period. To provide against the frost danger it has been decided to build the silo bins, which will be of the regular circular form, of concrete in the large gravel bank against which the new barn will stand. The gravel bank will protect the bins from frost in all but a small part of their surface and that will be acted on by the animal heat from the barn. Mr. Craig and Mr. Williams are both well pleased over this scheme for silo building and figure it out that natural advantages can be made to count in this particular instance, the gravel bank or bluff lying close to the other farm buildings.
An overhead trolley carrier has been planned to carry the skim milk from the creamery to the hog barn several hundreds yards distant. Labor saving devices are among the important features at the stock farm.
The Fourth of July.
On next Wednesday we celebrate the 130th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Few realize the many changes that have taken place during that time or the remarkable growth and expansion of the original thirteen colonies. It was during that time that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters was first presented to the public, and for the past 53 years have given complete satisfaction in thousands of homes where it reigns supreme. These people were led to realize its wonderful power by being persuaded to try it when their stomachs were weak and their systems run down, and a similar experience awaits you as soon as you resolve to try it. Do so today and you make the first step toward good health. It cures headache, bloating, heartburn, dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, cramps, diarrhoea or female ills.
Fourth of July Rates.
The Northern Pacific railroad will sell excursion tickets between all points in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Dakota at one fare for the round trip, except between Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis, $2.50. Dates of sale July 2nd and 4th. Return limit July 6th. For further information call at City Ticket office, 324 West Superior street.

HE CASHED THE DRAFT

And Then the Friends of the Congressman Drank Juleps.

Work of American Delegates to International Postal Congress.

FROM THE HERALD
WASHINGTON BUREAU.
Washington, June 28.—(Special to The Herald).—Americans are naturally humorists, no matter from what section of the country they hail, nor are they at all particular as to the subject upon which they joke. Some two weeks ago a popular congressman from Pennsylvania, tired of financial worry, ended his life after writing a note to the speaker, in which he gave the reasons for his rash act. A few days ago another member from Southern state received a letter from an old friend and constituent, which read as follows:

"Dear John: I see by the newspapers that one of your fellow congressmen has committed suicide because he was financially embarrassed. Knowing that you are chronically hard up, and fearing that you may be tempted to follow the example set, I enclose you herewith a New York draft for $10, in the hope that it will tide you over and save your life until congress adjourns. If it won't, let me know and I'll go you another ten."
And that congressman cashed the draft. That evening his friends at drank real old fashioned drinks, "with grass in 'em," as the Englishman describes the julep.
Capt. N. M. Brooks, superintendent of the foreign mails division of the postoffice department, who, with Edward Rosewater, editor of the Omaha post, was a delegate to the international postal congress, which recently met in Rome, has returned to Washington and resumed his duties in the postoffice department. Capt. Brooks, who has filled the position of superintendent of foreign mails for many years, and who has been a delegate to every international postal congress for the past fifteen years, speaks in most enthusiastic terms of the work accomplished by the American delegates, and particularly of the adaptability and the efficiency of his colleague, Mr. Rosewater, in not only being able to speak the official language of the congress, French, but of his broad and comprehensive knowledge of the postal service.
Speaking of the work accomplished by the American delegates, Capt. Brooks said that the United States was accorded unanimously an additional vote by reason of the Philippines, Hawaii and Porto Rico, which the European delegates regarded as colonies, but which the American delegates called "possessions." This vote was accorded the United States by the first commission, so called, and by the committee on credentials. At the meeting of the commission the application of other countries for additional votes, by reason of their colonial possessions, were refused, but later, by a majority vote, concessions were granted those countries having acquired additional colonies since the former meeting of the congress in Rome. Naturally the Americans are elated because they were accorded a very distinguished honor by unanimous vote.

Through the joint efforts of the American and British delegates, after Oct. 1, 1907, when the new postal treaty made in Rome will go into effect, foreign letters, at the international rate of 5 cents may weigh one ounce, instead of one half ounce, as now. The congress, which uses the metric system in weighing of mails, voted to make the weight of a single letter twenty grammes, which is about two-thirds of an ounce. But the American and British delegates insisted that their countries were wedded to avoirdupois weight, and that in consequence every scale in every postoffice, and every business house in the United States and Great Britain would have to be changed, which would work a great hardship, the congress adopted a resolution that in the countries named, not having the metric system, letters carrying one ounce would be accepted.
The American and British delegates stood together on the proposition to reduce the cost of postage on a single letter, but as foreign countries run their postal system on a money-making proposition, the reduction of postage was voted down on every occasion.
THAW PERFECTLY SANE,
So Alienists Report on the Madison Square Garden Murderer.
New York, June 28.—That Harry K. Thaw, the slayer of Stanford White, is perfectly sane was the report made by alienists retained by the district attorney's office to examine the prisoners mental condition. This report was made after the physicians had spent an hour with Thaw, who in defiance of the advice of his counsel, Former Judge Olcott, refused to answer any questions and declared that nothing short of actual force would compel him to submit to a physical examination.

When the committee of physicians called upon the prisoner Thaw said firmly, as the first member was introduced, "I beg your pardon, I will answer no questions whatever."
Then began a general conversation on trivial subjects. Thaw deftly parrying questions that had any bearing on his mental or physical condition. Finding him obdurate, the doctors hurriedly summoned Mr. Olcott, but to him Thaw vehemently retorted his determination to answer no questions.
Pressed for an explanation of his refusal, he said:
"I have none at all. Put it down to obstinacy, if you wish."
"This refusal will hurt you," Mr. Olcott is said to have pleaded.
"I don't care. Nothing but absolute force will get me to allow myself to be examined or to say anything now. I think I first ought to talk with Dr. Hamilton and then have a talk with the committee."
He was then taken back to his cell.
Mr. Olcott said later that he was unable to account for Thaw's attitude and that he could only attribute it to unaccountable obstinacy. As his counsel, he said, he had no objection to Thaw's answering any of the questions addressed to him by the physicians.
"Be busy about some rational thing—so that satan may always find thee occupied."—St. Jerome. To read Herold want ads is a rational thing to do—and a thrifty.

WATERWAYS IN GERMANY

Tolls on German Canals Merely Cover Cost of Maintenance.

The Freight Charges Are Lower Than on the Railroads.

Berlin, June 28.—Unlike other German princes, the rulers of Prussia for centuries have never regarded the natural and artificial waterways of their country as a source of income, rather as a means for improving the well-being of their people. The waterways have either been completely free waterways, or taxed merely to such an extent that the ordinary cost of maintenance, or the interest and redemption of the capital invested is covered. The constitution of the German empire provides that only such taxes and tolls for artificial highways as are necessary for the support of special works which facilitate traffic on them. These taxes as well as taxes and tolls for artificial waterways which are the property of the state, are not to exceed what is necessary for the keeping up of such works.

As a matter of fact the taxes levied on German internal waterways are far less than is permitted in the constitution of the empire. The rivers which have not been canalized are almost entirely free. The only exceptions are probably the lower courses of the Weser at Bremen, the Oder at Stettin, and of the Prege at Königsberg, which have been artificially deepened for sea-trading ships.

The tax paid is calculated on various tariffs, and in Prussia in recent years these have been revised and rendered more or less uniform. For example, four classes of goods, each with its special tax, have been arranged for the Upper Oder and the Dortmund-Ems canal. On the Upper Oder from Cosel to the mouth of the Neisse the tax varies from .16 to .40 of a pfennig per ton per kilometre, and on the Dortmund-Ems canal from .40 to .50 of a pfennig. On the waterways of the Mark it varies from .30 to .35 of a pfennig. On the new canals considerably higher taxes will be imposed, as it is not intended to raise funds for keeping permanent works in repair, but also for payment of interest and to establish a sinking fund. For example, on the greater part of the Rhine-Weser canal the intention is to divide merchandise into three classes with a tax varying from 5 to 10 pfennig per ton per kilometre. It has been reckoned that even with this comparatively high rate transit by water will be considerably cheaper than by rail.

The cost of transport on the German waterways is considerably cheaper than by rail. The freight charges between places which are situated directly on the waterways, and are reached without the aid of railways, are generally far less than the railway charges, and on long water stretches this is all the more perceptible as the state-levied taxes cannot be considered. When the place from which goods are despatched and that to which they are forwarded lie at some distance from the waterway, the combined freight of canal and railway together, with delays and the cost of repeated loading and unloading, may make this method of transport dearer than direct railway transport. The latest waterway regulations of the Prussian government contain the following provisions with regard to freight charges. The railway charges for the Prussian-Hesse system in 1901 specify 5.50 pf. per ton per kilometre as the average; 3.00 pf. for goods under the special tariff; 2.50 pf. for the exceptional tariff for wagons of not less than ten tons; and 2.00 pf. for coals. These charges are often reduced when large consignments are forwarded. Long distances are laid down as follows: 1.50 pf. per ton per kilometre on the Dortmund-Ems canal; 1.50 pf. on the Bevergern-Bannover canal; and 1.50 pf. on the artificial waterways of the eastern provinces. On the canalized rivers and the charges are even less than the least of the above mentioned rates on the canals. The following table gives a comparison of railway and waterway rates. The charges are per ton:

	Railway—	Waterway—
Sort of Distance, Freight, Distance, Freight, Merchandise.	K.M. Marks, Kilometres, Marks	K.M. Marks, Kilometres, Marks
1. Herne to Mannheim.....	Coals ..... 3.40 8.20	Water 35 4.70

9. Königsbute to Berlin.....	Coals ..... 4.48 10.50	Water 648 8.10

From this table it is evident that Germany has attained such remarkable prosperity and development, and that its method of transport through the railways, and that their further development means a strengthening of German industrial life.

The relations between the railways and the inland waterways are mainly regulated by the fact that the vast majority of the railways, and almost all the waterways, are the property of the state. This is why it is possible to arrange that railway and canal do not enter into competition with one another, but naturally unite in the task of forwarding merchandise and contributing thereby to the economic development of the country. If, notwithstanding this, we hear sometimes of competition or of occasionally some express dissatisfaction with the regulations of the state management, it may with greater reason be said that the canal friends, untrammelled by fixed rates or tariffs and free to push into classes of business which more properly belong to the railways, are a source of trouble to the latter.

The railways, besides, as a rule, furnish the necessary railway connection between canal harbors and the next railway station, and this without and without attaching any conditions. In France and other countries where railways and canals are in different hands, this is a point which gives considerable trouble.

When one considers that the German railways, notwithstanding the dimensions of the traffic on the inland waterways, are reached without the aid of railways, are generally far less than the railway charges, and on long water stretches this is all the more perceptible as the state-levied taxes cannot be considered. When the place from which goods are despatched and that to which they are forwarded lie at some distance from the waterway, the combined freight of canal and railway together, with delays and the cost of repeated loading and unloading, may make this method of transport dearer than direct railway transport. ways, have attained such remarkable prosperity and development, and that in Prussia where inland navigation is so successful the railways are most profitable, it appears evident that the harmonious co-operation of water ways and railways is distinctly to the advantage of the latter, and has contributed largely to the favorable economic development of Germany during the past twenty-five years.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR WHITE EARTH.

Washington, June 28.—Some misinformation has been given out in Minnesota relative to the disposition of land in the White Earth reservation, under the terms of the Chapp amendment in the Indian appropriation bill. That amendment provides only that the restrictions on the trust patents issued to the mixed-bloods on the reservations shall be removed, and that the trust patents already issued shall have the same force and effect as a fee patent.

As to the fullbloods, the act provides that the secretary of the interior may issue fee patents to such of them as he believes are capable of managing their own affairs. The fullbloods are to take the initiative themselves, however, and apply for fee patents. It is said at the Indian office that there will not be any opening of lands in the White Earth reservation.

Under the terms of the amendment, the mixed-bloods acquired full possession of their lands and were at liberty to sell all or any part of their respective holdings immediately upon the approval of the bill.

Most of the Indians on the reservation have been allotted eighty acres each, and under the terms of the Stearnson bill, passed in the last congress, they are being given an additional eighty acres each. It is said that these allotments will use up about all the lands in the reservation.

Attorneys in Clark Mine Case Clash Over Testimony.

Rogers Heirs Seek to Establish Value of Property.

The question of relevancy of testimony as to the actual value of the Clark iron mine property precipitated a lively legal battle this morning between the attorneys for the Rogers' heirs and the array of counsel representing the various defendant mining companies in the Clark mine case.

In the end Judge Cant made a ruling admitting the evidence, for the purpose only of showing the knowledge of the Clark iron company as to the extent of the ore body in the property.

Leading up to the skirmish between the attorneys, Mr. Richards, attorney for the Rogers' heirs, called to the stand Edmund J. Longyear, a mining engineer of Minneapolis, for the purpose of getting evidence as to the value of the Clark and Leonard mine properties and expert testimony as to general methods in vogue in that line of work.

Mr. Longyear testified that he explored the tract described as the west half of the southwest quarter and the southwest quarter of the northwest quarter of section 28-38-20. The Clark property was explored in 1899 and the Leonard property in 1900 or 1901. He made a valuation chart and blue print showing a record of his exploration, a proceeding which he testified was customary among persons concerned in iron ore land transactions.

Mr. Longyear objected to the production of his written records relative to his explorations on the ground that they were of a confidential nature and he did not care to show them unless compelled to do so by the order of the court. He said the exploration of the Clark mine was done at the request of Joseph Sellwood. Mr. Longyear did not know whom Mr. Sellwood represented. The witness thought that Louis W. Hill ordered the exploration of the Leonard mine property.

Mr. Richards called on the defense to produce from him the blue print of the Clark mine, and Mr. Williams, counsel for the Clark iron company, complied with the request. Mr. Longyear identified the blue print as having come from his office, and stated that he thought it had been taken from the vault in his possession, although the vault print has since been added to in some particulars.

C. O. Baldwin, for the Leonard iron mining company and other defendants, raised an objection to the testimony based on this particular blue print. He attempted to disqualify the print by asking Mr. Longyear questions as to his personal knowledge of the accuracy of the drawing and figures shown on the print. The witness admitted that there were some differences in the lines and numbers which he said were due to changes in the vault print after the blue print was made. He admitted that he had never judgment in his mind did the drawing, made the vault print and the chemical analysis of the ore samples. Mr. Longyear relied on the assayers' report. The assayers were Lerch Bros.

Defending his position, Mr. Richards contended that mining men always base their information as to ore bodies on the reports of the mining engineers, whether those reports are made by the engineers themselves or by men in their employ. He claimed that his purpose in introducing evidence of the blue print was to show the depth of the ore body, with a view of determining the value of the property.

A warm argument then followed over the admissibility of any testimony based on the blue print as evidence. Mr. Richards contended that the blue print record was the only means whereby the plaintiffs could prove the extent of the ore body.

Mr. Williams, on behalf of the Clark iron company and the other defendants, objected to the print on the ground that it was not a foundation had been laid for it. He claimed the pleadings show the property in dispute to belong to the Clark iron company, and urged that the question of its value is irrelevant, until some evidence is produced to show the invalidity of the company's title, a conspiracy, or that the act of transferring the title to the Clark company is assailable. Mr. Williams claimed that no such evidence has yet been produced. He urged that the Clark iron company ought not to be compelled to show what it has in its property until the plaintiffs have established their claims of interest in the same.

"All that the counsel has done," said Mr. Williams, "is to make a feeble attempt to show that the patentee of the land was the father of the Rogers' heirs and that he did not execute a deed to the Clark iron company. We claim that if no conspiracy is proven the plaintiffs have no standing in this court. Is the court going to compel us to expose our private papers and records until some prima facie evidence is produced to show a connivance between the Clark iron company and Mr. McClintock?"

J. B. Corten, representing the American Iron Mining company, continued the objection by claiming that the attorneys for the heirs had the blue print in their possession for several weeks, under the order of the court, and he claimed that it did not sound well for Mr. Richards to make a statement at this time that they had had no opportunity of finding out anything about the extent of the ore body or the value of the property.

Judge Cant remarked that he could see no objection to the plaintiffs' leading up to the question of value of the Clark iron company's knowledge of such value, providing the right sort of evidence was used.

Mr. Williams then objected further against testimony along that line on the ground that the question of value is immaterial, that the issue is the question of value of the claim presented by the plaintiffs, or in other words "the question of actual value."

Mr. Williams then objected further against testimony along that line on the ground that the question of value is immaterial, that the issue is the question of value of the claim presented by the plaintiffs, or in other words "the question of actual value."

This objection was also indorsed by the other defendant mining companies. Judge Cant overruled the objections and Mr. Longyear was directed to answer the last question asked by Mr. Richards, which was:

"Have you any doubt as to the correctness of this blue print?"

"I think it is probably correct," was the answer, "not absolutely infallible."

Mr. Richards offered the print in evidence as information in the hands of the Clark iron company that would tend to give it a knowledge of the value of the property.

Mr. Baldwin, for the Leonard iron mining company and the other defendants, objected to its admission as evidence on the ground that it was immaterial, particularly in the case of the Leonard company, which he said was not in existence when the blue print chart was made.

Judge Cant ruled that the blue print should be received for the purpose only of showing the knowledge of the Clark iron company as to the extent of the ore body, and an adjournment was taken until this afternoon.

The morning session of court opened with the reading of several more of the depositions taken by the Rogers' heirs in Arkansas and Indian Territory. The latter depositions were made by business men of Iron Bridge, I. T.

Richard Barton and son of Ashland, one of the persons who deposed, said that Rogers had a "right smart chin beard."

According to the general run of descriptions, Rogers was a man of small stature, dark hair and dark eyes, and was in poor health. One man understood that Rogers died of consumption.

Renew Their First of the Season's Clean-up Sale of Tailored Suits at Half Price.

Even storms like this morning can't dampen the ardor of buyers of Giddings garments.

While today's trade was nothing like it should have been—still, many women braved the storm and were not disappointed.

The values are absolutely the best this or any other store at the head of the lakes has offered in many a day.

Suits $12.50 sold formerly at $25 but the real value of which is $35.

Suits $19.75 sold formerly at $39.50 the real value of which is $49.50.

And so the values run through the Sale—why, do you ask?—because we bought surplus stocks of makers only a few weeks ago at forty to sixty per cent below their usual prices—and we passed those savings along to you in the first place. Compare, that is the way to find out for yourself.

It is not merely a clean-up of odds and ends as is often the case with usual stores, but a round up of the season's lines regardless of their cost to us.

We have had the most successful Spring business in our history and have had to carry very much heavier stocks—as a result the assortment is better this clean-up time than ever before! In fact we believe you will find greater assortments right here now than at any two Head of the Lake stores at the opening of the season. And, what makes buying more desirable and advantageous at this time—and, in Duluth, is the fact that the Summer season has barely opened up so that you buy them practically at the beginning of the wearing season at half!

The Sale includes the most desirable styles, shades and materials of the present season. Notable of which are beautiful model gowns of Voile and Veiling over silk. Novelty Silk Suits, Chiffon Panama and Chiffon Batiste Suits.

No garments will be sent on approval.
